Controller Tries Hard to Stop It.

BY CARL WARREN.

The school board's projected sale of $60,725,000 worth of tax warrants to Halsey, Stuart & Co., was hanging in the balance again last night with a certainty of delay until the first of next week. According to President Caldwell of the school board, sale of the bonds is imperative if the schools are to open in September.

The deal, which Mr. Caldwell had declared Thursday would go through despite the city council's refusal to concur on the ground that it is "a holdup by the bankers' trust," was temporarily balked late in the day after a maze of statements, counter-statements, conflicting legal opinions, and conferences, winding up with a secret session of thirteen officials and lawyers called by City Controller Schmidt. A few hours earlier Mr. Schmidt stated that he would not sign the warrants.

Caldwell Expresses Confidence.

At the close of the final conference the controller announced that he would not act pending another meeting Monday, while Mr. Caldwell still was confident the deal will be made.

"It has come down to the technical question of a bond to protect the controller," the school board president said. "All of the attorneys including Abner C. Miller, counsel for Mr. Schmidt, now agree that the sale is legal without council approval. But to be absolutely safe, the controller wants a $40,475,000 bond from the Central Trust company, where the money will be deposited. That was the point that balked us, but I think it will be ironed out Monday."

Meanwhile, in the background of controversy, another important development took place at an informal meeting of members of the council finance committee to discuss its forthcoming investigation of the "bankers' trust."

Public Loans Planned.

The aldermen not only made plans to call in the leading Chicago bankers for a quiz the first of the week but tentatively outlined a procedure to thwart them by selling future tax warrants over the counter to the public. Ald. Jacob Arvey [24th] contended the plan which he said would give the city "a club to hammer the banks down to reasonable terms." The tax warrants he described as "pledged tax-exempt securities which the public will be glad to buy if given an opportunity."

The investigation of the banking situation, Chairman John Clark [30th] announced, will be handled by a subcommittee of the finance group composed of Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [1st], chairman; Ald. Arvey, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Ald. E. J. Kaindl [34th], and Ald. James B. Bowler [35th].

Schmidt Drops Bomb.

The series of events leading up to yesterday's developments started several days ago when Mr. Caldwell, failing to find another purchaser, contracted to sell the $40,725,000 worth of warrants to the Halsey-Stuart syndicate. The terms were that the warrants should pay 6 per cent interest, that the cash should be deposited in the Central Trust company and drawn out gradually.

To make the contract air tight, council approval of the depository was asked for. This the council refused to give, and Mr. Caldwell's attorneys told him he could make the deal anyway. Holding the school affairs to be critical, he decided to do so, and the deal was considered as good as closed Thursday.

Mr. Schmidt's statement yesterday morning that he would not sign the warrants fell like a bombshell on the school board's plans.

"I am advised," the Schmidt statement said, "that the city council is the only constituted authority that can name a depository for city funds or the funds of the board of education; that the board cannot designate where the money is to be deposited; and that I am charged with notice of the fact that the proceeds from sale of school warrants being deposited in an unauthorized depository, and that the same would be illegal."

Opinions on Conflict.

Mr. Schmidt explained that his position was based on the oral opinion of his attorney, Mr. Miller.

Less than a half hour later, Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Brown sent to City Treasurer Peterson an opinion in conflict with that of Mr. Miller. Contending that school

10 STOCKS ADVANCE $300,000,000 IN DAY; SELL 4,759,180 SHARES

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Hundreds of millions of dollars were added to the market value of issues on the New York stock exchange today in the widest advance that has taken place since early spring. Stocks that led the upturn closed with net gains of from 1 to 24 points, while transactions aggregated 4,759,180 shares.

There was a vigorous buying demonstration in all of the active stocks, particularly in United States Steel common, American Telephone and Telegraph, Bethlehem Steel, Commercial Solvents, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone and Telegraph, Public Service of New Jersey, Western Union, and American Can.

Ten conspicuously strong stocks advanced today in such a measure as to add about $300,000,000 to their market value. These included United States Steel common, with a new gain of 5 points, which went up $40,664,200 on the day; American Telephone and Telegraph, which appreciated $72,545,153; Consolidated Gas, which was up nearly $69,000,000; Union Pacific, which was up almost $15,000,000, and Public Service of New Jersey, in which there was a net rise of about $25,000,000.

TONIC BREWING ORDERED ENDED IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, July 12.—(AP)—The most drastic blow to the brewing industry since the adoption of the 18th amendment, according to Milwaukee brewers, was struck today when United States Prohibition Commissioner Doran, without warning, ordered the manufacture of 12 per cent malt tonic stopped immediately. The order today was served on Milwaukee brewers engaged in the manufacture of the tonic.

The mandate prohibits the manufacture of any malt tonic containing less than 18 per cent of solids derived from malt and more than 2 per cent alcohol by volume.

Brewers who have been making the 12 per cent product here declared that it would be hard to popularize the 18 per cent brew and predicted that the tonics would disappear from the market.

Commissioner Doran's order was transmitted to Milwaukee brewers through the office of E. C. Yellowley, enforcement officer at Chicago.

Shackled together by handcuffs and leg irons, Virgil Litzinger and John [Red] Flannery started for Leavenworth penitentiary last night to begin serving twenty-five year sentences for mail robbery. This morning at 10 o'clock the Burlington train on which they are traveling, under heavy guard, will switch their car into the prison yard just twenty-four hours after a federal jury found them guilty of aiding in the $133,000 Evergreen Park mail robbery.

Deputy United States Marshals Joseph Spizziri and Lief Ivenfeldt took the two prisoners from the county jail about 6 o'clock last night and, with Capt. William Shoemaker's detective bureau squad, rushed them to the Clinton street entrance of the Union station and through a tunnel to the train shed. Litzinger and Fannery walked with difficulty, their ankles linked with the irons.

Guards Take No Chances.

"We're taking no chances," said Spizziri. "These men go like anybody else and if they sleep tonight, they'll have to sleep with the irons on."

In the drawing room on the train which the prisoners and their guards occupied, Litzinger's wife, mother and brother, Fred, paid him a short visit. They left a half hour before the train pulled out, and the prisoners spent the remaining time behind drawn window shades.

Yesterday's conviction completes the Evergreen Park mail robbery trials. Six of the eight men who took $133,000 from a Grand Trunk train in February, 1928, have been sent to prison. The other two, Louis Padersonik and Willie Jackson, were shot to death, one in a gang quarrel and the other while he was attempting a holdup. Charles S. Wharton, attorney and former congressman, also is in prison, serving a two year term for conspiracy in connection with the mail robbery.

Four Others in Prison.

Charles [Limpy] Cleaver, leader of the band, is serving twenty-five years, and Frank Maccia, William Donovan, and Lawrence O'Brien seven and one-half years each. The last three were brought to Chicago for the trial of Litzinger and Flannery in the belief that they would identify the defendants, but each refused to do so.

Indications that possible perjury proceedings may be started against the three were seen yesterday when United States Attorney Johnson announced that he is postponing their return to Leavenworth pending an investigation.

When the verdict was announced the defendants showed the first animation they manifested during the three days of the trial. Litzinger placed a handkerchief to his face to shield it from photographers and Flannery declared his innocence when asked by the court if he had anything to say.

Litzinger shook his head when asked the same question, but Flannery spoke up quickly.

"Yes," he said. "I don't think the evidence in this case was sufficient to warrant a conviction either for myself or Litzinger. I was innocent at the time and I am still innocent."

Judge Lindley heard him out but shook his head.

"The only thing in your favor," he told the two defendants, "is that you didn't take the stand and commit perjury. You came into this robbery late [looking at Flannery] but you came into it of your own free will. I cannot be lenient. There is no question that the robbery was executed through a degraded heart and mind."

Penalty Fixed at 25 Years.

The court then began to say that in view of the defendants' youth, he was not going to give them the maximum sentence, when First Assistant District Attorney Casmus Pont reminded the judge that the sentence under the robbery count of the indictment is fixed at twenty-five years. Sentence was then pronounced with the stipulation that the various terms should run concurrently.

The defense attorneys will file an appeal within sixty days, they said.

POLISH FLYERS VIE WITH FRENCH IN OCEAN HOP

BULLETIN.

BORDEAUX, July 13.—(Saturday.)—(AP)—The wireless station at Bouscat received a message from Santander, Spain, that the Question Mark, airplane of Capt. Dieudonne Coste, passed over that city at 8:30 a. m. (1:30 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time.)

PARIS, July 13.—Saturday (6 a. m.)—The first race of airplanes across the Atlantic is on. Capt. Dieudonne Coste of France, a former nonstop record holder, and his mechanic-navigator and co-pilot, Maurice Bellonte, and the Polish flyers, Maj. Leon Idzinkowski and Maj. Kasimir Kubala, jumped off from Le Bourget field early today in an attempt to fly from Paris to New York.

The Polish flyers in their plane, Marshal Pilsudski, were off first at 4:50 a. m. (10:50 p. m. Chicago time). Like last year, when they failed in an attempt to span the ocean, they rose quickly, clearing the hangars and the trees of the airdrome in a thrilling takeoff with their heavily loaded plane.

French Carry Radio.

The French flyers in their Red Bird took off at 5:20 a. m. (11:20 p. m. Chicago time). The plane was equipped with wireless apparatus for sending on the 600 meter wave length which is used for maritime messages.

There never was so little notice paid to a trans-Atlantic departure at Le Bourget, for the field was deserted, even by the previously essential detachments of troops with fixed bayonets. The only spectators at 3 o'clock this morning were a few personal friends of the flyers and a few newspaper men.

Weather Signs Good.

The wind was from the northeast and was moderate in strength, which was excellent for departure from the field here and also favorable for Atlantic flying. There was a cloudless sky and it was one of the first warm nights Paris has witnessed this year.

The first to arrive was M. Bellonte who came by motor about 3:30. The mechanic-pilot-navigator became communicative as the hour for the hop neared.

"We'll fly probably to the Azores, then on to mid-Atlantic, thence northwest to New York," he said.

Poles' Plane Is Slower.

The Polish plane has a 600 horsepower Dietrich-Lorraine motor, considerably slower than that of Capt. Coste's, but with a theoretical distance capacity far greater than from Paris to New York.

The Breguet monoplane in which the two Frenchmen are now flying toward New York is quite similar to the Berhard used by Armeno Lotti and his crew when they recently hopped from Old Orchard, Me., to Comillas, Spain. It is known as the Breguet XX., and is thirty-one feet long, has a wing spread of sixty-three feet, weighs 1,000 pounds with its full flying load. It has a speed of 150 miles an hour top and 125 cruising. It is powered with a 600 horse power V type twelve cylinder water-cooled Hispano-Suiza motor.

Rescued from Sea Last Year.

Maj. Kubala and Maj. Idzikowski have been planning a westward crossing of the Atlantic by air from Paris to New York for the past two years. After a year of intensive training in a large Amiot plane with a 650 horsepower Lorraine-Dietrich motor, they set out from Le Bourget last year on Aug. 3 and were forced down in the Atlantic sixty miles west of Cape Finisterre, Spain. Missing for sixty hours, they were finally rescued by the German steamer Samos, which brought them back to Liexos, near Oporto, Portugal.

Maj. Kubala is 36 years old and was a pilot in the Austrian army during the war. He later joined the Polish air force in 1918. Maj. Idzikowski is 33 years old and learned to fly while serving in the Russian army in 1915.

Capt. Coste is a familiar character to American aviation. With Joseph Le Brix, he flew from Paris to South America in October, 1927, and then flew to the United States in easy stages. He made a tour of American cities in his Breguet XIX., a model similar to the one he is now using.

Maurice Bellonte was born at Meru-Sur-Oise in 1894. He was a war pilot from 1917 to 1919 in France and Morocco and won several distinctions.

Owner Burned to Death in Flat Furnace

The incinerated body of Theodore Hammel, 60 year old realty holder, was found last night in the furnace in the basement of his six flat apartment building at 4743 Beacon street.

Despite the apparent improbability of such a suicide, the Town Hall police, after investigating Hammel's financial affairs and examining the pyre, found evidence that he had swathed himself in burlap, drenched it with some inflammable liquid and crawled into the fire box. He then applied a match and his body became fuel.

Bit of Wire Is Evidence.

A single hint of foul play was gleaned from the discovery of pieces of wire dangling from his wrists. Police finally decided, however, he had used the wire to bind the burlap about his arms. The ashes of the fire box were being sifted early this morning for other clews.

The anxiety of Hammel's wife, Alice, when he failed to return to their apartment at 4706 Beacon street at his customary hour last evening led to discovery of his body by his niece, Carmen Hammel, who lived at the home of James Craig, 3749 Maple Square avenue. Hammel had spent the day laying plans to remodel the building in which he was found, the apartments having been vacant for eighteen months.

Mrs. Hammel, an invalid, feared he might have been overcome by the heat She telephoned her niece, who, with Craig, went to the apartment and searched the vacant building.

Jest Leads to Discovery.

They started on the third and top floor and peered into each room. After half an hour they reached the cellar. They searched the coal bins, the store room and laundry. They were preparing to leave when the girl, in a jest, remarked:

"Maybe he crawled into the furnace to keep cool."

Craig flashed a searchlight through the furnace door and disclosed the charred body. Craig helped the half fainting girl outside and telephoned Capt. James Walsh of the Town Hall police, who took control of the investigation.

The body was incinerated and every garment Hammel might have worn was consumed except the right shoe, around which clung a wisp of charred burlap. It was this fragment of cloth on which Capt. Walsh constructed his suicide theory.

Examination of Craig at the Town Hall station developed a further indication of suicide. One evening five months ago, Hammel had visited his home, Craig said, locked himself in the bathroom, and refused to come out. When the door was finally broken in Hammel was discovered bleeding in collapse. A physician was called and Hammel was revived, but Craig never learned exactly what Hammel had done.

The Fatal Building.

On another occasion, two months later, Hammel told Craig not to hunt him in the vacant building if he were ever missing. "That building will be the death of me," Craig quoted Hammel as saying. "Sometimes I feel like dashing my brains out on the sewer pipes in the basement."

A $26,000 first mortgage and a $6,000 second mortgage imposed on the structure in the last few years were due shortly, according to information gleaned by the police. Hammel felt considerable anxiety over payment of the mortgages, according to Alex Spitzer, owner of an adjoining building at 4745 Beacon street.

Bert Peekhard, 1462 Lawrence avenue, who held the second mortgage on Hammel's property, told police that Hammel had been prompt on his payments and interest. He met Hammel by chance in a Clark street restaurant about 11 a. m. and chatted a few minutes, during which time the landlord gave no hint of attempting suicide.

Broken Tail Forces Coast Flyers Down.

Data on Flight

Kind of plane—second hand Buhl four passenger cabin biplane, equipped with a second hand 220 horsepower Wright Whirlwind motor provided with a special device which pumped oil to the rocker arms on the cylinders.

Time in air—246 hours 43 minutes 32 seconds.

Took off—7:29:30 a. m., July 2.

Landed—3:13:02 p. m., July 13.

Times refueled—Thirty-seven.

Gasoline used—3,035 gallons.

Oil used—105 gallons.

Culver City, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Outlasted by two human dynamos, the machinery of the Angelene, world record endurance biplane, gave way at 3:13 this afternoon and Aviators Loren Mendell and R. B. [Pete] Reinhart were compelled to descend to Culver City airport, their first visit to land since hopping off at 7:29:30 a. m. on Tuesday, July 2.

They had been in the air 10 days 6 hours 40 minutes and 32 seconds—the longest flight ever made. Their nearly 247 continuous hours aloft virtually doubled the record of 174 hours 5 minutes and 29 seconds set by Roy Mitchell and Byron Newcomb at Cleveland, O., on July 6.

Mendell and Reinhart gave a last demonstration of coolness and ability by making a perfect landing with two dead spark plugs, a fuelless motor and a defective steering apparatus. Their welcome bordered on bedlam.

Step Out Unaided.

The two world champion flyers made their way out of their cabin unaided, to be immediately surrounded by a raving jam of aviation officials, kinsfolk, friends and newspapermen, all packed within an inner wire barricade behind which thousands of screeching and scrambling greeters threatened to demolish the airfield in their eagerness.

While William Gibbs McAdoo Jr., Ground Pilot Paul Whittier, police and a doctor sought to fight forward and guard the pair, Mendell and Reinhart were surrounded by cameras and talking movie microphones.

The welcome was the noisiest and most full of cusswords that any champion in any line has received in California. Camera men fought to repel a movie mechanic who kept spearing at the flyers with a microphone. Mendell and Reinhart pleaded to be let through and were rushed to Culver City hospital in an ambulance for a physical examination.

Draft from Motor Boat.

Both were wholly deaf when they crawled out of the Angelene's cabin. "The one thing we want is a bath," was what both said first.

Mendell did most of the talking for the pair.

"It was that tail flutter that brought us down," he said, referring to a hitch that developed when a dislodged chunk of the fuselage blew back and weakened the tail fin some time after noon today. "We were perfectly capable of going on for a long time. We really wanted to make it 300 hours and come down on Sunday morning, but in the weakened shape the plane was in, steering got to be very bad and it was no longer possible to make our contacts with the refuel ship. That's what made us come down."

"I feel ten thousand dollars better, now that we are down and have the record safe. I wouldn't take a million dollars to try to do it again."

Had a Lot of Fun.

"We really had a lot of fun up there," the pilot continued. "After the first 20 hours we were so deaf that we didn't mind the noise of the motor and could sleep very well. The light was great. The food they sent up was great, and physically we didn't pass such a bad time, although of course it was sort of cramped.

"The worst shock we got on the whole trip was when trying to sponge down in the cabin on Wednesday Reinhart happened to look out the cabin window and saw another plane riding beside us, with its occupants watching him take a bath. That's why we sent down for something to use for a window blind."

Soon after he landed, Reinhart

Both Food and Rest.

Mendell ran for a hot tub as soon as he and Reinhart finished with their physical examination and were pronounced fit. After a bath the men rested on cots in the hospital.

"Boy, but clean sheets feel sweet," Reinhart said, as he stretched out.

Later the ex-motor cop sat up in bed, opened messages and made away with a great bowl of vegetable salad, for which he asked first.

"This tastes a lot different from the oil and gasoline I've been inhaling for ten days," he said. "Loren and I got along fine together. Loren's a great fellow. The only difference we ever had was in guessing just how long the motor could stand up. Of course when the fin began to flutter and we couldn't go along evenly and keep our contact with the Carrier Pigeon [the refueling plane], we had to decide that the best thing to do was to come down. The way the accident happened was when the hatch over the refueling intake blew off, struck the fin and the plane began to wabble. Well, anyway, we gave them all a mark to shoot at. Anyone that stays up longer than I did is welcome to it."

A Profitable Feat.

Their air feat will net a tidy monetary stake for both pilots, who, after pooling their resources prior to starting the flight, were compelled to enlist W. G. McAdoo and his son, A. E. McManus Jr., and Paul Whittier, all moneyed local aviation enthusiasts, to underwrite the further expenses of their flight.

The pair have been tendered a new Buhl air sedan, now on the air route west from the Marysville, Mich., factory, as a gift. The Wright Motor company has also offered a new motor. They accepted a vaudeville contract dropped to them from their refueling plane several days ago and have received numerous other offers of paid engagements. In addition, Los Angeles admirers started a recognition fund which Mendell and Reinhart are to divide. The fund has already passed the $2,000 mark.

Airmen who observed the flight and its finish predicted it will be a long time before the record set by Mendell and Reinhart, in their second hand bi-plane with its second hand engine, will be bettered.

Expert Tells Difficulties.

Slade Hulbert, second in command of the ground crew, said:

"The great expense, the uncertainty, and the knowledge that he must go up prepared to stay for more than ten days before he can even begin approach this record, will deter many aviators from attempting to beat this mark. None except the airplane factories probably will have enough incentive to send pilots and planes up in an effort to stay longer."

On three occasions during their record breaking stay in the air they were nearly forced down because of missed refueling contact during a heavy fog on the third day up; with only a few minutes gas supply left they awakened a Hollywood man by roaring the motor over his roof and dropped a note asking him to telephone for gasoline at once. In response to the plea, P. M. Durfee and Whittier took off through the fog in a small monoplane with a five gallon can of gasoline. The two flyers found each other somehow in the fog and the can was lowered to the Angeleno just as the motor began to sputter and miss for lack of fuel.

Reinhart Green Flyer.

Reinhart who was assistant pilot on the trip, never had received a commercial flying license prior to his hop-off in the Angeleno, as he had flown only some ten or fifteen hours. The 29 year old mechanic-pilot had barely received his private flying license when he and his friend, Mendell, formed their compact to try for the record.

Mendell, who is 30, had previously passed his 3,500 hour mark in the air.

He formed his partnership with Reinhart when the latter demonstrated a great knack with aviation engines.

Conflicting claims were lodged to the affections of Mendell today. Mrs. Mendell, in a wire from her stopping place at Eufala, Okla., announced arrangements to come west and meet her husband. In the meantime, Mendell was met at the landing ground here by a pretty brunette, Blanche Kazs, a Los Angeles beauty shop girl, to whom he had dropped messages throughout his flight. Mendell's friends say Mrs. Mendell had taken steps toward a divorce.

W. E. Thomas, Wright Aeronautical corporation expert, examined the second hand motor of the Angeleno late this afternoon and pronounced it ready to fly again as soon as reassembled.

BOWLER SAVED FROM ICE AFTER SLIGHT DAMAGE

Berg as Big as a House Drifts on Plane.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PORT BURWELL, Ungava, via Louisburg, N. S., July 12.—THE TRIBUNE plane, 'Untin' Bowler, bound from Chicago to Berlin, will likely be held here until Sunday morning to repair damages to the ship caused by the ice last night. A southwest wind came up this morning and cleared most of the coast ice so the Bowler will be safe from further damage for at least a day.

The Bowler was in perilous circumstances last night when an ice chunk half as big as a house drifted in on the big amphibion, pushing it into its narrow haven. The tide went out, the ice hung on the rocks, and the ship's tail surfaces became hooked over the ice. The anchor supporting the tail assemblage was damaged, and a corner of the rudder crushed.

Tide Floats Ship Clear.

Eskimos piled rocks in the cabin of the ship to relieve the tension on the tail. The wheels were let down and the tail lifted up by ropes lashed at either end to ice chunks. We chopped away at the ice to free the plane, believing it would surely be buckled and torn beyond repair when the tide came in. Fortunately, the rising tide let the Bowler float first. The ice floated out about an hour later. The ship had risen enough to clear the last chunk of ice today. The strut is being straightened and reinforced and the rudder repaired.

The weather here is making a feeble effort to clear today. The fog has risen and the sky is fairly clear. Some of the bad weather that has followed the Bowler for the last week seems to have passed out over Davis strait in the direction of Greenland.

An Inhospitable Place.

A report from Julianehaab, Greenland, yesterday said that fog hung about the southwestern coast. A radio message from there also reports the arrival at Ivigtut of Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, the Swedish flyer, who with Lieut. Apel Floden is flying to America from Sweden. The message said that he awaits the fog to clear before continuing to the American continent. We hope the Sverige doesn't get the bad weather that has kept the Bowler out of the skies for so many days.

Cape Chidley is an inhospitable place for airplanes at this time of the year. There is, of course, no spot within hundreds of miles for a land plane to alight. Landing and handling a seaplane in the water is a great problem, as the experience of THE TRIBUNE plane has shown.

The main harbor at Port Burwell is jammed with ice and the fjords may be utilized only for a brief period. Twice yesterday at low tide warm rains on the Arctic ice precipitated fog.

No Space to Take Off.

Bob Gast yesterday thought of taking off and flying back 100 miles to Chimo, a fur trading settlement forty miles inland from Ungava bay, where the ship would be safe from the ice.

There was no certainty about the fuel supply there, however, and the southwest wind kept the ice driven into the fjord, narrowing the takeoff space. Flying here in the winter is less of a problem, although blizzards and drifting snow frequently obscure the ground.

Government planes equipped with skiis operated out of Port Burwell harbor last winter, flying north, east, and west from the cape to study ice conditions. The ice melts during the latter part of June and forms again in November. During July the broken ice fills the inlet, but during the three months from August until November the water is clear.

A regular commercial air route across the tip of Labrador would necessitate an alternative course south of Ungava bay. Nevertheless, severe conditions would be found during the summer and fall. There the country is less rugged and the planes could avoid the changeable weather about Cape Chidley.

A large plane is, however, unsuited for flying in this country. Save for a few plateaux south of Ungava bay we found no landing spaces along the whole route from Sault Ste. Marie. On the plateaux a landing could likely be made without casualty, but a crack-up would be almost certain. On the other hand, there is an abundance of water, excepting for a stretch of 150 miles between Remi lake and Hanna bay.

Always Within Distance of Water.

The Bowler was never out of gliding distance of a good sized body of water and we have not once used the wheels for a landing on the trip up along Hudson bay from Fort George to Great Whale, and from there to Ungava bay fifteen or twenty lakes could be seen from the Bowler at almost any point on the route. Because this region is unexplored, the lakes do not show on the map.

We pitched our summer clothing into the water today to relieve the confusion of equipment in the cabin. Only a Panama hat was saved. Bob Gast gave it to an Eskimo, who had found Bob after he had disappeared for about two hours in the hills, lost on his way from the ship to the camp. Today the native is the admiration of his people. He passes the camp with the hood of his parka pulled from his head and the big straw hat crushed down over the ears in an incongruous posture.

SHIPS NEAR 'UNTIN' BOWLER'S COURSE

Within a few hundred miles of Port Burwell, where the 'Untin' Bowler has been held by ice and bad weather since Tuesday morning, are a number of ships that might conceivably be called on for aid in case of a forced landing in the water.

The Bowdoin, the craft with which Donald B. MacMillan conducts his arctic explorations in the interest of science, is reported to be about 120 miles south of Cape Chidley. The other ships are of Danish registry, and although they are known to be in the seas surrounding Greenland, the exact location of most of them is uncertain. The spots given them on the map are approximations.

The Hvidbjoren, a Danish navy inspector's ship, is almost surely at Godhavn. The Swordfish and the Sonia, government whalers, usually spend July in Davis strait. The Gustav, the Gertrude Rask and the Brattingsborg are plotted from their last known location several days ago. The mark A represents a few trawlers which customarily ply in the Icelandic region.

O'NEILL PLANE CROSSES BRAZIL; CONTINUES TODAY

PORTO ALEGRE, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, July 12.—The hydroplane Washington of the New York and Buenos Aires company arrived here at 6:15 o'clock this evening, piloted by Capt. O'Neill. With him were Mrs. O'Neill and his secretary, Miss Galbraith—the first women passengers from New York to South America.

O'Neill left Rio de Janeiro this morning at 7 o'clock, arriving at Santos at 9:50 o'clock, leaving an hour later for Florianopolis, arriving there at 1 o'clock. On account of repairs to the carburetor he was delayed until 3:20 p. m. The object of the journey was to find suitable landing places. The plane will leave tomorrow at 6:30 a. m. for Pelotas and Buenos Aires.

The same company's Ford airplane, piloted by N. C. Brown, arrived at noon from Rio de Janeiro. After refueling, the plane left two hours later for Pelotas, where it will await the Washington, and both will proceed to Buenos Aires.

Aviation Notes

Lieuts. W. T. Larson and H. H. Carr of the United States army took off yesterday from France field, Canal Zone, for Kelly field, to chart a possible new air mail route, according to a dispatch from Panama. The army flyers plan to reach the Texas field after a leisurely three day trip.

A Chicago bound mail plane on the Chicago-Minneapolis line, piloted by R. L. Smith of Minneapolis, was forced down in a dense fog a mile west of Wadsworth in the western part of Lake county late Thursday. Although Smith landed his plane without damage, the fog made further flying inadvisable. Two passegers aboard the plane were taken to Waukegan and made the rest of the trip by train. The mail cargo was also sent on to Chicago by train.

Postoffice statistics released yesterday for the month of June indicated an increase over the preceding month of nearly 6,000 pounds in air mail carried. June's poundage, 593,254, constitutes a record, according to the postoffice department. The daily average for June was 19,775 pounds, as compared with 18,950 pounds for May. The Chicago-San Francisco line topped the 24 regularly scheduled routes with 148,487 pounds. The New York-Chicago route was second with 141,104 pounds.

The Southern Star, piloted by Capt. John K. Montgomery and carrying four passengers, arrived at the Santiago, Chile, military airdrome yesterday. American Minister William S. Culbertson and officials gave the flyers a hearty greeting for making the first flight from New York to Santiago.

Stockholm-New York Plane Towed to Ivigtut Harbor

IVIGTUT, Greenland, July 12.—[U.P.]—The Swedish seaplane, Sverige, which landed near here yesterday, was towed to Ivigtut harbor today and made ready for the fourth leg of the flight from Stockholm to New York. Capt. Albin Ahrenberg and his two companions said everything is ready for an early departure.

English Mayoress Pays Her Respects to Hoover

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—The Marchioness of Townshend, mayoress of Lynn, England, paid her respects to President Hoover today. She was accompanied by her son, Lord Townshend. They were presented by Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12.—As a testimonial of the Italian government for the valiant feat of spanning the Atlantic, Gen. Italo Balbo, under secretary of aviation, Sunday afternoon will decorate Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and Roger Q. Williams, pilots of the Pathfinder, with the Italian gold medal for long distance flights.

The two aviators today had a hectic day between social activities and shopping. Before a swirling mass estimated at 20,000 persons in the famous Piazza Colonna tonight they were given a raucous demonstration by the Roman populace. Mr. Williams and Capt. Yancy, standing on the balcony opposite Il Duce's office between Gen. Balbo, Marquis Francesco de Pinedo, noted Italian trans-Atlantic flyer Prince Andrea Boncompagni, governor of Rome, and Alexander C. Kirk, American chargé d'affaires, responded to the Fascist yells and waving of flags in their honor by raising their arms in the Fascist salute.

The aviators spent today hobnobbing with Roman nobility. They came to the Piazza Colonna demonstration from an elegant tea given by the Prince and Princess Boncompagni in the governor's palace on Capitoline Hill, where Roman aristocrats drank their health in champagne and punch.

Plan Los Angeles-New York Round Trip Hop in 32 Hrs.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—Herbert J. Fahy tonight was preparing to take off on a round trip ocean to ocean flight from Los Angeles to New York and back, in quest of a new airplane speed record of 32 hours for 5,102 miles. Fahy estimates that it will take him 15 hours to land in New York and 17 hours to fly back. Fahy is holder of the solo nonrefueling endurance record.

Glides Majestically Over Lake Constance.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, July 12.—The Do X, the world's greatest seaplane, weighing 34 tons and able to carry 120 people, took the air this morning from Lake Constance. It flew smoothly and rapidly and maneuvered with an ease that allayed the last fear that nature would down man's high soaring ambitious dream.

At first the Dornier works planned a regular launching, similar to that of liners, with champagne and flowers, but at the last minute Dr. Claudius Dornier decided to give the ship a first tryout before the men who built it and a small circle of friends. Early this morning, when the mist was still veiling the Alpine peaks in the background, the ship was taken to the runway.

Ship Glides Over Lake.

At 7:30 o'clock Dr. Dornier gave the first signal and the auxiliary motor started the propellers. After ten minutes with all propellers whirring and glittering in the sunshine, Dr. Dornier gave a second signal and amid the hurrahs of the men who had built the machine and their proud families in the background, the Do X slid majestically into blue Lake Constance.

Takes Air in 30 Seconds.

The sound of the motors spread to the nearby villages. The signal was passed to the neighboring towns and in a short while thousands were lined along the shore.

At 9:40 a. m. Dr. Dornier, satisfied with the maneuvers on the water, gave the signal for the Do X to take the air. In exactly thirty seconds it was off the water and soaring easily. It repeated the maneuver several times until Dr. Dornier gave the order to return to port.

Longer Flight Monday.

Monday the Do X will start its first longer flight. Dr. Dornier has ordered a general two day's rest for all his men to recover "from the strain of the emotions" of the last day's work on the leviathan of the air.

While the south of Germany and Switzerland were witnessing the start of the world's largest seaplane, Berlin saw the arrival of the "world's smallest dirigible, the DFN-28." It is a semi-rigid airship of the Pareseval Naatz type, of 1,700 cubic meter capacity.

TWO FLYERS KILLED WHEN THEIR PLANE BURNS AND CRASHES

Woodbridge, N. J., July 12.—[Special.]—A pilot and a mechanic were killed near here late today when their Spartan biplane caught fire in the air and crashed as they were endeavoring to make a forced landing on the links of the Locust Grove Golf club. Those killed were Carl Milkreit, pilot, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Pryor Rourke, mechanic of Westfield, N. J.

The two men had left the new airport at Westfield, N. J., where both were employed, shortly after 5 p. m., for a short flight for their own amusement. They had proceeded only a few miles toward Rahway, when the plane nosed down, as though Milkreit sought a safe spot for an emergency landing on the golf links.

Two caddies who had been watching say the plane suddenly was enveloped in flames. It plunged into the clump of woods. The caddies summoned help from the clubhouse, but the heat from the burning plane was so great that no one could approach it until the flames subsided.

Aviation experts surmise that leaking gasoline may have been ignited by the plane's exhaust.

Armed Bandits Take His $200 Vacation Money

Norman Harght, owner of a radio store at 1616 North Kedzie avenue, will take no vacation this year. He had $200, saved for a short outing, in his pockets yesterday when four armed bandits entered his store, marched him and a customer into a rear room and took the money and a camera he had bought to take on his vacation. They also obtained $150 from the cash drawer and $76 from Charles Martin, 1147 North Sacramento avenue, the customer. Mrs. May Doyle, 3200 West North avenue, another customer, was not molested.

3 ROBBERS BEAT VICTIM FOR HOUR, FAIL TO GET GEMS

For nearly an hour yesterday Wm. er von Buelow, a jewelry manufac- er with offices in the Pickwick ing in Park Ridge, endured the ter of three thugs who sought by violence to have him open his safe, contain uncut stones worth thousands of dollars. The robbers brought a sledge for the loot, but finally fled with only $30 in cash.

Von Buelow, 42 years old and athletic, was beset by the trio as he walked down the second floor corridor to his office in the rear. In a brief but violent struggle he was subdued by a blackjack and regained consciousness to find himself bound hand and foot, lashed to a radiator and gagged.

Then the abuse began. They would beat him for a moment, then tell him to write the combination of the safe, but Von Buelow shook his head in refusal each time. At last, when the clock indicated 7:45 a. m. Von Buelow nodded his head affirmatively. When ungagged, he informed his tormentors that the safe had a time lock which would spring at 8 o'clock, adding the fiction that two policemen always came to stand guard. The robbers then took $30 from his pockets and fled.

FIRES SHOTGUN WHILE CLEANING IT; KILLS NEGRO

Otto Walker, 27 years old, 108 Lyons street, Evanston, colored, was fatally wounded when a charge from a double barreled shotgun was accidentally fired into his abdomen by Vandy Arnold, also colored, 23 years old, 1837 Brown avenue, Evanston, while the latter was cleaning the weapon in his home. When the police were notified of the shooting they took Arnold, his wife, and two other Negroes into custody for questioning.

Arnold told the police that he was cleaning the gun and forgot that a shell had been left in one of the barrels.

SKY HARBOR
THE FINEST FLYING SCHOOL

Every facility for thorough flying training is offered at Sky Harbor, the model airport of the Middle West.

This modern school offers individual instruction by Government licensed Transport Pilots who have been carefully selected for their experience, character and ability to teach.

The "FLEET" training planes, similar to Army student planes, are noted for reliability and safety. Daily inspection insures perfect condition.

CUNEO REVEALED BENEFICIARY OF SKYSCRAPER LAW

1st 440 Ft. Permit Given to 60 Story Project.

John F. Cuneo, head of the Cuneo Press, who contemplates erecting a sixty-story tower at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Ran-dolph street, was interested in ob-taining passage of an amendment to the zoning law which will permit the main section of his proposed sky-scraper to soar 176 feet higher than it could under the old law. The amended law is under attack of Chi-cago's architectural societies.

Mr. Cuneo's interest in the amend-ment was revealed by Attorney Bar-ret Hodes, zoning expert under for-mer Mayor Dever and special assist-ant corporation counsel for the pres-ent zoning board of appeals in a num-ber of cases in the Supreme court. The lawyer, who successfully urged aldermanic action on the amendment, will be represented a number of build-ers in the matter. He refused to give their names but admitted that Mr. Cuneo was one of the group.

Cuneo Permit Is First.

The first permit obtained to take ad-vantage of the new law was issued, shortly after the measure became ef-fective, for the construction of the Cuneo tower. Under it the main sec-tion of the building can be construct-ed 440 feet, or nearly 40 stories straight up from the sidewalk before the setback towers begin, instead of 12 to 24 stories as formerly when the limit was 264 feet.

The amendment which affects cer-tain parts of an extended loop area, has been characterized as the most important change made in the zoning law in years. Though considered of great importance, its passage through the council committee on buildings and zoning and through the council was accomplished without much dis-cussion.

No signature is on the original of the amendment in the city hall rec-ords to show who introduced it and Ald. William R. O'Toole, chairman of the zoning committee, said he did not know who brought it in.

Alderman Recalls Hearing.

"Amendments often come to the committee from the building depart-ment and the zoning board of ap-peals," said Ald. O'Toole. "Attorney Hodes talked to me about it and I understood that there were two other cases similar to that of Mr. Cuneo. There was a hearing in the committee on it, though there was not much dis-cussion."

In a letter sent to the city council, Alfred Granger, president of the Illi-nois Society of Architects, urged the repeal of the measure pointing out that the change will have a disastrous effect on buildings in the loop. It per-mits the placing of a permanent wall around part of the loop, placing the lower structures in a well from which light and air will be excluded, accord-ing to Mr. Granger.

NEW AIR YACHT REACHES CITY

WORKS ON INVENTION 9 YEARS; KILLS SELF AS BACKERS QUIT HIM

Omaha, Neb., July 12.—(AP)—Before committing suicide today, Alfred Cam-eran, 37, who for nine years had been working on a mysterious superheat and power invention is believed to have destroyed the fruits of his re-search.

His backers, who had advanced him financial aid, but recently had refused to do so, said the inventor twice had visited and removed papers from a safety deposit vault yesterday. There was evidence in his room, they said, that he had destroyed all his papers before turning on the gas.

Cameron this spring had told his backers he had talked to officials of the Eastman Kodak company and others, and that his patents were about to be issued. He always had been re-luctant to explain his work. Secrecy, he said, was needed to avert the pos-sibility of some one stealing his ideas.

Cameron left three notes, one ad-dressed to his backers and "the world in general," read in part:

"I am sure I am on the verge of success, could I have a little more time in which to study. I am sure there would be success and reward for everybody.

"The strain has become intolerable and this seems to be the only way out.

"My safe deposit box will give full details. I believe what I am doing is best for every one concerned."

Another note indicated that Mrs. E. Z. Russell, 19, Chevychase, Md., was his sister; and a third was addressed to C. Russell, Cornhusker hotel, Lin-coln, Neb., authorizing Russell to open the safety deposit box.

WILSON HEIRESS WILL RECOVER, DOCTOR PREDICTS

Crisis Past for Auto Crash Victim.

Miss Dorothy Wilson, daughter of Milton Wilson of Pasadena, Cal., who was critically injured in an automo-bile crash on Wednesday, will recover. This was announced yesterday by Dr. Marcus H. Hobart, in general charge at the Evanston hospital.

Dr. Hobart said that a second blood transfusion will not be made unless there is a relapse, which is not con-sidered likely. He expressed hope that Miss Wilson will not be permanently crippled. Care is being taken to as-sure proper knitting of fractured bones.

Miss Helen Hertz, 19 year old daugh-ter of John Hertz, retired head of the Yellow Cab company, whose automo-bile struck the Wilson car, called at the hospital yesterday and left flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Hertz also called. Physi-cians would allow no one to visit Miss Wilson except her grandmother, Mrs. E. Crane Wilson, and a cousin, Miss Eleanor Pier of Greenwich, Conn., who arrived yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wilson will arrive from Cali-fornia today.

Doctor Dies of Injuries.

Dr. W. W. Lee, 45 years old, 817 North Dearborn street, an osteopathic physician with offices at 55 East Washington street, died at the Wash-ington Park hospital last night of in-juries received when an automobile in which he was riding early yesterday overturned at 57th street and South Parkway.

This death and five others during the day raised the 1929 Cook county motor toll to 430. The other victims:

Harry Wadjak, 7 years old, 720 Temple street. Fatally injured when struck by an automobile as he stopped to pick up a toy pistol at Chicago ave-nue and Ada street.

Ulrich Bourke, 60 years old, of the Lexington hotel. Fatally injured when struck by an automobile driven by Richard McManus, 8041 Chappel avenue, at the outer drive and 23d street. McManus was not held.

Peter Heck, 68 years old, 2251 North Menard avenue. Died of injuries suf-fered on July 6 when he was struck at Austin avenue near Grand avenue.

Dies in Indiana Crash.

Injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile on the West Dunes highway caused the death yes-terday of Walter Lustka, 36 years old, 1500 South 49th court, Cicero, in a hospital at Michigan City, Ind.

Charles T. Wood, 56 years old, 1311 Main street, Evanston, chief engi-neer of the Evanston filtration plant, was seriously injured last night when his car overturned after striking an-other driven by John A. Bairnsfather, 28 years old, 804 Sheridan road, Evan-ston, at Main street and Asbury ave-nue, in the suburb.

Mrs. Vera Brodfueher, 31 years old, 2315 Park avenue, Evanston, received internal injuries when the car in which she was riding with her hus-band, Oscar, was overturned by one driven by L. J. Hayes, a Winnetka contractor, at Lawndale and Isabella avenues, Evanston. Hayes was re-leased in $1,200 bonds after being charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

WAUKEGAN JAILS CHICAGO COP AS A RESORT OWNER

Fred Hoffman, 35 years old, mem-ber of a Chicago detective bureau squad, who is alleged to have planned to devote his furlough to launching a Lake county vice resort, was locked up in the county jail at Waukegan last night to serve out a $500 fine at a rate of $5 a day, Deputy Police Commissioner Stege ordered him sus-pended from the force.

Hoffman, a policeman for four years, left on furlough on July 1. A few days later cards were circulated pri-vately in Waukegan, announcing that the Sheridan Athletic club on Sheri-dan road, two miles north of Wauke-gan, was open for business.

Early yesterday a squad from the office of State's Attorney A. V. Smith raided the resort. Hoffman, his part-ner, J. W. Sewley of Waukegan, and two Chicago women, Jennie Forsman and Esthyrn Roberts, were arrested. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold J. Talbett at North Chicago, Hoffman and Bewley were fined $500 each and the women were fined $200 each. None was able to pay the fine.

CONVICT TWO ON FORGERY CHARGE; GET 1 TO 5 YEARS

Agnus Mochiek, alleged master mind, and Morris Bogoslowski were found guilty of conspiracy by a jury in Judge George Fred Rush's court last night and sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary.

After overruling a motion for a new trial, Judge Rush granted a mo-tion of Assistant State's Attorney C. Ingland Brooks to raise the defend-ants' bonds to $10,000 pending the outcome of an appeal. As neither Mo-chiek nor Bogoslowski could supply the additional bond they were taken into custody. Their attorney was given 30 days to file a bill of excep-tions.

The verdict of guilty was the sec-ond returned against the two men on a charge of conspiracy to forge the signature of Thomas J. Gatziolis, a commission merchant, to a $925 check. The Appellate court reversed the ver-dict of the first trial a year ago. Jo-seph Goldstein, now awaiting sepa-rate trial on the same charge, was the principal witness against Mochiek and Bogoslowski.

Negro in Stolen Auto Slain by Police After Chase

James Gregg, 32 years old, a Negro, was shot and fatally wounded last night when he leaped from a sto-len automobile after a chase and opened a gun battle with a police squad at 35th street and Indiana avenue. Police halted the car, with two occupants, at 35th street and Calumet avenue, and after a pursuit of several blocks crowd-ed it to the curb. Both Negroes leaped out and one escaped. The other stopped the five several shots at the officers and was shot by Policeman John Dunn. Gregg died in Lakeside hospital.

TAKES AUTO FROM DRIVER.

Robbed a motorist, Frank Langdon, 4321 West 31st street, as he drove north in Peoria street at 62d street, a pair of highwaymen took him from the car at pistol points and drove away in the machine yesterday.

TWO POLICEMEN SUSPENDED IN HOLDUP INQUIRY

Detectives Daniel Allman and Jos-eph Hennessey, members of the Grand Crossing police district "cleanup squad," were suspended by Commis-sioner Russell yesterday after he re-ceived official reports of the alleged robbery or shakedown of William Christian, 1006 East 93rd street, a sa-loonkeeper. Hennessey was still at large last night and a message was sent out on the police wires announc-ing that he is wanted for robbery.

While the commissioner was issuing his suspension orders Judge Edgar Jonas in the felony court, before whom Allman was arraigned, was be-ing told by prosecutors that two women already had made an effort to fix the case. The women, the court was informed, asked Christian to drop the prosecution and he would get his money back. The case was continued to July 18 for further investigation.

Charles Fisher, volunteer informer for the cleanup crew, also charged with robbery and impersonating an officer, had his case continued until the same day. Both he and Allman were released on bonds. The cleanup squad won its title in the recent cam-paign against liquor law violators in the Grand Crossing district.

Mother's Help to Sister Costs Daughter's Life

Six year old Marjorie Clark died of diphtheria last night in her home at Zion, Ill., a victim of her mother's charity. When the three children of Mrs. Graydon Hammond contracted the disease a week ago Mrs. Clark, her twin sister, undertook to nurse them, since the mother was separated from her husband and was employed. The eldest of the Hammond children, 5 year old Helen, died Thursday night and Mrs. Clark's little girl followed last night. Two younger children of the Clarks are critically ill, and Health Commissioner Henry M. Blanks is closely watching the cases for fear of an epidemic.

Judge Issues Warrant for Woman with Forty Dogs

Judge Philip Finnegan issued a bench warrant yesterday for the ar-rest of Miss Amalia Ludwig, 58 years old, when she failed to appear in Des Plaines street court to answer a charge of cruelty to animals. Her neighbors complained a month ago that she was beating and starving forty dogs she had housed in her dwelling at 737 West Monroe street. Arraigned two weeks ago, she won a continuance on her pledge to give the dogs to the Anti-Cruelty society.

THREE WOMEN ILL; SPEED UP TESTS ON REFRIGERANTS

Escaping Gas Endangers Trio in Apartment.

Experiments with types of mechani-cal refrigerators in small kitchenette apartments to prevent accidents from gas used as a refrigerant were being pushed yesterday by Health Commis-sioner Kegel after he learned of the illness of three women who inhaled sulphur dioxide which is alleged to have leaked from the refrigerator in their south side apartment.

While the health department of-ficials were investigating the latest cases of poisoning attributed to es-caping refrigerator gas notification was received that seven persons had been made ill supposedly from eating lemon cream pie bought at a bakery. Samples of the food were ordered into the department for an analysis.

Three Women Made Ill.

The leaking sulphur dioxide gas in the apartment of Mrs. E. A. Rey-nolds, 6203 Kenwood avenue, caused the three women to suffer sharp pains and nausea, the health officials were told. With Mrs. Reynolds in the apartment were Miss Varna Fiesner and Miss Kathlyn Carney. Mrs. Rey-nolds is a niece of Dr. Karl Meyer, chief of staff of the Cook County hos-pital.

An assistant in the health depart-ment sent out to investigate the cause of the women's illness, reported to Dr. Kegel that they were poisoned from inhaling sulphur dioxide, which had escaped from the refrigerator.

Women Escape to Street.

Mrs. Reynolds awoke early in the morning gasping for air. She aroused her two companions and the three managed to descend to the street. Neighbors summoned Dr. N. B. Co-lumbo of the South Shore hospital staff and he worked over the women for two hours before they were pro-nounced out of danger.

Dr. Columbo told the police that he was nearly overcome by the gas when he attempted to enter the apart-ment.

"The refrigerator coil must have broken Thursday night," said Mrs. Reynolds later, "because we noticed an unpleasant odor in the house when we went to bed."

Kegel Plans Experiments.

Dr. Kegel's experiments, he said yesterday, will include the use of three apartments, in which will be placed animals whose reaction to poi-sons is similar to that of humans. The apartments will be equipped with refrigerators from which gas will be allowed to leak. From the observa-tions made Dr. Kegel expects to draw conclusions which will be valuable in the negotiations for an ordinance to regulate the installation and mainte-nance of the refrigerators.

At a conference with ten of his as-sistants Dr. Kegel compared drafts of an ordinance prepared by the health department with the one offered by the National Electrical Manufacturers' association.

"Our ordinance is strong on health protection while that of the industry embodies mainly the viewpoint of the chemists and engineers and provides for mechanical safeguards," said Dr. Kegel after the conference.

"There would be no use in having an ordinance at all unless it adequately safeguards the public from repetitions of these poisonings. Any ordinance adopted should include all the provi-sions in the health department plan."

Seven Poisoned by Pie.

The food poisoning cases developed after a gathering at the home of Clarence A. Martenson, 3258 North Le Claire avenue, at which the pie, procured from the Carlson bakery, 3906 North Cicero avenue, was served. Those who became ill the next day besides Mr. Carlson were his wife, Mildred; her sister, Mrs. Esther Smith, 5723 Sunnyside avenue, and her mother, Mrs. Amelia Johnson. Mrs. Smith's husband, George; a roomer, Clarence Kintzle, and a friend, Mrs. Esther Peterson, also became ill.

BOYS TO TESTIFY AGAINST COP IN BALL GAME TRIAL

Six boy baseball players will appear before Judge John H. Lyle in the Boys' court this morning to tell how their game at Halsted and 30th streets was interrupted on Wednesday when Sergt. Frank Green, a detective squad leader, arrested them on charges of disorderly conduct.

Green is to be arraigned on a charge of false arrest brought by Judge Lyle on Thursday. When the judge heard the boys' story he criticized the prac-tice of general roundups among young boys and ordered Green brought into court.

Charles A. Quinn, warrant clerk at the South State street court, was sen-tenced to ten days in jail for contempt of court when he refused to issue a warrant for Green. Judge Lyle at a hearing yesterday, however, accepted a motion to vacate the sentence.

TEN SEA SCOUTS WIN PASSAGE TO LIVERPOOL FETE

Through persistent hurdling of a rigid merit system ten Chicago Sea Scouts have won their passage across the Atlantic to the international Boy Scout jamboree to be held in Liver-pool, England, the last of this month. The occasion will be the 21st birthday of the Scout movement.

The boys' expenses will be paid by thirteen Chicago business leaders: Philip L. Reed, Harold McCormick, Eugene Thayer, R. Douglas Stuart, John J. Bryant, L. E. Goddard, Bar-ret Wendell, Frederick Rawson, John Borden, Eames MacVeagh, Howard F. Gillette and Walter W. Head.

The ten boys are Albert A. and Harold F. Collinet, D. A. Floreen, Henry Drogemuller, George Gruner, Elmer Haussen, Sunner Sommerfield, Lester Reith, Ross Utter, and Louis Olaff.

Gun Toting Man Threatens Henderson, Labor Minister

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Armed police are on guard at the Ermins hotel, Westminster, where the secretary of state for foreign affairs, Arthur Hen-derson, and his wife are stopping. A man, whose identity has not yet been established, called last night and asked to see Mr. Henderson. When told that he was not in he is alleged to have drawn a revolver from his pocket which he fingered, declaring, "I will see him later all right." An hour later another stranger called and asked to see Mr. Henderson, but went away when informed he could not see him.

Jack Epstein, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory; Joseph Marsch, confidence game, sen-tenced to 1 to 10 years in the peniten-tiary; Louis Braverman, robbery, sen-tenced to 1 year to life in the peniten-tiary by Judge Marcus Kavanagh.

George J. Hollander, who married the boss' daughter while employed as the family chauffeur, and then found his wife cut off from her father's wealth as a result, was yesterday sen-tenced to 1 to 14 years in the peni-tentiary because he freed himself from the marriage bonds by perjury. He was found guilty by a jury in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court and the judge immediately over-ruled a motion for a new trial and imposed sentence.

Mrs. Marion Taylor Hollander, daughter of the late William Henry Taylor, wealthy Pennsylvania coal op-erator, prosecuted the perjury charge against her husband. He had made charges of infidelity against her in a divorce suit which was heard with-out contest last fall by Judge Stanley Klarkowski. She charged that he had committed perjury in making the charges and yesterday a jury sub-stantiated her contention.

Remarried After Divorce.

Hollander, who graduated from the chauffeur class to become a mathe-matics instructor and later an elec-trical engineer, remarried after the divorce was granted.

The first and second Mrs. Hollanders glared at each other, while Hollander on the witness stand tried to convince the jury that he had actually seen his wife with an Otto Lange in an apartmeant at 4431 South Trumbull avenue. He described a love scene—his wife dressed in a silk kimono.

"Did you get excited when you saw this?" queried Assistant State's At-torney George Lavin on cross-exami-nation.

"Yes, and so would you," replied the witness.

"Lie," Former Heiress Says.

During it all the former heiress, who was cut off with a small monthly al-lowance, declared repeatedly, "It's a lie."

"Didn't the Taylor family give you money from time to time so that you could educate yourself?" was another question.

"No, they hated me," he replied.

The marriage of Hollander and the Taylor girl in 1920 was somewhat of a war romance. The wedding followed his discharge from a Washington gov-ernment hospital after an illness con-tracted while in a government camp.

Norway's Crown Prince and Bride Rescue Two Men

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

OSLO, July 12.—Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and his bride of a few months, the former Princess Martha of Sweden, today saved two men from drowning. The royal couple, who had been vacationing at their summer villa near Oslo, saw a small sailing vessel in distress. The crown prince and princess hurried to their boat and with the crown prince pulling at the oars, rowed close enough for the princess to throw a rope to the crew.

England Faces Water Shortage; Rainfall Sparse

LONDON, July 12.—England faces the danger of a grave water shortage unless heavy rainfalls occur in the near future. In certain Lancashire and Yorkshire towns the water re-serve is disquietingly low. Several reservoirs contain supplies sufficient for less than three weeks. The situa-tion is so serious that the ministry of health today decided to issue an im-mediate appeal to consumers general-ly to practice water economy due to the abnormally small rainfall this year, and is also considering legisla-tion providing for a more economical use of the supply.

FAILED BANK'S DEPOSITORS TELL OF LOST SAVINGS

Million of Assets Hidden After Crash.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The story of a $5,000,000 bank failure and the tragedy of the lives it touched, was told today at two hearings into the affairs of the defunct private bank of Clarke brothers. It was a story of intrigue, financial juggling, wrecked ambitions and sudden poverty, prefaced by a statement that the partners in the bank transferred more than a million dollars to their wives and families before the crash and climaxed by the sight of two of the bankers climbing into a prison van alongside a drug addict, to pass the night in federal jail because they could not post $25,000 bail.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle conducted the hearing before Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter. Destitute women depositors sobbed their pitiful tales of lost life savings. The Tuttle inquiry was to fix criminal responsibility for the failure.

Two Hearings On.

The three Clarke brothers, James R., Philip and Hudson, and their partner, John F. F. Bouker, were testifying at the same hour only a few blocks away at a hearing before John L. Llye, referee in bankruptcy. The second hearing was concerned with the assets and affairs of the bank.

The two who went to prison late this afternoon were Philip and Hudson Clarke. James R. Clarke, senior partner, and John Bouker put up their $25,000 bond yesterday after all four had been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of fraud and intent to defraud.

While the bankers were refusing to answer questions today about their affairs, and, in some cases, were denying they had any assets, Mr. Tuttle made the statement concerning the transfer of a fortune to their families. Later George J. Mintzer, assistant United States attorney, was called to corroborate Mr. Tuttle's assertions regarding the alleged transfer of funds.

Tells Where Money Went.

Mintzer said he was present when the conference with the Clarke brothers and Bouker was held in the federal building. He swore he heard the brothers tell Mr. Tuttle that previous to the crash they had transferred hundreds of thousands of dollars to their wives and relatives. Mintzer said a Mr. Zalkin of the law firm of Zalkin & Cohen, who drew up the bank's petition in bankruptcy, was also present at the conference and there told him the four partners had transferred property and money totaling $1,000,000 to their families. Zalkin told the bankers that unless they returned the property and cash his firm would withdraw from the case. Since then, according to Montzer, the law firm has severed its connection with the bankers.

Little headway was made at the hearing in which the bankers testified. James R. Clarke refused to answer a long series of questions addressed to him by William St. John Tuser, attorney for the Irving Trust company, receiver for the defunct bank, doing so on advice of his own counsel, Ludlow S. Fowler. His refusals all were made on the ground an answer might incriminate him. Other members of the banking firm were equally reticent.

Banker Harried on Stand.

Clarke, an elderly, gray haired man, with lines of worry creasing his face, showed emotion only once. The lawyer questioning him said:

"I understand you and your wife hold valuable property. Are you willing to turn this in for the benefit of the creditors?"

Clarke gulped and started to answer, but was quieted by a signal from his attorney. Then he turned toward the referee and said:

"We are willing to give our lives—we want to give every help possible for the benefit of creditors. We would be working 100 per cent with the receiver if this criminal action had not been started. We can not answer questions that might incriminate us."

The senior Clarke admitted owning 70 per cent of the bank stock and said his partners each owned 10 per cent. He said he had four automobiles and "some stickpins and rings," which he would turn over to the creditors.

Wife Has Property.

It was established that Mrs. Clarke owned a house in Atlantic Highlands, that the Clarkes owned a home in Yonkers in which valuable paintings were hanging and that Mrs. Clarke owned "other property," but question after question failed to bring any real information as to value or as to the reported ownership of a large amount of bonds and stocks.

Meanwhile in a federal court room those who suffered most by the crash were telling their troubles to Commissioner Cotter.

Louis Workstell declared he had been victimized in the last few days of the bank's existence through the manipulation of a note for $1,000, which he signed under the pretense that in doing so he was preserving his savings account of $5,000 intact until interest was due early in July.

"Hudson Clarke showed he how I would save my interest," he testified, "but the other day I got a letter from the United States bank saying Clarke Bros. had discounted my $1,000 note instead of putting in my savings account and now I owe the United States bank $1,000 in addition to losing my $5,000. I am paying the note off $10 a week."

Widow Loses $20,000.

Mrs. Della McDonald, whose husband died a year ago, told of losing $20,000. She was dressed in black and is more than 60 years old.

"I was going to buy a house with the money," she said, "but when I went there to get it everything was gone."

"Have you any other means of support," Mr. Tuttle asked.

"I guess I can go to work," Mrs. McDonald's voice faltered, "but I'm old—I don't know," she concluded.

BUSINESS ACTS TO UNSNARL ROW OVER PARK BONDS

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday appointed a committee to determine measures for avoiding further delay in the suit now holding up the $15,500,000 south park bond issues, approved at the election of June 6, 1928. The action is being taken to speed completion of the lake front drives, Soldiers' field and other improvements considered essential to the success of the 1933 World's Fair.

Col. Thomas S. Hammond, temporary chairman of the executive committee, announced that the association has no intention of taking sides in the legal battle. The committee is to assume the part of a neutral intermediary and attempt to propose an arrangement satisfactory to the contestants. The committee is headed by Joseph K. Brittain, former president of the Chicago real estate board, and includes William P. Sidley and Warner G. Baird.

Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan recently signed a decree in favor of the park commissioners after a recount of the ballots. Attorney Hayes McKinney, representing the objectors, has stated that he will appeal the decree to the Supreme court. An appeal would delay the projects until next December.

Woman's Club Will Lease Theater for Sunday Shows

Rockford, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—By a vote of 421 to 185 the Rockford Woman's club has approved a proposition to lease its theater for Sunday performances. The club theater has suffered in competition with the others which have Sunday shows. A five-year lease of the theater has been given a local company.

REINSTATED

Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder.

MAGRUDER, NAVY CRITIC, PUT BACK ON ACTIVE LIST

Will Command Fleet Base Force in Pacific.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Charles P. Magruder, whose charges that the navy department was run on wasteful lines created a sensation in naval and congressional circles two years ago, was ordered reassigned to active duty today after spending twenty-one months on enforced vacation.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams announced that the fiery rear admiral would assume command of the fleet base force, with headquarters at San Pedro, Cal., on Aug. 1. Orders to this effect have already been directed to Magruder's home in North Carolina, where the rear admiral has spent most of his time since relieved as commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard and placed on waiting orders by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, in November, 1927.

Congressional Pressure Factor.

Secretary Adams acted after consultation with President Hoover and virtually every high ranking officer of the navy department. Although some naval officers believed that Rear Admiral Magruder should have been placed on furlough, President Hoover took the position that the rear admiral should be reassigned to duty.

The fact that congressional pressure to have the Magruder case finally disposed of has been growing in recent months is regarded as one of the major factors in removing the rear admiral from the waiting list.

A world war hero, Rear Admiral Magruder, startled his associates and the high naval command two years ago with a series of magazine articles in which he raked the administration for wasting the taxpayers' money. He charged that the country was spending 300 million dollars for a 200 million dollar navy, was maintaining superfluous navy bases, and that the navy was overorganized and tangled in red tape.

Refuses to Retract.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur immediately took exception to the charges of administration extravagance and demanded an explanation. Magruder not only refused to retract his charges, which he asserted were true, but amplified them. A mass of correspondence developed as the rear admiral sought to justify his charges.

Secretary Wilbur finally ended the argument by relieving the rear admiral of his command and placing him on the waiting order list for an indefinite stay. Resentment against the treatment of Magruder roused congressional denunciation of the navy's gag rule. Magruder was called before the house naval affairs committee by its chairman, Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.]. Before this committee, Magruder amplified his charge that the navy department maintains too many navy bases and asserted money could be saved if several of them were scrapped.

Rear Admiral Magruder still has more than two years to serve before he retires on account of age. He will succeed Rear Admiral S. E. W. Kittelle, the officer next below him on the navy list, in command of the fleet base force.

BAD LOANS CAUSE BANK TO CLOSE AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, July 12.—(AP)—The Pan-American Bank of California, with commercial assets of $2,280,800 and savings deposits of $2,217,123, closed its doors today under orders of Will C. Wood, state superintendent of banks. Bad loans and a $15,000 monthly rental of banking quarters were given as the principal reason for the failure.

The bank has about 19,000 depositors.

Two Florida Banks Fail.

Daytona Beach, Fla., July 12.—(AP)—The Merchants Bank and Trust company and the Atlantic Bank and Trust company here closed today. Runs also were made on the Daytona Beach Bank and Trust company and the First National bank, the other two financial institutions here, but they were able to meet the demands of depositors' withdrawals.

BILLBOARD EVIL KEEPS PACE WITH TRAFFIC GROWTH

More Cars, but Less Scenery Is Result.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

Coincident with the extension outward from Chicago of facilities for an increased volume of automobile traffic the area of intensive disfiguration of the rural landscape by billboards is also expanding in all directions.

A well defined rule, based on traffic volume, governs the intrusion of signboards into the natural rural scenery, it appears. As the heavy car movement expands into neighboring territory the crop of boards spreads also. It may be conceded that one of the impelling motives for the ranging of motorists outside the signboard zone immediately surrounding the city is to regain a clear view of the natural scenery.

Safety Also Perfied.

Not only are esthetic considerations violated by the setting up of signs of large proportions in scenic backgrounds, but those of safety are disregarded in the location of many a large advertisement. On Cook county highways the number of boards seems to be increasing. It is certain that along the state roads within a fifty mile radius many additions to landscape spoilage have been made this summer.

Many road intersections with clear views otherwise have been transformed into death traps and traffic menaces by boards erected near the intersections in such a manner as to cut down the range of vision.

The preferred location for signs seems to be just at the approach of an intersection, where automobiles are slowed down for better control. However, the placing of a board at such a location immediately creates a multiple hazard to traffic and defeats the purpose of its owners, because it necessitates double alertness and concentration on the part of the driver.

Fight for Scenic Purity.

Axel Lonnquist, Chicago realty dealer, has been at the head of a militant movement to suppress signboards along the country highways for two or three years past. He assumed the position of champion of the rights of motorists to scenic purity in the face of the fact that real estate men generally have proved to be among the boldest offenders in the use of this form of maladornment.

"There appears to be an increase of the public nuisance of the billboard in other than commercial locations in cities and towns," he said yesterday. "At one time it was thought that there might be self regulation by the outdoor advertising interests and that those who use the boards might see the harm that was being done.

"But now both the outdoor advertisers and those who are fighting against the practice are agreed that it can be stopped only through control created by legal process.

Some Progress Made.

"In Cook county we have made some progress. After a year of work we have obtained written obligations from the owners of all property fronting on the new Elgin highway into Evanston to keep their premises free from signboards. As the property abutting the highway is largely farm acreage, the assurances promise freedom from this sort of disfiguration for an area as extensive as a motorist's range of vision.

"In dislodging existing boards on the county roads we have not been so successful, but we are so certain that common sentiment among motorists is clearly against the presence of such signs along the rural highways that I believe we will get effective results within a comparatively short time."

Mr. Lonnquist's committee of the Chicago real estate board expects to continue active campaigning against billboards, both in Cook county and in the surrounding counties, by holding meetings of all those who are interested in road beautification and preservation of natural scenery.

MacDONALD AND DAWES HOLD NEW NAVAL CUT TALK

French Resent Charges of Being Warlike.

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 12.—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes discussed with Premier MacDonald again today for an hour the plans for promotion of naval limitations and reduction. It is understood the talk had to do with matters of procedure for approaching the problem.

At the American embassy here it is said consistently that any announcement of progress must come from Washington. What is believed to be a semi-official statement was published in this afternoon's papers saying:

"With regard to naval disarmament, it is understood that those immediately concerned have remained in close touch ever since the preliminary meeting between the prime minister and the American ambassador in Scotland. Conversations between Mr. MacDonald and Gen. Dawes have also been continued."

Says France Leads in Peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—Every practical measure which has been taken since the war for the promotion of peace has been originally instigated by France, according to the semi-official Temps, which today complains bitterly that foreign countries accuse France of bolstering militarism and imperialism each time it makes a political move.

"It was French diplomacy which was the most powerful contribution to the elaboration of the Geneva protocol in 1924, which has remained a dead letter due to England's opposition. It was the politics of Aristide Briand, foreign minister, which made the Locarno peace pact possible. It was the initiative of M. Briand which brought about the signing of a pact against war.

"And only today it is France's sacrifices which is permitting Europe to envisage liquidation of the war questions during the coming conference of governments. In fact, it has been thought that France has been responsible for all that has been usefully undertaken to the present time in establishing a fecund peace policy."

Hits England's "Bad Faith."

The Temps complains of "England's bad faith in insisting that the governments conference be held in London because Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and the cabinet members are unable to leave their duties. This excuse was not brought up when it was a question of the Labor prime minister going to the United States during the first month of his administration, nor is it mentioned in connection with the prime minister and Arthur Henderson, secretary of state for foreign affairs, attending the league of nations assembly meeting in Geneva in September."

The official journal also complains of the Germans' opposition to M. Briand's Utopian scheme of a United States of Europe before the plan has even been officially announced.

Controller Balks at Bank Depository.

and city funds are distinct and separate, the Breen opinion said:

"Where the council has failed to designate any place as a depository for school funds you are at liberty to use your own discretion or to follow the direction of the board of education as to what bank or banks the said funds may be deposited in."

By this time, telephones were buzzing and the various officials were scurrying about the city hall and school board. Mr. Schmidt became the target for a fire of questions and criticism. Several hasty conferences were called and adjourned. Finally at 3 p. m. Mr. Schmidt invited every one concerned to assemble in the office of Attorney Miller at 29 South La Salle street to talk things over.

Officials at Conference.

Present at the conference were Schmidt, Caldwell, Miller, Breen, attorneys for the school board, representatives of the city treasurer, and lawyers for Halsey Stuart & Co., a total of thirteen.

Although the discussion took place behind closed doors, it was learned that the lawyers debated over the legality of the deal for nearly two hours. Breen and the school board attorneys were said to have finally convinced Mr. Schmidt's lawyers that the council did not have to designate the depository and to have ironed out all points except that of the bond. Mr. Miller insisted that the syndicate would have to furnish a bond sufficient to cover the controller should the Central Trust company fail. The Breen-Caldwell faction argued that this was unnecessary.

Chairman Acts by Phone.

The meeting of the members of the council finance committee at the city hall was going on at the same time as that in Mr. Miller's office. The aldermanic meeting started as a private round table discussion, but ended with a definite outline of procedure, after Chairman Clark, by telephone from Eagle River, Wis., appointed the subcommittee to carry on the bank inquiry.

"Whether or not this school board deal goes through, I am for going through with this investigation to find out why the bankers are gouging us," Ald. Arvey told his colleagues.

At Ald. Nelson's suggestion it then was agreed for the subcommittee to meet Monday and to call in the bankers Tuesday or Wednesday.

Urges Weapon for City.

Ald. Arvey pointed out that it was useless to negotiate with the bankers unless the city first had a weapon. This weapon, he said, should be the threat to establish a new bureau or department to market tax warrants to the public. Arvey said he believed millions would pour in if a public appeal was made.

Another suggestion was that taxpayers, waiting to pay their 1928 taxes, be allowed to buy tax warrants, thereby collecting 5 or 6 per cent interest on their money while waiting for the reassessment to be completed. According to Arvey, a state law provides that the warrants may be used in lieu of cash for the payment of taxes against which they are issued.

CANADIANS FACE $8,000,000 LOSS ON SNOWDEN PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 12.—Canada stands to lose $8,000,000 worth of British trade if the British government abolishes empire preferential tariffs which Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, says he considers unsound. Right on the heels of the American tariff increases against Canada, which may cost Canada nearly $60,000,000 annually, this tariff abolition proposal is almost the last trade straw for Canadians.

Proposal Hurts South Africa.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 12.—The proposal to abolish imperial preference has caused consternation throughout South Africa among farmers and commerce leaders. They are strongly protesting that it will be the death blow to many industries.

Australia Cables Protest.

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 12.—(AP)—A protest against the abolition of empire preferential tariffs has been cabled to Premier MacDonald by Premier Stanley M. Bruce of Australia.

CONSUL AND HIS OPIUM RUNNING WIFE ARRESTED

San Francisco, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Ying Kao, until two days ago Chinese vice consul here, and his young wife, Mrs. Suzie Kao, were arrested today, charged with smuggling a large quantity of opium into the United States.

They posted $10,000 bonds each when arraigned in federal court, and were freed pending a hearing next Wednesday before the United States commissioner. A special session of the federal grand jury has been called for Tuesday to act. Warrants for the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Kao and for Suen Foo, consulate secretary, were issued on complaint of John W. Smith, United States customs officer. Suen Foo had not been located this afternoon. Issuance of the warrants followed discovery of 2,300 tins of opium, valued conservatively at wholesale prices at $600,000, in trunks and valises which Mrs. Kao sought to bring into the country without inspection under consular frank.

SIX COUNCILMEN NAMED TO DRAFT CAR ORDINANCE

Group Told to Prepare Terminable Permit.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city council's local transportation committee appointed a subcommittee yesterday to prepare a terminable permit for a consolidated transit company on the basis of the statement of principles submitted yesterday. These principles are the ones promulgated by the committee last Sept. 22.

Both the companies and the experts of the citizens' transit settlement committee agreed to these basic ideas with few changes in wording. There is little quarrel between the interests involved in the transit problem as to the statement of the principles, but there are expected to be sharp differences of opinion in their application to a specific franchise which would run for an indeterminate period.

Members of the Subcommittee.

The subcommittee named to draft the terminable permit is composed of Ald. E. I. Frankhauser [49th], John Toman [23d], Jacob Arvey [24th], James B. Bowler [25th], O. F. Nelson [46th], and Joseph B. McDonough [13th], the latter an ex officio member as chairman of the local transportation committee. The subcommittee was appointed on motion of Ald. Arvey.

The motion directed the group "immediately to begin drafting an ordinance." Ald. McDonough announced that the first session will be held on Monday morning.

The ordinance ordered drafted is to be one "representing the views of the subcommittee, with a statement of objections, if any, to such draft, on the part of the transit companies."

Provide Help for Aldermen.

The Arvey motion provided that the six aldermen shall have plenty of help. They are directed to "invite the cooperation and assistance" of the following persons in the order presented:

The citizens' transit settlement committee, composed of A. A. Sprague, John A. Carroll, Joseph R. Noel, and Charles M. Thompson.

Its experts and engineers—George M. Wisner, David A. Wallace, and Edward J. Noonan, engineers; and W. M. Hammond, expert accountant.

Legal representatives and engineers of the transit companies. The lawyers at present are Harry P. Weber, James M. Sheean, Weymouth Kirkland, Gilbert E. Porter, Patrick J. Lucey, and Harvey E. Wood. They have at least two chief engineers and probably three who are invited under the Arvey motion.

Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., engineer for the local transportation committee, and John G. Drennan, special assistant corporation counsel.

Still other names might appropriately have been added, in the opinion of some of the aldermen, but Ald. Arvey considered the list long enough. The Motor Coach company representatives were not invited. They have not been in the transit picture so far considered by the aldermen, although the enabling legislation passed by the general assembly granted authority to put them there.

Lawyers' View of Principles.

The elevated and surface lines' lawyers, after studying the list of aldermanic principles submitted to the companies, have made this reply:

"We beg to say that with some of the statements we are in substantial accord and have no comment to make with the understanding that these may be accepted as preliminary general statements of principles which if fairly applied may form the proper basis for the drafting of an ordinance, without prejudicing any of the parties in interest."

That is all the "fundamentals" were intended to be, according to Attorney Fisher. The aldermen look on them in the same light. Chairman McDonough announced that none of the aldermen desired to go on record as indorsing the list.

Subway Issue Brought Up.

One of the other comments of the companies, printed yesterday, asked a more definite statement from the city on the construction of subways. The aldermen thought that suggestion came with little grace because the companies did not offer to make a more definite promise of elevated and surface lines' extensions than the general statement made by the aldermen in their fundamentals.

In the aldermanic principles is this statement: "A reasonable return to be allowed to the company on its investment." The companies' lawyers suggested that this be changed to read: "A reasonable return to be allowed the company on the initial capital value or initial city purchase price, plus net additions and betterments."

The experts for the citizens' committee, Wisner, Hammond, Wallace, and Noonan, suggested this phraseology: "A reasonable return to be allowed the company on the agreed value and net additions thereto." Two of the aldermen laughed at the proposed change of the experts of the citizens' committee.

Jest at Experts' Change.

When still another suggested change of the experts was reached Aldermen Frankhauser and Thomas J. Bowler made jesting comments about it. The aldermanic fundamentals say: "The city council in its grant shall fix the initial purchase price or value." The experts changed that to read: "The city council in its grant shall fix the agreed value or purchase price."

"Just changed the words around, haven't they?" commented Bowler.

"What's the difference?" asked Frankhauser.

Attorney Gorham said he did not know the reason for the change.

Tax Question Is Raised.

"I notice that in our fundamentals," said Ald. McDonough, "we say that the cost of service shall first be the operating costs, then taxes, then payments to the depreciation fund, the damage fund and other created funds. The statement of your experts says that payments shall be made to all of these funds before taxes are paid. What was the idea of that? Taxes will have to be paid first, won't they?"

"Taxes will come first," replied Mr. Gorham. Other suggested changes in the aldermanic fundamentals were of no more importance than those cited.

Spanish Envoy and Daughter Here

Represents Alfonso

Alejandra Padilla, Spanish ambassador to the United States, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to San Diego. There he will represent the king of Spain at the 160th anniversary, on July 16, of the founding of the first Spanish mission in California by Father Junipero Serra. The ambassador was accompanied by his daughter, Señorita Rosa Padilla.

PUT PERSONALTY OF MRS. THAW AT $3,000,000

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12.—(AP)—Personal property of the late Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, philanthropist and mother of Harry K. Thaw, was valued at $3,127,772 in an inventory filed in the office of the register of wills today. Included in the property were stocks of the Standard Oil company and subsidiaries valued at $1,900,000. Real estate was not mentioned.

Harry Thaw Appeals Tax.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Harry K. Thaw today appealed to the United States board of tax appeals from a decision of the internal revenue bureau assessing him $7,000 deficiency tax for 1926. Thaw's return for that year showed an income of $80,324 of which the bureau held $55,180 was subject to tax.

The disagreement arose over publication of his book "Traitor," on which Thaw claimed a loss of $33,718 while the bureau allowed a loss of $3,690. Thaw published 50,000 copies of the book. He still has unsold 45,000 copies.

Danville Editor Director of State Commerce Body

Boys' Farm Bookkeeper Sentenced as Embezzler

Waukesha, Wis., July 12.—[Special.]—Roy L. Schultz, who in 1924 attempted to extort money from Joseph Uihlen, wealthy Milwaukee man, today was sentenced to from three to five years in Waupun upon charges of embezzlement of $2,865, which may mount to $5,000 when a complete audit is made. After he served two years for the attempted extortion plot Schultz was employed as a bookkeeper at the Norris farm for boys. He used the firm's money to speculate.

W. C. T. U. Seeks to Ban Teachers Who Smoke

COURT ENJOINS BAN ON HEARSE OF THREE DOORS

Attorneys Argue Merits of New and Old.

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining the Chicago Motor Liverymen's association from enforcing its ban on the new model three door hearse manufactured by the Heaney Motor company. The company sought the injunction, charging the association with racketeering activities.

Attorney Edward R. Johnston, representing the company, charged that the association had imposed a fine of $200 on an undertaker who purchased the new vehicle and had ordered another firm to seal the doors which permit loading from the sides as well as the rear. He declared that the ban is discriminatory against the motor company.

How Hearse Operates.

"It's like this," Attorney Johnston said. "The improved model has a mechanical table which makes it possible to place a coffin from either the left or right side of the hearse. This feature enables a funeral to run more smoothly and does away with the customary awkward juggling through the rear doors. The pallbearers wait for the table to operate, then they place you——"

"Just a moment," Judge Sullivan interrupted. "The court resents the personal attitude of your exposition. The court has no immediate desire to test the relative merit of hearses. Be more impersonal."

Calls Vehicle a Fad.

Attorney H. S. Radenacher, representing the association, characterized the new hearse as a fad and not a tested experiment. He said the vehicles were subject to failure of the mechanical device and were not adapted to varying conditions of weather and topography at churches and cemeteries.

"People demand sober, conservative, and standard hearses," Radenacher said. "Only a few years ago we abandoned the plumed hearse and later the gaudy hearses embellished with kneeling angels. The solemnity of the occasion demands a practical and certain vehicle. The ban was made because the innovation is not up to the association's standard."

ADOLPHE MENJOU CAN'T FIND JOB IN FILMS, SO HE'S LEAVING U. S.

New York, July 12.—[U. P.]—Adolphe Menjou, one of the country's foremost motion picture stars, is leaving the United States tonight because he "no longer can get work."

The actor, famous for his screen portrayals of the sophisticate and the well dressed man about town, suddenly has found the door of every motion picture producer in America closed to him, he says, and professes he knows no reason for the attitude.

He has been in New York for six weeks seeking a job in a manner not altogether unlike that of thousands of others in the city's army of unemployed. He has gone the rounds from one picture company to another and has been politely turned away.

ORDER MORE GUARDS FOR FOUR DOOMED SLAYERS

Extra guards were ordered yesterday to watch over four colored men, who are condemned to die soon after midnight on Thursday morning. Warden David Moneypenny ordered the extra precaution because of rumors of suicide and an attempted jail break to save the four men from the electric chair.

Aaron Woodward, 35 years old, who is to be executed for the murder of Sergt. Jeremiah O'Connell, is reported to have tried to cheat the law by taking his own life. Leonard Shadlow, Leon Brown, and Albert Fisher, convicted for the murder last January of Martin French, guard at the Franklin Trust and Savings bank, once before tried to escape and reports were current yesterday that they would make a new attempt before Thursday.

Michael the Cat, Club Mascot, Falls Off Wagon

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—They found Michael the cat today, dead drunk on top of the player piano in the Second Ward Democratic club of Jersey City, where he works as mascot.

Club members exonerated Michael of a liquor law violation. Some one, it seems, upset a bottle of bay rum and part of it trickled into a saucer of milk which Michael drank. A restorative was administered and Michael soon was able to resume his duties with proper feline dignity.

So Many Wives Government Owes Him on Income Tax

CUDAHY HEIR IS HELD ON CHARGE OF DRUNKENNESS

Bridegroom of Week Is Arrested in Auto.

Hollywood, Cal., July 12.—[Special.]—The sixth day of 21 year old John Patrick Michael Cudahy's celebration of his honeymoon with Muriel Evans, blonde film actress, aged 18, brought grief, separation, and a visit to jail for the heir of the packing family today.

Cudahy was jailed early this morning on a charge of driving while intoxicated. His arrest followed a head-on auto crash with the car of Charles Lang.

Declares Him Intoxicated.

Police caused a sobriety test to be administered to young Cudahy. The police surgeon's report bore the notation, "had been drinking—intoxicated."

According to Officers J. F. Martin and G. W. Kahler, Cudahy explained to them that the reason he was driving on the wrong side of Franklin avenue was that "I became confused and thought I was driving east, instead of really being going west." At the city jail, Cudahy lay down on a cot and fell asleep.

Married on July 6.

On July 6, when he married Miss Evans, Cudahy said, "This means the end of my fooling around, I'm going to settle down for good."

Two years ago Cudahy had a brief stay in the Santa Barbara jail, after his mother, Mrs. Edna Cudahy, widow of Jack Cudahy, caused his arrest to halt his elopement with Marie Astaire, young Chicago film actress. Cudahy today gave his address to police as the home of his mother, instead of the apartment house where he took his bride.

Ex-Publisher, Penniless, Ends His Life with Gas

Despondent because he was out of work and penniless, Charles C. Miles, 60 years old, 912 West Erie street, a bookkeeper and former publisher, committed suicide by inhaling gas in his room yesterday. A note to his landlord directed the disposal of his furniture and books to pay his rent.

Maj. Gen. Hammond Named Auditor of Philippines

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—President Hoover today announced the appointment of Maj. Gen. Creed C. Hammond of Oregon as auditor of the Philippine islands.

EX-AFGHAN KING BATTLES TO GET ITALIAN REFUGE

Seeks Home at Scene of Former Pomp.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12.—The former king of Afghanistan, Amanullah, who has chosen Rome as a place of exile, had a terrific time this morning when with members of his suite he went to police headquarters to obtain the identity cards insisted upon by Italian law even for former monarchs. Amanullah, with Queen Souryi, the queen mother and the rest of his family, slipped into Rome unobserved yesterday 18 months after his last visit to Italy. On that occasion he was the royally welcomed guest of King Victor Emanuel.

The interview with the police authorities resulted in a whole review of the Afghanistan political situation in order to establish whether Amanullah and his family were now entitled to diplomatic privileges.

Will Remain in Italy.

The former king and his family and followers have obtained documents which will enable them to remain in Italy. About the duration of that stay nothing has been decided and no one can find out by asking Amanullah for he denies himself to all visitors.

The legation situation here is complicated by the fact that there is no minister. The chargé d' affaires considers Amanullah has the right to the handsome villa which houses the legation because Amanullah bought it when he was the real king. Loyalists in the legation declare Amanullah is still king but temporarily discommoded by the usurper.

The Italian government also apparently considers the legation as a private residence and is side stepping the delicate point by ignoring it as far as possible, which is easy in view of the small amount of business between the two states.

Crowds of people and newspapermen stormed the legation this morning but all were turned away with the explanation that the former king said all he had to say before he left India. The former Emir was visible in the garden dressed in white pants and a green coat, looking happy and tranquil.

Reminded of Tribune Plane.

THE TRIBUNE was barred from an audience with the former king even when reminded that THE TRIBUNE airplane had proved of some service to him last February during the unpleasantness in Afghanistan.

"His majesty is tired and wants to rest" an attendant said.

FEATURES

wanted in Ideal Homes

In reading over the entries in our great letter contest on the subject, "What I Want in a Home and Its Surroundings —and Why Owning Beats Renting," we were delighted to find how closely the features of WESTWOOD homes approach the wants of a great majority of the contestants.

Solid brick construction, thorough insulation, hot-water heat, modern plumbing fixtures, modern electric fixtures and hardware, garage with home, landscaped yard, paved streets and alleys, nearness to good transportation, schools, churches, parks, shopping district—were a few of the things most frequently mentioned as being desirable by contestants. WESTWOOD homes deliver every one of these features —plus many other advantages individual to this "Ideal Community of Completed Homes," occupied by a carefully selected group of splendid neighbors.

And remember that all of these advantages are not only in and usable from the day that you move, but are paid for in full—no special assessments.

Take advantage of this unusual opportunity to combine the thrill and excitement of knowing the winners of the great $10,000 CONTEST, with the pleasure of seeing for yourself the world's outstanding home values. Here the home-seeker can secure a home that meets the Ideal Requirements of almost every family, at the lowest cost and on the easiest terms. WESTWOOD homes may be bought for only $8,950, on terms of only $400 cash and $55 monthly, which includes all interest.

MEDICINE LAGS IN ECONOMICS, DR. WILBUR SAYS

Not Adjusted to Modern Business, He Claims.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Ore., July 12.—[Special.]—The American Medical profession, ultra-modern in science, is woefully archaic in economics, said Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, in an interview at the annual convention here of the American Medical Association, which closed today.

"Medicine has never been adjusted to the strides of modern business," the secretary said. "As a result, the cost to the public of obtaining the benefit of medical care is exorbitant. The profession has progressed mightily in scientific discovery, in combating disease, and prolonging life. It has stood still so far as adjusting its financial aspect is concerned."

Undertake 5 Year Survey.

Secretary Wilbur is chairman of the national committee on the cost of medical care, composed of prominent citizens in easing the sickness burdens of the middle class public.

"We have planned a five year program covering all angles of the medical cost problem," said Dr. Wilbur. "At the end of that time, we expect to be able to make a definite recommendation to the profession and to the public, which will remedy the situation. Medical men must face the problem, and can gain nothing by stubborn, unreasonable resistance. I have often told audiences of physicians: 'Either you're going to do it, or it's going to be done to you.'"

Meanwhile, all experiments and plans, many of which are in process of being launched, can do no harm by being given trials, Dr. Wilbur said. They should all prove useful in arriving at the ultimate solution.

Why We Lack Pep.

Americans are increasingly complaining of a lack of "pep," it was stated this morning by Dr. C. W. Dowden of Louisville, Ky., addressing the section on the practice of medicine at the convention. One out of every five of his patients in the last two years has had no specific underlying disease, but consulted him because of exhaustion, Dr. Dowden said. He listed four principal causes, as follows:

"First: The world war and its effect on the mental makeup of the people.

"Second: The epidemic of influenza and its persistent after effects.

"Third: The quantity of alcohol drunk by both men and women.

Finds Cigarets Taste Alike.

Dr. Emil Bogen of Cincinnati, speaking before the section on pharmacy, attacked the claims of cigaret manufacturers in their advertising campaigns. He asserted he had examined fifty brands of cigarets and by chemical analysis and testing with groups of individuals had disproved most of the claims made.

Smokers were unable to distinguish between brands, Dr. Bogen declared, although they frequently recognized the domestic, West Indian and Turkish blends.

RAINBOW VETS GATHER TODAY IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., July 12.—[Special.]—The advance guard of the members of the Rainbow [Forty-second] division arrived today for the eleventh annual reunion tomorrow and Monday. A number of veterans from the middle west registered.

On Monday President Hoover will motor from Washington to view the annual parade. The committee in charge plans a luncheon at the Southern hotel in honor of Mrs. Hoover while the President is a luncheon guest of the division at the Maryland club.

Gen. Henri Etienne Joseph Gouraud, commander of the Fourth French army in the battle of Champagne in 1918 and under whom the Rainbow division served, arrives tomorrow from Washington. He will be met by a citizens' committee and a committee from the Rainbow division. Gen. Gouraud is the permanent honorary president of the division.

Approximately 2,500 veterans and 400 members of the auxiliary are expected to attend the convention.

Raymond Hitchcock, Better After Illness, Leaves City

Raymond Hitchcock, veteran comedian, who has been ill at St. Luke's hospital for the last six weeks, was improved sufficiently yesterday to leave the hospital and board a Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific train bound for Colorado Springs, Colo. He expects to recuperate in time to return to the stage in Chicago in the fall. Due to his illness, Mr. Hitchcock's play, "Your Uncle Dudley," was cancelled at the Illinois theater in May.

NEW YORK MAN 8TH FARM BOARD MEMBER; HOLD SESSION MONDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Appointment of Charles S. Wilson of Hall, N. Y., former New York state commissioner of agriculture, as a member of the federal farm board was announced at the White House today.

Selection of a ninth member to complete the board probably will be announced by President Hoover next week, but, meanwhile, the body will hold its first meeting Monday morning at the White House.

Mr. Wilson, born and reared on a farm, and at present actively engaged in farming, became a professor in the agricultural department of Cornell university following his graduation from that institution. He was commissioner of agriculture in New York from 1915 to 1920, and is president of the New York State Horticultural society as well as secretary of the Western New York Fruit Growers' Cooperative Packing association.

President Hoover's earlier plans to spend the week end at his Rapidan river camp in the Virginia mountains in conference with Alexander H. Legge of Chicago, and Carl Williams of Oklahoma, chairman and vice chairman of the farm board, respectively, were cancelled this noon, when it was reported that roads leading from the main highway to the camp were impassable.

Instead, Mr. Legge and Mr. Williams were summoned to the White House shortly after lunch today and remained tonight as dinner guests. It was said that material progress was made in settlement of the details of the task before the board and outlining the program for its first meeting.

SEIZE ITALIAN POSTAL CHIEF AS U. S. MAIL LOOTER

NAPLES, Italy, July 12.—(AP)—Mysterious thefts of money from the mails from America which have been going on for the last three years are believed solved. The director of the subpostoffice here, Cavaliere Michael De Lima, was taken into custody as he was leaving the postoffice with a valise containing about 100 letters, each containing about five dollars sent by immigrants in America to their families here.

Although he denied that he had intended to steal the mail, police found at his residence several opened letters and a gold pen and gold pencil set resembling one which senders in America claimed had been lost. He is said to have been living in luxury in a villa outside Naples and sending his wife a monthly allowance of $75.

Postal inspectors are now trying to estimate how much of the thefts can be attributed to De Lima, since the losses have been spread over three years and are alleged to total many thousands of dollars.

ACT TO RELIEVE CONGESTION AT OAK ST. BEACH

Bathing Facilities Planned for North to Fullerton.

Action was taken by the Lincoln park board yesterday designed to relieve, at least by next summer, the overcrowded conditions at the Oak street bathing beach, which civic workers and officials long have described as "distressing." The board passed an ordinance authorizing the construction during the present summer, if possible, of a series of jetties between North and Fullerton avenues, which will form the shore into a natural sandy beach.

In addition the board discussed a plan to create a beach at Montrose avenue to replace the old Clarendon avenue beach, the site of which may be converted into a municipal airport.

Field House for Grace Street.

Another project advanced yesterday was a new field house, to be located north of Grace street. The finance committee authorized the advertising for bids for this improvement. The board proposes to construct tennis courts and baseball diamonds around the building.

Before the meeting, Mrs. M. L. Purvin of the Woman's City club, and a committeee of women who have been active in pointing out the congested conditions long prevalent at the Oak street beach, conferred with Eugene R. Pike, chairman of the board.

"This new beach will be one of the most appreciated public assets conferred upon Chicagoans in a long while," Mrs. Purvin declared later, when told of the board's action.

Asks Permit from U. S.

Immediate steps will be taken to secure a government permit for construction of the new beach, which will add a mile of bathing facilities for the crowded north side apartment district. William H. Dean, engineer for the board, was directed to perfect plans he now has under way for the creation of the Montrose beach.

Mrs. Mabel Ogden Shirk submitted a resolution of the Chicago Beautiful association requesting the board to coöperate in eliminating unsightly billboards along the lake front.

WARNING LETTERS THREATEN CHIEF SCHOOL ENGINEER

Apprehensive as the result of a third threatening letter received within a week, John Howatt, chief engineer of the board of education, announced last night that he will appeal to State's Attorney Swanson today to question leaders of the school board firemen's union in an effort to learn the source of the threats.

The latest letter, received yesterday, read: "This is the last notice. You'll be in hell pretty quick." Like the two previous messages, in which he was threatened with death if he did not withdraw his opposition to the firemen's demand for vacation with pay, it was printed on regulation elementary school stationery and signed "School Board Firemen."

Although no special guard has been assigned, the policeman on the beat embracing 6720 Merrill avenue, where Howatt lives with his wife and one child, is under instructions to keep close watch on the house. Nathan De Lue, assistant business manager for the board of education, will accompany Howatt to the state's attorney office today.

EXHUME TORCH MURDER VICTIM, IDENTIFY BODY

Kewanee, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—The body of Wilmer T. Kitselman, for whose murder Laura Weaver, Wyoming, Ill., is being held in the jail at Toulon, was exhumed today at the Annawan cemetery.

It was removed at the order of State's Attorney L. M. Burkey of Stark county, and A. S. Young, Henry county coroner, for purposes of identification.

The authorities are seeking to determine whether Kitselman was killed by the blow of a cub found near the body or was garroted as detailed in the Weaver girl's confession. If he was not dead until after taken across the county line, Henry county will be obliged to bear the expense of the trial.

Mrs. A. B. Kitselman of Peoria, a sister-in-law; A. B. Kitselman, a nephew, and Ray Kieterman, who worked with Kitselman in a Wyoming cafe, were present to identify the body.

Civil War Veteran, 85, and Woman, 79, to Wed

Duquoin, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—A marriage license has been issued to two of the oldest residents of Franklin county, Thomas Sullivan, 85, and Mrs. Martha Mahala McFarland, 79. This is the third matrimonial venture for the groom and the second for the bride, who is a sister of Sullivan's first wife. Sullivan is a civil war veteran, and hopes to stump Franklin county for President Hoover in 1932.

DEMOCRATS TOO BUSY FISHING TO TALK COALITION

Besides, They May Decide to Name Own Judges

A spread of anti-coalition feeling among the leaders and the rank and file led the Democrats to call off the meeting of their managing committee yesterday at which they were to have discussed the question of a fusion ticket for the November election.

Twenty Superior court judges are up for reelection and two Circuit court vacancies—caused by the election of John A. Swanson as state's attorney and by the death of Judge Victor P. Arnold—are to be filled. The sitting judges want coalition to escape a campaign fight.

Some of the politicians have been arguing that they have been rapped for years for "bipartisan alliances" in ordinary politics, some of the criticism coming from the bench, and that this time they see no reason for the organization to enter a fusion alliance on a bench ticket. It appeared likely that some ward leaders might sound off loudly against coalition, so the conference was abandoned by telephone to avoid, as the leaders said, "getting steamed up for nothing on a hot day."

Besides, the fish are biting. Martin J. O'Brien, chairman of the managing committee, was desirous of catching an afternoon train for the wilds of Canada. Anton J. Cermak wanted to get back to Antioch. Most of the other ward leaders were reported away from town.

Mr. Cermak, as county chairman, has until Aug. 22 to issue the call for a judicial convention to be held some time between Sept. 6 and 16.

Meanwhile, it was announced that within the next two weeks a conference of Democratic leaders will be held to pick a committee of five or seven members to consult with the Chicago Bar association on the entire question of coalition and candidates.

Veterinarian Faces Trial July 22 for Co-ed's Murder

Columbus, O., July 12.—(AP)—Common Pleas Judge Henry L. Scarlett today overruled a motion for a continuance in the trial of Dr. James H. Snook, deposed university professor and confessed slayer of Theora K. Hix, 25, Ohio State co-ed, and ordered that the trial start July 22 as scheduled.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL ORDERS FOUR NEW ELECTRIC ENGINES

Complete electrification of the Illinois Central system within the Chicago city limits came a step nearer yesterday when President L. A. Downs announced that four electric locomotives have been ordered for use in the downtown section. The engines will all be delivered by April 1. In addition the road now has in operation for switching purposes at the main terminals a 100-ton oil-electric locomotive.

According to the road's agreement under the lake front ordinance, all freight service north of Roosevelt road must be electrified by February, 1930, and south to the city limits by February, 1935. The zone of operation of the four new electric locomotives will be between Monroe and 39th streets.

Abandon Blazing Ship 500 Miles Off Africa

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 12.—A wireless message of distress received from the British steamer King Cadwallow, traveling from Great Britain to Australia with a cargo of coal, said the ship was afire in two holds. The flagship Calcutta and the steamer Ardenhall are rushing to the King Cadwallow's assistance. Its position was given as 500 miles from Durban. A later message said that efforts to get the fire under control were unavailing and the ship is ablaze and must be abandoned.

Heavy Rainfall Relieves Hongkong Water Famine

HONG KONG, July 12.—(AP)—Although the authorities maintain that all danger has not yet passed, Hong Kong's water famine, the worst in the history of the colony, was believed virtually ended today by almost five inches of rain during the last 24 hours.

FREDERICK BATE DIVORCED BY 2D WIFE IN PARIS

Frederick Blantford Bate, former Chicagoan and a friend of the prince of Wales, has been divorced by his second wife, Mrs. Vera Arkwright Bate, a dispatch from Paris announced yesterday. Bate was formerly the husband of Miss Sally Flows, now Mrs. Hugh Garden of Lake Forest.

Bate married his first wife while he was attending the University of Chicago. After his graduation he became superintendent of her father's stationery store on South Michigan boulevard. He was divorced in 1914 by his first wife.

In 1916 he married his present wife, the daughter of the late Capt. F. W. Arkwright of the Coldstream guards, and a distant relative of the English royal family. Bate was assistant to Col. James Logan when the latter was the American unofficial observer with the reparations commission. Bate and his wife were frequently in the company of the prince of Wales during his visits to Paris.

Real estate, like anything else, must be progressive, must keep moving, if it is to stay in the procession. The noteworthy success that Baird & Warner have made, and their present dominant position in the real estate field, has not been due merely to the fact that they started in 1855, when the founder—the grandfather of the present head of the firm—first opened a real estate office in Chicago, but because in all those 74 years, through three generations of Bairds, the organization, composed of the keenest minds in the real estate business, has been far-seeing, progressive, sound.

And today, even more than at any time in the firm's long and successful history, Baird & Warner typify the most progressive spirit to be found, combined with wholesome practice and correct performance.

The doubt that many have had in this new form of town home—the co-operatively owned apartment—has been entirely removed in the case of any Baird & Warner enterprise of this sort. Always in the fore, they have led the way in successfully promoting this new and more convenient type of town home. Each one of their co-operative enterprises has been an outstanding success—from everyone's viewpoint.

The latest, and probably the most distinguished of these co-ops, is "3240 Sheridan Road". The dominating dignity and beauty of this building, its modernism and refinement in every appointment, and its superb location, make it a home to be distinctly proud of. Handy to transportation, with quantities of air and sunlight, vistas over park, yacht harbor and lake that charm—the appeal is strong if you will but come and see it for yourself.

That you may better visualize your own apartment home, an apartment has already been furnished to the last detail for your inspection. Our representative on the premises will gladly show you any apartment, or information may be had at any of our offices.

FOREIGN ENVOYS MAY INTERVENE IN MANCHURIA ROW

Chinese Gunboats Guard City of Harbin.

BULLETIN.

MOSCOW, July 12.—(AP)—The Tass agency, publishing its first report of seizure by Chinese officials of the Russian owned Chinese Eastern railway, said tonight that Manchurian troops, including well armed Russian White guards, had advanced to "the very frontier" of Eastern Siberia and Manchuria.

TOKIO, July 12.—(AP)—Advices from Harbin state that in view of the probability of a tieup on the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria the Harbin consular body is considering mediation to seek a peaceable settlement.

Dispatches to the Japanese news agency Rengo say that the former Russian manager and assistant manager of the Chinese Eastern left for Siberia tonight with their families and other soviet officials in compliance with the Chinese order for their deportation.

City Under Martial Law.

Chang Ching-Hui, governor of the Harbin district, has forbidden public meetings under rigid penalties, and the city is heavily policed, being virtually under martial law. Two Chinese gunboats are anchored in the Sungari river near Harbin.

A Moscow dispatch received at the Chinese Eastern headquarters in Harbin says that the soviet government has appointed L. B. Serebriakov, a member of the railway commissariat, as plenipotentiary to proceed to Harbin to seek a diplomatic settlement of the problem. He was stated to have left Moscow for Manchuria today.

Rengo dispatches from Harbin say the soviet Russian community is highly excited and that many are fleeing the city in an effort to reach the border. Advices from Changchun state that the Chinese have completed taking over the railway works there and have arrested several soviet officials, sending them to Harbin.

Russian Exiles Voice Threats.

Soviet reservists in the Chinese Eastern railway zone are reported to have received orders to join the forces in Siberia.

A Manchouli dispatch, describing the crossing of the border by the first Russians deported, quotes leading officials as threatening: "We are having empty handed, but will return with rifles."

According to Japanese military intelligence, soviet Russia has an equivalent of six divisions along the Siberian railway between Lake Baikal and Vladivostok, including cavalry, artillery, tanks, aircraft and railway engineers. Chinese troops in Manchuria are estimated to be an equivalent of fifteen divisions.

Japan Government Anxious.

The Japanese government today anxiously scanned the news from Harbin and considered measures which might have to be taken should any crisis arise as a result of the Chinese Eastern railway controversy.

Officials, while admitting that the situation was grave, expressed the opinion that soviet Russia was not likely to resort to arms to regain her position in North Manchuria. Nevertheless both the cabinet and the general staff today considered the Manchurian question. Their decisions were not divulged, but it was thought significant that after a lengthy cabinet meeting Premier Hamaguchi retained Foreign Minister Shidehara for further discussion.

A government spokesman emphasized that Japan, while maintaining strict neutrality in the Chinese-Russian difficulties, even if there should be actual hostilities, would resolutely protect Japanese lives and legitimate interests. It was stated that this protection would not be confined to the South Manchuria railway zone, but would be extended to Harbin if necessary, since the large Japanese community there has considerable holdings.

"Must Stamp Out Communism."

PEKING, China, July 13.—(AP)—C. T. Wang, Chinese foreign minister, in his first statement concerning the crisis in Manchuria declared the Nationalist government was determined to stamp out communism and would not tolerate soviet propaganda in any form.

"We are not inimical to soviet Russia," he said; "positively we are not unfriendly to Russia. We are thoroughly determined not to tolerate soviet propaganda in whatever form it may appear.

"After the raid on the Harbin consulate by the Manchurian authorities we deemed it necessary to take steps to prevent further spread of propaganda. The documents seized at Harbin also convinced us the Russians were violating their agreement."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, July 12.—Ulster Orangemen today gave themselves over to the annual celebration of the battle of Boyne, at which William III. in 1690 defeated the adherents of the unthroned James II. They found joy in the traditional medium of beating drums and marching with banners. Some of the large drums were belabored so furiously that the men's knuckles bled.

The din was terrific and the Belfast procession's medley of tunes indescribable, one band playing "Abide With Me" and another a few yards off banging away at "Protestant Boys" or "Boyne Water." Large numbers of American and Canadian visitors marched in the Belfast procession, the former carrying union jacks and the Stars and Stripes.

The prime minister of Ulster, Viscount Craigavon, speaking at the Tyrone demonstrations, used the opportunity to exalt the northern parliament as indispensable to Ulster's future freedom.

INSANITY TO LET WAR DEBTS DRAG, POINCARE ARGUES

BY ROBERT SAGE.

PARIS, July 12.—Like a patient school teacher trying to hammer a lesson into the heads of a class of wayward pupils, Premier Poincare today continued to point out to the chamber of deputies innumerable reasons why it would be insanity for France to take any other course than to ratify the Mellon-Berenger debt accords before Aug. 1, when a $400,000,000 payment on American war stocks falls due.

"If we do not ratify before this date," he said, "once the war stocks are paid up the United States will force us to pay the entire debt and we will not have the privilege of further delay. Should we attempt to secure postponement of the war stock payment via arbitration, there is no question as to what the answer will be. What would be the result for France's credit? It would be paying dearly in order to save $400,000,000."

Breaks Up for Three Day Rest.

After listening to Premier Poincare all day, the deputies were dismissed this evening to spend a three day holiday in their home towns. Despite the need of speed, the government considers it will further strengthen its position over the week-end vacation, as the country as a whole supports M. Poincare.

Reviewing the history of France's attempts to gain better terms from Washington, the premier said that when this was found to be impossible, he had hoped at least to be able to link the debts and reparations through retarding ratification. This has now been accomplished through the Young plan, he said.

"But, if we do not ratify, then the Young plan is invalid and our credit will fall in America and England, and who can say that the United States, England and France will not have need of each other some day?"

O. K.s Separate Reservations.

M. Poincare said that of three possible methods of ratification, that of ratification by decree with legislative authorization is perhaps the best, since the responsibility is split.

He admitted the real difficulty was the matter of reservations, which the French parliament has always insisted were essential.

Answering a sarcastic comment by Edouard Herriot that reservations were the favorite device of the Americans, who never signed anything without them, M. Poincare said it would perhaps be well to follow the American example, but at all costs the reservations must be made circumspectly and not be included in the ratification itself.

KLOTZ, FRENCH HEAD OF FINANCE 7 TIMES, GETS 2 YEARS JAIL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 12.—Lucien Klotz, seven times French minister of finance, who went to trial yesterday charged with passing worthless checks to the amount of millions of francs, was today sentenced to two year's in jail and $2 fine and costs.

Among the specific charges on which the former statesman was found guilty was the passing of two worthless checks, one for $20,000 and one for $10,000, the first drawn on the American bank in Paris, and the second on the casino at Biarritz.

He was also convicted of keeping $19,200 out of $20,000 given him for investment. M. Torres, one of the best lawyers in Paris, defended Klotz and attributed his downfall to his passion for gambling.

NATIONAL GUARD F.A. BRIGADE GOES TO CAMP McCOY

Schwengel Outfit to Get 15 Days' Training.

Mustered to the full peace strength of 1,700 officers and men, the 58th field artillery brigade commanded by Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel, were scheduled to entrain early this morning for a 15 days' field training encampment at Camp McCoy, near Sparta, Wis.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn of the 33d division will inspect the artillery encampment during the tour of duty. The two regiments composing the brigade are the 124th field artillery commanded by Col. Thomas S. Hammond and the 122d field artillery commanded by Col. Samuel T. Lawton.

These regiments fought side by side through St. Mihiel and the Argonne and many of the batteries are still officered by the veterans who led them overseas. The armory training of this National Guard brigade is supplemented each year by 15 days of field training.

Batteries B and C of the 14th field artillery entrained at Aurora, where both are located. It was announced that this year's camp at Sparta will end the two weeks' annual training in the Wisconsin army reservation. Next year the artillery brigade will train on its own range adjacent to Camp Grant at Rockford.

As a climax to the Sparta training, a two day maneuver will be held simulating the artillery support of a division attack. Airplanes from Selfridge field will participate. Witnessing the maneuvers will be Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the sixth corps area; Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, and representatives of the war department.

Numerous competitive athletic events, polo games, field sports and a horse show will add to the strenuous program outlined.

English Cotton Trade Lock Out to Affect 500,000

MANCHESTER, England, July 12—(AP)—A big lockout in the cotton manufacturing industry, possibly affecting a half million workers, was expected tonight to result from the decision today of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners to enforce a reduction of 12.82 per cent in wages from July 29. All the workers' unions have agreed to reject the demands of the employers. This is the first big labor dispute since the Labor government came into office.

STRUCK BY ENGINE, DIES.

Louis Klimak, 37 years old, a switchman living at 5113 Augusta street, died yesterday at the county hospital of a skull fracture suffered Thursday night when a switch engine ran him down.

FLOOD MAROONS 135 IN CITY HALL IN KANSAS TOWN

Water 4 Feet Deep; All Saved in Boats.

Lyons, Kas., July 13. — (AP) — One hundred and thirty-five persons, the entire population of Saxman, southeast of Lyons, and farm families in the Cow Creek bottoms south of Saxman, were taken into boats late today from the Saxman city hall, where they had been marooned by high water. No casualties were reported.

The marooned families and as much of their household goods as could be salvaged were taken to farm homes on a hill north of the town.

Cow creek, which covered Saxman to a depth of 4 feet, was receding.

Hutchinson In Path of Flood.

Topeka, July 13 — (AP) — Inundation of parts of Hutchinson, Salina, and some smaller towns of central and southern Kansas was threatened today as flood waters from heavy rains swept forward.

Clear skies, general over the state this morning, offered a temporary encouragement but local thundershowers were forecast for tonight and tomorrow.

Predicts Flooded Homes.

Ben Lee, city engineer at Hutchinson, predicted that the entire north end residential section there would be flooded tonight or tomorrow. Unaffected lowlands along the Little Arkansas river in north Wichita were threatened and at Sterling basements were filled by an overflow of Bull creek.

One death was reported, Roberta Audrey Orange, 11, drowned in McPherson, while wading in flood waters in the yard of her home.

BANDSMEN JOIN BLACK HORSE FOR MOUNTED DUTY

Thirty young men, selected from the R. O. T. C. high school bands of the city, last evening reported for the first time as members of the mounted band of the Illinois National Guard's Black Horse troop. They assembled at the Riding club at Ontario street and McClurg court, which is to be the armory of the troop, where they were issued uniforms, lined up and sworn into service.

The band is to appear with instruments and in uniform Monday evening when the whole troop is to stand inspection. The troop will be used on state occasions, for the welcoming of important visitors to the city, in parades and in celebrations of all kinds. Eventually it is to number about 100 men.

"Give me liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to my conscience, above all other liberties."
—Milton.

THE CHURCH IN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

The convocations of Canterbury and of York have voted to authorize the use of the prayer book which parliament had rejected twice. The advice to assert this independence of political control of church ritual came from the archbishop of Canterbury, Cosmo Gordon Lang. The ritualistic changes have had preponderating support in the organization of the Church of England, but the state control of the established religion of the country has defeated the purpose of the faith itself.

The defeat and disappointment [it seemed almost a tragedy to the hierarchy] had the additional bitterness of being forced upon the clergy by parliamentarians of other faith or of no faith. The majority against permitting Anglican clergymen to use a ritual of their own choice was made up of nonconformists and unbelievers who for reasons of state wanted to check the tendency of the church.

At the time of the second rejection by parliament church authority turned to serious consideration of disestablishment which would separate church and state and give the church the freedom of its judgment and the liberty of its conscience. The situation for the Anglican church was an anomaly and an irony of religious freedom. Now the declaration of religious liberty may finally end the medieval interrelationship.

In the development of modern Europe the head of the church has been the head of the state and the head of the state has been the head of the church. When new systems of society began to evolve out of the ruin of the Roman state and Roman law and out of the subsequent dark ages the church was the state. The papacy was the authority of all governments in the faith. The secular princes were only the secular arms of the church and could be removed. The reformation produced the nation and the crown asserted the right of leadership in the church. The doctrine was maintained that the religion of the king should be the religion of the people. It was otherwise stated that the religion of the people should be the religion of the king. The inquisition in the Netherlands was to make the religion of the Spanish crown the religion of the Dutch estates. The test act in Great Britain was to make the religion of Protestant England the religion of the British government.

No combination of church and state has failed to produce injustice, intolerance, human misery and denial of rights and liberties. As government took its further step in the American republican experiment the two were separated to remain apart with no sharing of authority and with no interference in each other's functions. The Church of England, governed by political action, finds its situation intolerable. This illustration of the persistence of the inherent error of such combination is given in Great Britain just as clerical action in the United States is trying to bring the state under the control of politically organized churches.

In one land the church is endeavoring to escape the repression of politics, in the other political action is being brought under the dominance of the church. In one instance the church is rebelling, in the other the state will have to do so.

Human experience for centuries has proved that civil rights and liberties cannot be under ecclesiastical rule and that religious beliefs, the conscience of man and his spirtual requirements cannot be under the rule of the state. Great Britain is being taught one old lesson; the United States is being taught the other.

INVITING MR. MAC DONALD.

It is made known in London that although Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is anxious and willing to come to America and confer with President Hoover he cannct do so unless invited by the American government. He may not go on his own motion. It seems here that such an invitation is just what cannot be extended.

This is not considered merely as a visit of courtesy and friendliness. If it were a ceremony and nothing more an invitation could and would be extended, but this is to lead to a conference. It would be to give the President of the United States and the prime minister of Great Britain the opportunity to meet and discuss means of settlement of issues upon which the two nations wish to come to agreement.

An invitation given Mr. MacDonald would put the government of the United States in a position of undesirable and even unfair responsibility for the outcome of the discussions and possible agreements. It would then be the United States which had initiated a process and that would imply a responsibility for the success much greater than would be upon the prime minister who had merely accepted the invitation.

The United States has been through this experience before. Affairs were so arranged that it was the American government which called the naval conference in Washington and the surrender it then made of its naval strength is well known.

It is a dubious proceeding at the best to have only a table between the heads of two governments when those governments are considering questions of the utmost importance and greatest delicacy. The width of the ocean is a safer distance. President Wilson would have fared much better if he had never narrowed it to the dimensions of a room.

HOW DID THIS HAPPEN?

A letter of the presidents of the Illinois Society of Architects and the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, published in yesterday's TRIBUNE, calls attention to an astounding piece of legislation by the city council, apparently sneaked through unknown to the press or the public. It is an amendment of the zoning ordinance which permits a height of 440 feet without setbacks where the property fronts on three streets, one of which is greater in width than 100 feet and one of which is across the street from a public park, public playground, public waterway, or cemetery. This applies to the fifth volume district, bounded roughly by the lake shore from the Drake hotel to 29th street and on the west by Halsted street.

The amendment is a scandalous grant of special privilege to a relatively small number of property owners and cannot be justified by any consideration of the public good. It discriminates heavily against all adjoining property by depriving it of light and air, and would erect a high barrier along the outer rims of the downtown district shutting in the inner blocks as within a huge wall. President Granger also points out that it will render obsolete the economic setup of all present buildings erected according to the present restrictions, and by raising the potential earning power of land will raise taxes. Inevitably there will be a just demand by property owners injured by this discrimination for equality and the result will be a general raising of the height of buildings with its consequent darkening of lower floors and increasing of street congestion.

The amendment is a public outrage and permits should not be granted under it. If it is a valid exercise of legislative discretion, it should be repealed at the earliest possible opportunity. It would also be interesting to know how its enactment was managed.

THE REGRETTABLE FEUD WITH CINCINNATI.

The state of affairs between Mr. Wrigley's Civic players and the professionals of Cincinnati does not improve although the two groups are now pursuing separate ways and are not where they can spike each other. This is the less understandable and the more regrettable because it is apparent that if there could be a general agreement as to facts a reconciliation would be self-asserting. It appears that Riggs Stephenson did not stick his spikes in Hughie Critz at second. Mr. Stephenson was breaking up a double play and Mr. Critz slipped and bumped himself.

Ray Kolp, the Cincinnati pitcher, did not revile Hack Wilson with profane or obscene words. Mr. Kolp congratulated Mr. Wilson on getting a base hit and Mr. Wilson walked off first and over to the Reds' dugout to thank him for his kindly sentiments. In endeavoring to shake hands Mr. Kolp ran his eye into Mr. Wilson's thumb. What subsequently were thought to be spiking slides into first were mere exuberance or playfulness.

At the railroad station the night of the departure of the two teams Mr. Wilson wanted to inquire as to Mr. Kolp's eye and Mr. Donohue, who is a mild fellow and never has any trouble, said he thought Mr. Kolp already was in the hay. As Mr. Wilson and Mr. Donohue said good-night Mr. Donohue hit his mouth against Mr. Wilson's hand. That appears to be a fair account of what happened and it is nothing which could disturb a civic state of mind.

It is to be hoped that when the Wrigley Civic players are made known again in Cincinnati great crowds will not gather expecting and inciting violence and disorder. It should be remembered that this is not college football and that the customers are not students in institutions of higher learning. This is a game which is striving to raise itself to the respectability of milk fund pugilism.

Editorial of the Day

CANADA AND THE RADIO.

[Winnipeg Tribune]

With the final open session at Ottawa, the royal commission on radio broadcasting has finished the work of inquiry. Now it must begin a very difficult task, the formulation of a report and recommendations.

Under the able chairmanship of Sir John Aird, every opportunity has been given to interested citizens to express themselves freely on the question under consideration. In no single instance, at the numerous meetings throughout Canada, has it been found necessary to close off the discussion before every one who desired to speak had been heard.

Whatever differences of opinion may have developed before the commission on questions of detail, there has been encouraging unanimity on one fundamental question: Canadian radio listeners want Canadian broadcasting. It is generally acknowledged that much of the broadcasting from the United States is entertaining. The larger radio stations across the line are regarded, on the whole, as highly efficient. The opinion has been consistently expressed, however, that Canada should be no more willing to rely on the United States for broadcasting service than for newspaper service or for education.

How to give the widespread Canadian radio audience something as attractive as United States stations are offering to the whole of North America, how to safeguard the radio service from drifting, as the motion picture industry has done, into dependence upon United States sources of supply, is an interesting problem to be solved by Canada. After enjoying such exceptional opportunities for studying the question at home and abroad, the responsibility is now upon the royal commission to make some recommendations.

DEATH OF RASPUTIN.

PRINCE FELIX YOUSSOUPOFF'S account of how he assassinated the monk Rasputin contains two items of medical interest. One relates to the young son of the czar. That he was a weakling was a matter of common information. Prince Youssoupoff, who was a near relative, tells us the nature of his disorder. He says the boy had hemophilia. Hemophilia is a condition characterized by noncoagulability of the blood. Children with this disorder have no symptoms under ordinary circumstances. They are generally happy and in good health. But if they get a nose bleed or a cut or have a tooth pulled they are liable to bleed to death. Since the czarevitch was sickly he must have had some other disorder in addition to this one.

Although hemophilia does not explain why the heir to the Russian throne was sickly, it does furnish a reason for the watchfulness and anxiety of the royal household. Hemophilia is an inherited quality. It develops only in males, but it is inherited through the mother. Since the czarina was a German princess, if the prince is correct, there is a strain of hemophilia in the former German royal family. There is said to be a similar strain in the Spanish royal family, handed down from their Austrian royal forbears.

The second point of medical interest in this recital relates to the method of killing Rasputin. They sprinkled crystals of cyanide of potassium on cakes and then covered them with chocolate. They "put cyanide of potassium in his wine." He ate greedily of these cakes and drank freely of the wine.

The prince said he seemed to have no suspicion that he was being poisoned. Cyanide of potassium, known as prussiate, is a very deadly poison, acting instantly, but it has a distinctive taste and odor. One wonders where Rasputin's taste buds and smelling nerves were that they did not warn him of the food and drink. One also wonders how the monk could take so much of the poison and not die instantly. The poison, even in very small doses, is deadly, and the effects are felt almost instantly. Rasputin is said to have had "some dryness in his throat," "some constriction of his throat," but that at the end of two hours he was in a daze but was living, was strong and was most threatening. The assassins found it necessary to use a pistol and a bludgeon to finish him off. The amount of poison consumed and the small effects of it make one doubt the correctness of the narrative.

FOLLOW RULES AND BE SAFE.

M. B. S. writes: Is it safe to visit a tuberculous patient often? She is in a sanitarium and in a room with other patients. She has been in bed four years. My relatives think I should go there often and think it is relatively safe, but I would like to know what you think.

REPLY.

Visiting patients in a sanitarium is safe. If there are exceptions they are the results of violations of the rules.

TROUBLED AT 74 YEARS.

Mrs. A. E. R. writes:

1. Will you please tell me if a quart of water with one lemon, two oranges, ½ cup sugar, taken daily and the juice of ½ grapefruit going to bed will create uric acid?

2. Sometimes the room seems to turn up and down and I am dizzy. My equilibrium is very shaky, too. I am 74 years old and have had nerve trouble of all kinds. I have been told that acid in my system creates poison. I eat vegetables and very little meat.

REPLY.

1. No.

2. Your trouble may be in your ears or in your blood vessels. It is not caused by uric acid.

NO BAD EFFECT APPARENT.

Mrs. C. E. writes: My 16 month old girl is very fond of fig cakes. I would like to know if she should have them. Some people tell me they are good for her, while others say they are too sweet. She doesn't have any other kind of sweets except ice cream. The figs seem to help her overcome constipation.

REPLY.

As a rule fruits with seeds and hulls are forbidden to babies. However, your child seems to eat them without bad effects.

TEMPTED BY BERRIES.

Chicago, July 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. May one pick wild berries, asparagus, greens, etc., between the fences of a county road? 2. Has the owner of the property bordering the road any prior right to such? 3. If this is controlled by county statute, is there a state law governing the county in the enaction of such a statute? A. M. D.

1. If, as is commonly the case, the road right-of-way is merely an easement of passage and the adjoining owner has never conveyed the underlying fee, then the adjoining owner would technically be entitled to berries, etc. 2. See 1. 3. It is a matter of common law principle.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL DRIVING AGE.

Chicago, July 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — What is the legal age for driving a passenger car alone? W. M.

Section 31 of the motor vehicle law is as follows: "No person shall operate or drive a motor vehicle who is under fifteen years of age, unless such person is accompanied by a duly licensed chauffeur or the owner of the motor vehicle being operated." This state law supersedes city ordinances on the same subject matter.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MAY REMARRY WHEN DECREE IS SIGNED.

Chicago, July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How many days must elapse after a divorce is granted before remarriage? 2. Is a child born three months after marriage of the parents considered a legal child? 3. Will this child share equally in the estate with children by a former marriage of the father? S. R.

1. Under present Illinois law no delay is necessary after the written decree, has been signed, but the writing up of the testimony and preparation of a written decree might occupy ten days, so that the decree might not be signed until ten days after the hearing. 2. Yes. 3. Yes.

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

YOUTH IS A MEMORY . . . SOON!

When shall we share the night wind,
Together keep tryst with the moon?
Ah, do not delay, my darling,
Youth is a memory . . . soon!

Think swiftly! Our moment passes—
Already the moon looms low;
When it grows cold and wearily
Sinks to its rest, we must go.

And when it has passed, our moment
Returns at your pleasure? Never!—
Is lost with the long bleak ages,
Aye, though you seek it forever!

For sage and fool alike agree,
Each kiss youth breathes in ecstasy
Whispers this age-old prophecy:

Oh, Well, It's Worth It.

Weeping tourists from Russia say that the Reds became displeased because foreign travelers didn't spend much money while snooping around in Russia, so that Soviet guards now hold up all departing travelers at the frontier and frisk 'em of all their loose change and currency. No officials have to hold us when we start back from Europe, no matter what country we're in. Usually all we have left is our ticket home, some junk souvenirs, eight or nine dollars in counterfeit money that designing devils have worked off on us, the clothes on our back, and a suitcase with the pajamas and the toothbrush. And a shirt; we usually get away with our shirt.

Me an' Henry Hodpole Goes to the Movies.

RHL: Ma says tha movies is made to depict slices of life which after all is nothing more or less than tense drama and pathos with some humor an romance. Since I been going out with Henry Hodpole I am gettin kinda skeptical about tha truth an focus of tha camera. Tha first scene is shots fired by some hijackers under tha elevated railroad in tha squalid section of a teemin city. Well what it was was seven cannon crackers tha night of tha fourth of july when me an Henry was in Joe Perkins speakeasy. Then Lotta Doodimple comes into tha picture because shes a swell looker an gets ten thousand dollars a week. Well I get ten a week an I come in because it was tha fourth an Henry says that we should make some hoopy an have a glass of beer—an I ain't so bad to look at myself. Lotta Doodimple comes just in time to find her real fiancé is no other than a swallow tailed generalissimo of tha hijackers. Well I liked ta died when I found out Joe Perkins run a speakeasy. Me an Joe had a spat three weeks ago but Lotta Doodimple and her guy had it right there. Ya little hussy, says the swell coat tails, I'll get even witcha—yer gonna marry Ted tha river rat fer that! An sure enough the villain makes her marry Ted tha river rat. Well did Joe Perkins make me marry anybody? Did Joe Perkins wrap a revolver up in a napkin an make me marry a river rat with a heart of gold? He did not. That big punk just gets me in tha corner an says, Come on now, little girl—less go on with tha engagement fer awhile till I gets on my feet financially—I dont own this place, I just works here! . . . Well then, theres tha fade out and tha end. Lotta Doodimple an tha river rat go away just like me an Henry Hodpole only they get on a big ocean steamboat with rice an old shoes while me an Henry go out an get on a cottage grove car fer home. ORACLE.

AN OMAHA poultry raiser is crowing over the fact that after years of experimentation he has at last produced chickens without wings. S'nuthin'! We've noticed for a long time that the dressed chickens we get haven't any livers, or gizzards, or hearts. Our groceryman says they don't have 'em any more. Wish they'd quit monkeying with chickens. Next thing and they will experiment the drumsticks off of 'em.

THE AIRMEN making the endurance flight out in California complained they couldn't take a bath because of other planes passing by all the time and rubbering at 'em, so they had to have curtains sent up, and then they bathed luxuriantly and probably sang gayly in the bath tub. But the point is that if you even have to pull the shades down when you're up three or four thousand feet in an airplane, then where is a fellow going to find privacy any more? As the farmer said when he saw a circus camel for the first time, "there hain't no such damn animule!"

OUR SECRETARY OF STATE, Mr. Stimson, has announced a brand new job down in Washington, "treaty editor." It's a good idea, but it doesn't go far enough. Besides an editor for treaties there ought to be a comic strip artist for treaties because they're always regarded as a rare good joke by any nation that wants to break them.

NOW ICELAND has grown tired of her bone dry prohibition law and is modifying it so that Spanish wines can be admitted and freely enjoyed by one and all. We are printing this so that Quin Ryan will read it over the radio to the crew of the 'Untin' Bowler, who are on the way to Iceland. If we were the crew of the 'Untin' Bowler we would press on with renewed vigor after hearing that. (Hey, Bob Wood! Buy a bottle of Malaga at Reykjavik, charge it to us, and pipe all hands to grog. Best regards to everybody and good luck!)

HOORAY! It's hot again! Listen to the corn growing down in Illinois and out in Iowah! Or is that the Farm Relief commission figuring on how much the corn will bring to the farmer after it gets to market? Bet the corn gets 'way ahead of the commission and gets to market first. R. H. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

JULY 13, 1864.

PHILADELPHIA.—Communication between Washington and Baltimore was cut this afternoon. Gov. Bradford issued a proclamation calling out the militia of Baltimore and declaring that if it failed to respond proper means will be taken to enforce immediate attention to the order. Baltimore intelligence is that parties of rebel cavalry appeared on the Washington branch railroad simultaneously at Beldenels and Bladensburg. Considerable skirmishing took place in the neighborhood of Bladensburg. The rebels have been plundering in Ann Arundel county, Maryland. It is believed they intend a demonstration on Annapolis, but a sufficient force is there to repel them. Our forces under Gen. Sigel occupied Frederick. A gentleman from Frederick says he counted the rebels as they marched through that city and they numbered 30,000 infantry, with 140 pieces of artillery.

BALTIMORE.—We have nothing from Washington but idle street stories. No dispatches, No papers. No trains.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md.—There is no doubt of the immediate necessity for heavy reinforcements at Washington.

PHILADELPHIA.—The wildest rumors of the capture of Washington are afloat. [To editors; There is probably no truth in the Philadelphia story about the capture of Washington. Agent Associated Press.]

INDIANAPOLIS.—The Copperhead state convention nominated Joseph F. McDonald of Marion for governor, David Turple for lieutenant governor and Oscar B. Hord for attorney general.

CHICAGO.—J. McGregor Adams and Jane R. King were married on July 12 by the Rev. Edward A. Pierce. W. W. Lawton and Miss Annie M. Cooper were married on July 12 at St. James church by the Rev. W. S. Cooper, father of the bride.

SUEZ.—The United States cruiser Olympia with Admiral Dewey aboard arrived here from Colombo, Ceylon.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—After spirited bidding of four hours the Indianapolis News was sold by Receiver Hilton U. Brown for $936,000 to Delavan Smith of Chicago and Charles R. Williams of this city, who held the controlling interest before Maj. W. J. Richards, the other partner, threw the paper into a receiver's hands.

CHICAGO.—At the request of State's Attorney Deneen, Sheriff Magerstadt detailed six deputy sheriffs to aid in finding Dan Coughlin and William Armstrong, who are wanted for trial on charges of conspiracy to bribe a juror.

CHICAGO.—Miss Genevieve Hubbard and J. Herbert Low of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hubbard, 39 33d street.

JULY 13, 1919.

LONDON.—A report from the British dirigible R-34 on its return flight from the United States showed that the craft had traveled approximately 2,675 miles and was within about 170 miles of the Irish coast.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson vetoed the agricultural bill because of its provision repealing the daylight saving law. The President also vetoed the sundry civil bill because he contended that the $6,000,000 it provides for the vocational rehabilitation of disabled war veterans is not sufficient.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Enver Pasha, Talaat Bey, and Djemal Pasha, leaders of the Turkish government during the war, were condemned to death by a Turkish court martial investigating the conduct of the government during the war.

CHICAGO.—Ten thousand Chicagoans stormed the La Salle street station to welcome Eamonn De Valera, president of the Irish republic, when he arrived to deliver his message of freedom. The crowds that greeted him at receptions and luncheons evinced an attitude that left no doubt in the minds of observers of the sentiments of Americans of Irish descent concerning his mission.

AUTO DEATHS.

Chicago, July 11.—THE TRIBUNE deserves great credit for the publicity it gives to the deplorable deaths by automobile in Cook county.

Five people died Wednesday as the result of being struck by automobiles in the streets of Chicago. Four of the victims were 50 years of age, or more, and one was a child of 6.

These accidents certainly constitute a terrible arraignment of the driving methods of a large number of motorists. No doubt the law recognizes walking as the natural way of travel, and places the greater burden of responsibility on the motorist, for he drives a powerful and dangerous machine. However, there seems to be a notion, so widespread among motorists as to be regarded by many of them almost as an unwritten law, which is in effect, "Let the pedestrian beware."

Whoever drives an automobile in a state of mind like this is a menace to society, and any policy or action which tends to overcome the spread of such ideas among unthinking or unfeeling motorists should receive the support of every right-minded citizen.

A child of 6, or an adult of 50, may not be as active or alert as a person at 25 or 30 years of age, but surely this is no reason for people to have to risk their lives in crossing a street or getting on or off a street car.

Let the motorist have an added care for those on foot. MOTORIST.

WHY THE FANS RAGE.

Chicago, July 11.—I wonder if "Chicago Fan" hasn't overlooked a mighty important fact in condemning our Cubs and their fans in this morning's TRIBUNE? Very few real Cub fans have any faith in the umpires because they can't forget the poor decisions and treatment our team has been receiving from them, especially last summer when on the road.

If the Cubs and their fans don't fight for fair play, who will?

A CUB FAN.

A CERTAIN SIMILARITY IN BEHAVIOR.

Chicago, July 11.—If Mr. Chicago Fan has never heard the Sox fans raxx or boo the opposite team or dispute the umpire's ruling he has never witnessed a ball game at Comiskey park. As for sportsmanship, the Sox players sure showed it last season by voting Art Shires a half share of the city series in spite of the fact that he was the best player on the team. CUB FAN.

SOUTH SIDE RAZZBERRIES.

Chicago, July 11.—Was the incessant booing of Cobb and Speaker in recent years an example of the sportsmanship of south siders? They were razzed continually both when in the field and at bat and even today the great Babe Ruth gets the razzberry for no apparent reason.

Cub players never received a greater ovation than did the Philly pitcher who struck out thirteen Cubs and was pulling them out of the league lead. That's north side spirit.

Cub players are also criticized for disputing close plays the arbiter calls against them. That's not poor sportsmanship; it's the fighting spirit found in any pennant contender, which spirit the present White Sox team will never feel or know exists.

HENRY A. SCHMIDT JR.

MOSQUITO ABATEMENT.

Maywood, Ill., July 5.—Two years ago by the efforts of the citizens of the various communities, very ably assisted by the Boy Scouts and with very little money, the mosquitoes were kept down to a point where it was a pleasure for one to enjoy the evening in the free and open air outdoors.

Last year the people of Cook county were assessed for this particular work and the job turned over to the sanitary board. From the results obtained and from the amount of money that the people were assessed the sanitary board should have done better than was done the previous year, but they fell down on the job.

From the present results obtained this year it appears we do not have any sanitary board, or if we do have they are all on a vacation, because the mosquitoes are getting as bad as they were three years ago.

I would suggest to the sanitary board that they do away with the help they have for the mosquito abatement and turn the money back to the taxpayers, or get in touch with the officials of the Boy Scouts and have the Boy Scouts do the work and pay them instead. P. W. GORDON.

HALF STARVED ENGLISHMEN.

Chicago, July 8.—Just a word about the half starved Englishmen. I read P. O'Brien's letter, which was utterly ridiculous. English people certainly are far from starved. I was born and raised there. They are noted for their healthy looks and rosy cheeks.

We always like to look our best, but we don't starve to dress; in fact, let me say this: They eat on the average of four meals a day. That includes breakfast, dinner, tea and supper. If you have ever been in England you will find my statement correct. Furthermore, if the Irish people cooked meals half as good as the English, they could consider themselves first class cooks. In regard to canned foods, very little is eaten, as we grow more vegetables in one month than Ireland grows in one year. I am very glad that England and Ireland are two different nationalities. We have had peace at least these last few years, and in conclusion let me say that the English bobbies, or in other words, policemen, are mighty fine smart men, and I'm glad to say we're proud of them. G. BANHAM.

THE GARFIELD FAMILY.

Norwood Park, Ill., July 9.—In a recent issue of your paper there was a letter from John Rowland asking for information concerning the heirs of ex-President James A. Garfield's brother's family. I have been told that Thomas Garfield, a brother of the ex-President, is buried in a cemetery located in Ottawa county, Mich., and on a farm near there a grandson of Thomas is still living on the same farm that his father and grandfather worked. I have a clipping [quite recent] telling all this in more detail that I would be glad to send to Mr. Rowland if he desired it.

FRANCES H. HORTON.

WHY SO FEW FLIES.

Chicago, July 9.—I wonder if there is any one among your readers who can give a reason why we have so few flies this summer? W. S. GRIFFIN.

Authors Tell About Selves; Why They Work

As Swan Song for "The Little Review."

The final number of the Little Review has appeared—the most interesting literary document of years. Margaret Anderson and Jane Heap are voluntarily discontinuing it, Margaret Anderson because "even the artist doesn't know what he is talking about. And I can no longer go on publishing a magazine in which no one really knows what he is talking about," and Jane Heap because "I have found the answers to some of these questions."

The questions are to be found in a questionnaire which they sent to every one who had contributed to the Little Review. They were:

1. What should you like most to do, to know, to be? [In case you are not satisfied.]
2. Why wouldn't you change places with any other human being?
3. What do you look forward to?
4. What do you fear most from the future?
5. What has been the happiest moment of your life? The unhappiest [if you care to tell]?
6. What do you consider your weakest characteristics? Your strongest? What do you like most about yourself? Dislike most?
7. What things do you really like? Dislike? [Nature, people, ideas, objects, etc. Answer in a phrase or a page, as you will.]
8. What is your attitude toward art today?
9. What is your world view? [Are you a reasonable being in a reasonable scheme?]
10. Why do you go on living?

Since many of the foremost writers of the day [some fifty odd] replied to the questionnaire, so the final number is a memorable thing. The answers are interesting not only for what they say but for what they don't say, for the fact that many of the contributors say so little.

Ben Hecht writes a frank piece in which he says, among other things, that he is now working "on a book called 'A Child of the Century' which will be when finished, two volumes long and will be sold for $5 and come in a box. I have been occupied for two years by this work which will be peculiarly Jewish. If I am lucky it will signalize my first appearance as [what the girls used to call] an Artist. . . . I have earned a living by spending an average of two months a year writing tripe for the lower class popular magazines; before that by running around without rubbers as a newspaper man; and of late by inventing a unique kind of swill for the movies."

Jean Cocteau says "I believe that the aesthetique of visual judgment has been replaced by a moral aesthetique, of which the criterion is emotion."

Janet Flanner in one of the few answers which seem at once cerebral and completely frank says "Most of all I should like to have found my date, to have been born, mentally, physically, esthetically all at one time. . . . My tomb if any will read, 'Hic jacet, 600 B. C. Greece; 1100 A. D. France and Italy; 1700-1800 England. . . . I always have a bundle of hay tied to my nose like a donkey; small hopes, only slightly out of reach and which keep me moving. Looking forward to big hopes I have given over as adolescent." All of which is profoundly indicative of the kind of work that Janet Flanner has done, and extremely self-understanding.

Ernest Hemingway contributes a valentine which he says is "For a Mr. Lee Wilson Dodd and Any of His Friends Who Want It" and which reads in part:

Pockets full of lye;
Four and twenty critics
Hope that you will die.

Hope that you will peter out,
Hope that you will fail,
So they can be the first one,
Be the first to hail
Any happy weakening or sign of quick decay.

Aldous Huxley says that he would like most "to know more about human beings and be a better dramatist." And he says of art: "I profoundly disapprove of the tendencies of a great deal of modern art. The trend away from the human and the organic toward the geometrical and mechanical seems to me horrible and also, for all the superficial brilliancy of the art in question, extremely unintelligent."

He is a modernist in thought rather than in technique. His matter as well as his manner is certainly not "away from the human and the organic," but toward it.

Edith Sitwell's answer to the question what do you look forward to is: "Falling out of fashion so that people will leave me alone to get on with my work."

Ford Madox Ford confesses: "As far as I am myself concerned, there is not one periodical in the British empire that would publish my writings, or, still more, that I would care to see publishing my writings—and it is only very, very lately that that has not been the case in your own vast agglomeration of states."

Maxwell Bodenheim writes an enormously long article called "American Menagerie" in which he completely undresses his ego and parades it naked to the reading world. He has, as has been said of him before, the most aggressive and active inferiority complex in the world. He almost wallows in thinking himself mistreated.

Evelyn Scott, whose "The Wave" has just been published spectacularly, says: "More than anything else, I would rather evolve an art in which the dense and immediate present spoke perpetually through a fluent and forever unconcluded reason—an art which maintained lucidity through other means than the exclusiveness of its content—an art in which an omniverous selection of materials resulted in clarity made perfect without any formula of reticence."

And Sherwood Anderson writes characteristically: "I thought I wanted fame. I have had some of that and want no more of it. . . . Work accomplished is like a woman no longer sweet. . . . Of course, I write. It is often no more than making marks on a wall you have to face. The marks grow ugly and confused and then, sometimes, seem to have a kind of meaning."

There are unusual, and in many cases previously unpublished, photographs of the contributors. F. B.

HERE IS QUIET VOICE OF FOCH NOW AMID SILENCED CANNONS

"Foch Speaks," by Maj. Charles Bugnet [Dial Press]. This book had a simultaneous publication in France, England, and America. It is almost an autobiography in a small way, for it consists of extracts from conversations which Maj. Bugnet, who was aide-de-camp to Foch and also his friend, had with him. The book contains the major's reactions to Foch's moods as well as to his words. It is in no sense a controversial book, for the major is extremely discreet; but it is a volume filled with the personality and the general observations of a man whom the whole world, and not his native land alone, respected and loved.

To see that ancient Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, with its new street signs, Avenue Marechal Foch, and to hear Frenchmen defend the renaming of one of Paris' best known streets, is a comment on what the French think of their soldier-leader.

"To name a lovely, quiet avenue for a military leader is to engender ideas of war in the minds of children," some one observed at dinner one night.

A Frenchman, himself a soldier and a man of the most delicate perceptions, replied: "It is that our children may appreciate the peace which their dead countrymen made possible for them that the name is appropriate." It is as a preserver of their country that the French look upon Foch, rather than as a great military leader.

Popular Serial Best Seller in Book Form

"Visitors to Hugo" and Its Friendly Author.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Visitors to Hugo," by Alice Grant Rosman [Minton-Balch].

The great success of "The Window" put Alice Grant Rosman's second book to be published in America directly on the best seller lists — that and the fact that when it ran as a serial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, under the title "The Young Pretenders," it was hugely popular.

ALICE GRANT ROSMAN.

It is an excellent example of what used to be called a "hammock book" in the days when hammocks were not museum pieces, but part of the equipment of every summer household. It is a novel made up of the lightest ingredients, whipped together into a charming souffé and flavored by just enough misunderstanding on the part of everybody concerned to make things amusing for the reader.

Hugo is a boy of twenty-one who has been in a motor accident and probably never will walk again as the book opens. In his sickroom all of the events take place, which bring to him adventure, friendships, love, and an understanding of life which never had been his when he could walk about and play cricket and dance and do all of the things that he thought made up life. He is a gay, amusing young thing, and as a foil for him there is a girl named Bunny who is a delight.

"Visitors to Hugo" is sheer froth, but it is the kind of delightful effervescence that makes a hot summer afternoon bearable and even welcome.

I met Alice Grant Rosman when I was in London. She is one of those honestly friendly women that are so rare—the kind of person that you like on sight and who, you feel, really likes you. She is an Australian, but she has lived for some time in London, at first doing newspaper and editorial work and then devoting herself entirely to fiction.

She invited the King girls, Loretta and Lulu, and me to tea, and then produced very proudly a young man to add a touch of elegance to the party, for, as she explained, getting a young man for tea in London without two or three weeks' notice is a tour de force.

The young man was named Murray, and is the leader writer on one of the great London dailies, and has but lately published a travel book which is extremely popular in England. He, too, is an Australian. His adventures crossing America fill a large part of his book. Neither he nor Miss Rosman have become at all Londonish. They speak rather more like middle westerners than they do like Oxonians, and they are both amused at the situation in London which makes young men such orchids in the social scheme.

Signs reading "Are You a Superfluous Woman? Why Not Emigrate to Australia?" greet travelers at certain spots, and bring home, even to tourists, the fact that there are four times as many women as men in England. It is difficult for Americans to imagine a state in which men are so sought after. It is almost like the gold rush days in the west, when a woman, of whatever sort, was looked upon as the noblest work of God and courted by a population of males.

Lunching at the Berkeley one day, I noticed the triumphal entry of a good looking male. The greenest eyes of envy were cast upon the two very swanky young things that accompanied him, and he left them four times during luncheon to go to other tables and speak to bevies of girls lunching alone, all of whom received him with the most extravagant welcome. The triumph of mere maleness is a theme as yet undeveloped by modern English novelists, and it is a grand one for a satiric book.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.] — The election to the British parliament, as a Labor member, of Mary Agnes Hamilton is a most interesting event. Mrs. Hamilton can claim to be the first woman writer to enter parliament, for although Miss Ellen Wilkinson wrote a novel last year, after having been in the house of commons for a considerable time, nobody would regard Miss Wilkinson as a writer rather than as a politician.

Mrs. Hamilton has long been known and respected as a novelist upon this side of the Atlantic, and her book, "Dead Yesterday," which was published at the beginning of the war, is something of a genuine landmark.

Mr. Galsworthy's "O. M." [Order of Merit], a decoration which no Englishman would be ashamed to accept, although many Englishmen, and in particular many English writers, would prefer to avoid some other titles of honor, has been received with pleasure by most people, but there are apparently some who would have preferred the distinction to go to Mr. Shaw, Mr. Wells, or Mr. Bennett. But a moment's thought will show that Mr. Galsworthy is really the fittest person to receive this order. His work has everywhere a wide acceptance, both at home and abroad. He has written novels and plays of almost the highest class [although it is sometimes the fashion to decry them]. And he is definitely a person who will do credit to any honor that he receives.

That must be one of the considerations which a Conservative government, leaving office for some time, must bear in mind.

Mr. Galsworthy, although he is no less anxious than the others to reconstruct the art of living, has always been first of all an artist.

Lincoln Park Hit Hardest, Expert's Survey Shows.

Trees throughout Chicago and its suburbs are threatened with death by a species of leaf eating caterpillar known as the tussock, which already has attacked in Lincoln park, with the result that many trees there are dead and dying. This statement was made yesterday by Martin J. Davey of Kent, O., a tree expert, after an inspection in Lincoln and Jackson parks.

Mr. Davey is a naturalist and a tree surgeon, and also a politician. He served terms in congress from his Ohio district in 1918, 1922, 1924 and 1926; and in the last election he ran for governor of Ohio on the Democratic ticket.

"Which is why I was defeated!" he said with a smile.

The Ohio man, at a luncheon at the Drake, dramatically disclosed how the tussock caterpillar is attacking the trees in Lincoln park. He had been asked what he found in his inspection.

"Well," he said, "perhaps I can best show you."

He reached into his pocket, pulled out an ordinary penny match box and, opening it, set it upon the table. Immediately the larvae of the moth, the female of which reproduces itself one hundred fold, started creeping out of the box on the table.

Swarm on Fern Leaves.

Long, thin, threadlike bodies they had, with dozens of furry legs. They crawled fast, lifting their little red heads, topped by two horns, swaying them from side to side as though to say: "Look what's here?" and made tracks towards the green fern leaves, lying in the center of the table. In a moment they had swarmed all over them.

Mr. Davey explained that the leaf is the digestive organ of the tree. The roots take up mineral matter that is carried up to the leaves, which digest it and convert it into living matter. Then it flows back through the trunk to sustain the tree and make it grow.

"Just as the human body must die when its digestive processes are destroyed, so a tree must eventually die when its leaves are gone," the expert said.

Spraying Is Remedy.

"What is the remedy for this condition?" the Ohio man was asked.

"Spraying," he replied. "The trees must be thoroughly sprayed with a solution of arsenate of lead."

He said that he had found conditions in Jackson park as good as they were bad in Lincoln park. "The care in Jackson park," he said, "has been most intelligent. The pruning, spraying and feeding of the trees has been well done. Only there are a few physical defects which might be remedied.

"The tussock has attacked Jackson park only in the north end," he continued. "I believe those which got there came from Lincoln park."

Thousands in Lincoln Park.

He then explained how he had found thousands of the little green caterpillars at work destroying the life giving leaves of trees in Lincoln park.

"One hundred moths will produce 10,000 caterpillars to eat the leaves off the trees," he said. "There will be millions of the moths. By mid-August half the trees in Lincoln park will be leafless."

The expert said he questioned one "crew," consisting of one workman and one foreman, working on the trees in Lincoln park. The foreman supplied the answers.

Q.—Do you spray? A.—O, yes, some.

Q.—Why not? A.—Too many trees.

Student Prince Leads Elmer's Radio Parade

And Other Good Programs Are Close Behind.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

By dialing here and there, enough excellent music was found last night to round out an agreeable and musically profitable evening. Among this music was the last act of the "The Student Prince," from New York, through KYW, 8:30 to 9. How tantalizingly touching are certain portions of this Romberk operetta! Nor do repeated hearings of it lessen the effect.

Of concert stage order was the rendition of Saint-Saens' Concerto for cello, played complete by Theodore du Moulin as soloist and the WLS symphony orchestra, during the station's 9 to 10 symphonic hour. This concerto, new to most of us, has many virtues, both as a show piece for the cellist and as to the music itself. It easily warrants repetition.

Though unheralded by advance publicity, the W-G-N 9:30 to 10 program was a peach of a midsummer night's orchestral program. It might be termed "A Study of the Dance in Music," but it is quite impossible to adequately describe it in few words. There was "Hawaiian Medley," Grainger's "Molly on the Shore," and so on, including dances from popular musical comedy shows.

Herr Louie, the Weasel, "the baby," and the Hungry Five troubadours, W-G-N, 10:10 to 10:20, have recently stirred up some real excitement for the listeners, and apparently for themselves also. The Hungry Five outfit has run onto a good line.

Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony was played complete on W-G-N's Dream Ship program, 11 to 11:20. Somehow, I do not listen to this work as an immortal expression in lovely music, but rather with a feeling appeal was not completed, and we do not know why; we do not know the circumstances under which it was composed. But in its very tone and texture there is something suggestive of a memorial. Thus the work is for me a beautiful and appropriate epitaph.

GEO. LYTTON'S DAUGHTER IS GIVEN DIVORCE

Mrs. Katherine Benello, daughter of George Lytton, president of the Hub store, yesterday won a divorce from her husband, Lieut. Giacomo Mario Benelia, an Italian naval officer. Mrs. Benelia charged cruelty. She was awarded the custody of their son, Carlo, 2 years old.

The Benellos were married at St. Stephen's church in New York City on Jan. 15, 1926. They separated in March, 1928, when she left him in Italy and went to France during an illness, according to the bill. Mrs. Benello waived all claims to alimony. Her attorney, Thomas L. Marshall, announced that a settlement of her property interests had been made with Benello.

Mrs. Benello described alleged instances of cruelty in Italy and on the trans-Atlantic liner Duilio in 1927. Her mother, Mrs. George Lytton, substantiated other charges. A deposition from Katherine Keller, former nurse in the Benello household, offering further substantiation, was read by Attorney Marshall. Mrs. Benello is now living with her parents at 44 Banks street. Benello is said to be in New York.

VATICAN ORGAN SAYS FASCISTS ANNOY CATHOLICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12.—Continuing the violent altercation which shows the temper on both sides over the Italian-Vatican treaty, the Osservatore Romano, Vatican organ, tonight declares Fascist authorities, in the provinces especially, have been suspecting, hindering and annoying the Catholic associations in the peaceful activities which they were guaranteed under the terms of the Lateran treaty and concordat.

The Vatican paper also attacks the Fascist press on the question of censorship.

"Why is it," asks the Osservatore, "that we are told that the Fascist papers may declare that the duce's words about the Lateran treaty are representative of Italian thought, when on the other hand the Catholic papers are suppressed because they maintain that the holy father's words about the Lateran pact also have some validity and must be respected?"

STATE TO OPPOSE FREEING OF SHAW, FATHER SLAYER

A new effort is about to be made to free George Shaw, wounded world war veteran, who on Dec. 5, 1924, stabbed his wealthy father to death, according to a rumor reaching Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott yesterday. Shaw, who has been confined in the Chester asylum for the criminal insane since he killed his father with a saber in their home at 522 North Bellefort avenue, Oak Park, once before tried to obtain his release on a writ of habeas corpus.

Prosecutor Chott said he would oppose Shaw's freedom. The prosecutor stated that at the time of the sentence it was agreed by the family and the defense attorneys that no effort would be made to free Shaw.

Son-in-Law of W. C. Durant Dies Aboard Ocean Liner

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Dr. E. R. Campbell, 55, son-in-law of W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, died of heart failure early yesterday morning on board the European bound steamship Majestic. Dr. Campbell was accompanied by his 19 year old daughter, Edwina. He was said to have been in good health at the time of his departure.

W. L. BRECKINRIDGE FUNERAL TODAY; NOTED ENGINEER

Funeral services for William Lewis Breckinridge, former chief engineer of the Burlington railroad, who died Thursday night at his home after a long illness, will be held at 11 a. m. today at St. Mark's Episcopal church, 4427 Drexel boulevard. Mr. Breckinridge was 72 years old and lived at 4631 Ellis avenue.

Known as an "old time" railroader, who started as a rodman for the Burlington road and climbed steadily to the position he was forced to relinquish because of illness six years ago, Mr. Breckinridge became internationally known when he laid out the Hawthorne yards on the so-called "hump" system.

He was a member of the Western Society of Civil Engineers, the Chicago Engineers' club and the Sons of the Revolution. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Irene W. Breckinridge, two sons and two grandchildren. Burial will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

Robert Henri, American Artist, Dies in New York

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Robert Henri, eminent American artist, died early today at St. Luke's hospital. He was one of the most conspicuous figures in contemporary American art. Last spring when the Arts council of New York City sought the opinion of American artists, collectors, dealers and museum officials as to the 100 most important living American artists, Mr. Henri was one of the three who led the list. Aside from his own painting, Mr. Henri was conspicuous as a teacher and especially as a champion of American art.

Blast Cripples Britain's New $5,000,000 Submarine

MALTA, July 12.—[U.P.]—The British submarine X-1, the largest of the fleet, was making its way to port here tonight after having been damaged by an explosion. No one was injured. The vessel, which cost $5,000,000, was making 12 knots under its own power. It has a speed of more than 30 knots normally when on the surface.

TOWN MOURNS 14 BURNED TO DEATH IN "MOCK FIRE"

GILLINGHAM, England, July 12.—[U. P.]—The entire town of Gillingham, which last night was thrilled by a midsummer carnival, was in deep mourning tonight as final identification was made of the bodies of nine boys and three men who were the victims of a premature fire which destroyed the festival's outstanding performance. The death toll reached 14 late tonight when two more of the youths who had been critically burned died at the hospital.

A gaunt, charred structure, standing almost alone in a field not far from the town council offices, marked the scene of the funeral pyre which took the lives of the 14 performers in a "mock fire rescue" which turned to tragedy while the laughter of 5,000 spectators drowned out the screams of the victims.

The gay festival which entranced Gillingham last night was turned to terror with ghastly suddenness when a tar barrel at the bottom of a flimsy wooden and canvas structure which had been built for the performance of "The Fireman's Wedding" caught fire and sent flames shooting up through the stage. The "wedding guests" and actors were scattered from the first to the fourth floor of the stage building and the work of the rescuers was hindered by the fierce blaze and the suddenness with which it struck.

Spanish Ship Rams and Sinks Britisher; Crew Safe

LONDON, July 12.—(AP)—Lloyds Lands End wireless station received a message from the Spanish steamer Cristina today stating that she collided with and sank the British steamer Seaforth, 349 tons, during a fog near the Bristol channel. The Seaforth's crew was saved.

Mrs. Mary Heard, Wife of Illinois Justice, Dead

Freeport, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary J. Heard, 72, wife of Justice Oscar E. Heard of the Supreme court of Illinois, died today. Funeral services will be held Monday.

500 MEXICAN STORES TO CLOSE; BLAME RUM BAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—Five hundred grocery and general stores in the state of Vera Cruz today notified the authorities they would close at the end of the present month because of the temperance campaign which Gov. Tejeda has been pushing to the limit in Vera Cruz.

The increased high duty levied by the state on all places selling intoxicating beverages has forced the grocers, most of whom have a saloon attached, out of business. In the port of Vera Cruz alone upwards of a hundred grocery and general stores have notified the city they must close at the end of the month.

The stores do more than eighty per cent of the general trade in the port. The closing of the 500 stores will be a heavy drain on the state treasury, which is now attempting to spread the temperance campaign fight among the illiterates, who make up eighty per cent of the state population.

Girl Scouts Leave City for Vacations in Camps

The camp season has arrived for groups of Chicago Girl Scouts who, during the summer, will spend vacations in outdoor camps. A band of 110 girls left the Union station over the Milwaukee railroad yesterday morning for Elkhorn, Wis. Last evening twenty-five scouts and their leaders took a Chicago and North Western train for Timber Trail camp, Nahma, Mich., for a month's stay.

Hold Funeral Services Monday for J. S. Runnells

Funeral services for John Sumner Runnells, retired chairman of the board of the Pullman company, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the Graceland cemetery chapel. Mr. Runnells, who was 84 years old, died on Thursday in his summer home in Chocorua, N. H. He is survived by a son, Clive Runnells, vice president of the Pullman Car and Manufacturing corporation, and three daughters.

TRIBUNE COLUMNS CHICAGO'S BEST MARKET

WHATEVER you want to sell, it's sound sense that your best chance of selling the article . . . for the best price . . . is to offer it in the most "able-to-buy" market.

That's why banks, bond houses and financial organizations . . . all of these astute, seasoned and "show me" advertisers . . . during the first six months of 1929 gave the Chicago Tribune more advertising than to the second Chicago paper. They knew that the Chicago Tribune's circulation coverage was overwhelmingly highest in those districts where there was the most money!

Exactly the same reasoning has influenced Chicagoans who use Want Advertising. They found it most effective to offer their wares . . . real estate . . . household furniture . . . used cars . . . apartments . . . in the great able-to-buy market of the Tribune Want Ad Section!

During the first six months of 1929 the Chicago Tribune was given 111.95% more Want Advertising than to the second Chicago newspaper!

You can sell whatever you want to sell . . . in the moneyed market of the Tribune Want Ad Section. Place an ad today!

THE UNKISSED BRIDE

By BERTA RUCK

SYNOPSIS

Joy Harrison, living in London and working for Dr. Rex Travers in Harley street, is crushed by a letter from her fiance, Geoffrey Ford, a well known novelist, asking to be released from the engagement. Preoccupied with her own trouble she fails to notice that Dr. Travers seems troubled too. Towards the end of the day he tells Joy that he has just given up his house in Harley street.

Dr. Locke, a tenant, tells Rex that he has just been offered a practice with a comfortable villa in the south of France which he cannot take on, and he suggests that Rex recommend Rex for it. The only hitch to the plan is that they want a married doctor and Rex is a bachelor. To his partner's suggestion that he marry and take up the new post Rex turns a deaf ear.

Joy, who has been listening to the doctor's colloquy, suddenly sees a method of escape for her and she asks Dr. Travers if he will marry her on a business arrangement. The doctor is stunned by her suggestion and finally asks her why she made it. She tells him that she is badly in need of another job, although her real reason is to have Geoffrey read of her engagement to another man.

The doctor broods over the change his altered circumstances will have on his young nephew and ward, Percival Arthur Fitzroy. Finally he decides to take Joy at her word and they enter into an agreement to marry on a strictly business basis. Immediately after the ceremony Rex, Joy and Percival Arthur go to the south of France. Joy enjoys hopping house and Percival Arthur has the time of his life. Joy and Rex become interested in each other. Then the Fords, Geoffrey and his mother, appear on the scene. Joy invites them to her first tea party. She and Rex quarrel as a result of it and she decides to go away with Geoffrey.

REX GOES INTO ACTION.

The man who loved Joy listened as if for the answer of some oracle.

The boy replied, simply and quietly now, "She meant it all right. Even before I asked her I knew."

And then Rex Travers felt that he, too, had known.

Had not his own instinct whispered truly? Had not Joy's eyes and gestures betrayed her—even to that gesture of impetuously demanding her freedom? When she had cared nothing for him she could say in so many words, "Dr. Travers, why don't you marry me?" Now she cried in effect "Why don't you let me go?" she had never wanted to go. She cared. Even the boy knew that. Even this kid! Joy cared. Joyous certainty swept in upon the very soul of Rex Travers as the released fountain sweeps down upon the parched stone. Not knowing what he touched, he stacked together his litter of supper things, and for that instant his whole face was irradiated by an involuntary, absent and most boyishly enraptured smile.

It vanished as it came; loudly, the kitchen clock had struck.

Loudly, the boy exclaimed, "Three o'clock? Joy has been gone more than an hour, she's with that blighter. Gone more than an hour now, with him! Where were they going, Uncle Rex?"

"Look out," called Travers sharply, "you'll be run down!"

Gone more than an hour— And where?

"Three o'clock," thought Geoffrey, his eyes turning to the small clock set in the front of the Fiat. "We've done more than thirty miles. . . . Joy's still asleep. Car's still going all right——"

. . . . . .

It was only one instant after realizing that Joy must have been in love with him—think of it—in love with him during all these wasted weeks, that Travers remembered the further truth; that, thanks to his own blindness she was now off at the rate of forty miles per hour with another man. Another instant and he knew what he had to do about that.

He was out of the kitchen; he was upstairs, on the balcony, down the balcony steps, into the garden, heading for the grille. At his heels hurried an aghast boy in pajamas and rain coat.

"Uncle Rex, where you going?"

"Got to get hold of that young Smithson."

"That pilot?" A sudden heart catching breath was drawn. "O! You mean—? You're going to bag his machine to fly after them, then?"

Travers nodded, striding on between the syringas and the syringas.

"Then—then you'll bring her back with you here?"

Travers nodded, striding on.

"I'll streak on ahead, shall I? to Mr. Smithson's hotel?"

"Casino. Dancing still, probably," came curtly from Travers; striding on, he wrenched open the grille, but the boy was in the road before he was. "Listen, there he is. He must have left the Casino. That's his car."

For Percival Arthur Fitzroy, while missing a whole summer term of public school education, had polished his facility for picking out, unerringly, the different notes of different motor cars on the road; when other listeners were just aware of a distant buzz, he distinguished the count's car from the Italian's. He knew this approaching noise for Alan Smithson's hireling French motor.

Instantly the boy dashed out into where the middle of the road was striped by the oncoming flash of brilliance from the car's lights.

"Look out," called Travers sharply, "you'll be run down!"

Percival Arthur did not hear. The open raincoat flapped back from his pajamas as his arms went up in frantic signal.

Just in time! Young Smithson [who had been driving a girl back from the Casino dance to her pension in Golfe Juan, and who was now taking himself home to his hotel] saw, caught in midblaze from his headlights and springing up as it were out of indigo foliage and purple dark, the irradiated, spiritlike creature—one dazzle of fair head, white face, lambent mauve body. Only just in time he pulled up with grating brakes a bare half yard from this apparition.

"What the hell— Ha! It's you, is it? you young devil— O; good evening, Dr. Travers!"

The man who came striding up behind the boy accosted him in brusquest haste. "Sorry, Smithson. It's your plane I want. How's your Moth?"

"Moth? Why—? Nothing much the matter, this afternoon——" The young airman blinked the two bright eyes on each side of the hawk's nose and stared blankly. "She's up in my——"

"You've got to let me borrow her."

"Now, I mean. It's important."

"Righto," said this pilot, promptly. "Get in, won't you? Take you up to her now. Lucky I fixed up that little dashboard light. You'll be able to see your instruments, anyhow."

He started the car up. Into the seat beside him sprang the big doctor in dress trousers and white linen jacket; they were off, just as the Ariel in raincoat and pajamas took his flying leap on to the running board and clung. Away whizzed the car; Smithson's first impression that the flying doctor was, like his little missus at the dance, liable to sudden attacks of balminess, gave way to the conviction that the doctor must have received an S O S to some accident where every second counted. Splendid! Presently everybody would be converted to flying as the only way to get anywhere. "We're not seven minutes away from my aerodrome," he gabbled, reassuringly, crowding the car on [to him any patch of earth where he could land and garage the cherished Moth became automatically Smithson's aerodrome]. "Got a field on the hill, just above the tennis courts. Do it under five."

"Awfully obliged to you——"

During that crazy trip Rex Travers' mind reeved dizzily as any propellor. Having got hold of Smithson, having got the Moth, what next?

He had only the broadest idea; the same thought as Geoffrey had had. Only one place that people motor to from the Riviera; that's Paris.

Five hundred miles to Paris. To the Ritz? the Crillon? the Meurice? To one of these pubs this fellow Ford would presumably take Joy.

His following thoughts raced the couple. At that hour there would not be too many cars bound for Paris? Not as mad as it looked, the search for a needle, one sloping car, in this haystack, the whole of black southern France. Not too difficult to look down and pick out that car, speeding north? Ford was the fellow with the habit of driving with two spotlights burning on either side of his windscreen as well as his headlights.

Yes, he remembered that. Good! Anyhow, mere miserable, elementary, earthbound cars were, as Travers remembered, tied down to routes and roads. The aviator was not so tied down—all space was his! As for light, by great good luck the clouds were clearing off the moon. The full moon would show him round the Basses Alps, the mouths of the Rhone. After that the stars. Presently the dawn.

Not too hard to pick up the lights of that car crawling along at forty; forty at the outside! More likely twenty-five to thirty. Travers wouldn't mind betting that that fellow was no night driver. Five hundred odd miles to Paris for them. For himself so many hours in the air; he could be going at over eighty. A favorable wind! Already he seemed to be taking the wings of that wind.

But hold on. Why, those people would barely be at Avignon. Barely two hours away.

Frank Chase ..... Lucien Littlefield
E. D. Wallace ..... Richard Tucker

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Until further notice Vilma Banky is this department's favorite blonde screen actress.

"This Is Heaven" is completely dominated by the beauty and charm of Miss Banky, whose remarkable personal appeal lends a rose glow of enchantment to an unoriginal and far from plausible story. She has the winsomeness and sincerity of Mary Pickford—whom she startlingly resembles at times—the ecstasy of Dolores Del Rio, the naive and disarming simplicity of Davy Lee. Her work has acquired polish that formerly it lacked, and in the final scenes she talks melodiously and with a most intriguing accent. Yes, young Mrs. Rod La Rocque has come a long way since you saw her last!

She is seen as an immigrant girl who arrives in New York to live with her uncle and his daughter. She is voluminously be-shawled, be-petticoated, and be-bundled—as they tell me the maidens who come here from the old country are not any more. She can speak no English.

But, in the twinkling of an eye—the film would have you believe—she changes. It's no time till, dressed as we dress, thoroughly conversant with subway and slang, we find her tossing pancakes in the window of the restaurant where her cousin Maizie waits table. Cousin, we sorrowfully inform you, here meets a certain rich man, who persuades her to travel the Easiest Way.

Sent by the café manager to take charge of the pancake booth at a society charity bazaar Eva meets her fate—a young man she has seen once before in the subway and thought to be a chauffeur. Of course he's no such thing—the young Croesus! But he lets the girl to whom he becomes almost immediately engaged, believe so until—the very end of the picture—when there is exactly the sort of finale you have expected—and wished for.

Don't think that the course of true love runs smoothly for our Lady of the Pancakes! No! There is a terrible time when Croesus believes the WORST of her and all between them appears to be over forever. Which is one of the situations that makes this story all wrong. No man could possibly have entertained the shadow of a suspicion against Eva—as impersonated by Miss Banky. You'll see.

James Hall is nice as Croesus. Lucien Littlefield as the ineffectual, race horse crazy, motorman uncle is excellent. Fritzi Ridgeway as Maizie and Richard Tucker as the man who means her no good and carries out his meaning give creditable characterizations. Direction is adequate and photography and synchronization please.

Miss Banky appeared in person yesterday and may also be seen today at hours mentioned in the ads on the stage of the United Artists' theater.

Presbyterians Plan Survey of Marriage and Divorce

The appointment of a special committee on marriage, divorce and remarriage by Dr. Cleland B. McAfee of Chicago, mediator of the Presbyterian General assembly, was announced yesterday by Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, Philadelphia, clerk of the assembly. The committee of six ministers and five elders includes two Chicagoans. Dr. Ralph M. Davis, 5208 Kimbark avenue, and Fred P. Vose, 140 South Dearborn street. The committee will attempt an exhaustive study of the three problems, making use of the study and analysis of the statutes of the states and the efforts of the Protestant churches and social service agencies to deal with them.

Methodist Women Ask New Methods for Changing World

Two thousand Methodist women had the floor yesterday at the Des Plaines camp meeting. Morning and afternoon sessions were addressed by representatives of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society and deaconess work of the Rock River conference, under whose auspices the day was planned. Picnics, parties and a children's hour added to the day's activities.

"The deaconess work is full of limitless potentialities," declared Miss Alice C. Thatcher, for 22 years superintendent of Christ hospital, Cincinnati. She spoke at the afternoon session. "As we look into the future and realize we are facing a strange and changing world, old methods will not suffice. New conditions must teach new duties.

"We must become skilled in meeting present day needs. Social life, country problems, religious education and immigration present a stupendous challenge to the church and all its workers."

Earlier in the day the women listened to an ordained Methodist minister of their own sex, Mrs. Rudolph Malek, African missionary, who talked on "From Black Fears to White Horrors." She pleased 100 children in the Bible class preceding her address by teaching them to count and say several African phrases.

Dr. Clifford Northcott, pastor of the First Methodist church, Champaign, and dean of the camp for eight years previous to the present session, concluded the women's day program last night.

"Civilization is riddled with 'roads under construction,'" Dr. Northcott declared. "Human experience may well attach itself to the signs seen at every turn these days—'Road under construction; drive at your own risk.' No modern educators think that the road ever is finished, and that is preëminently true of the highway of Christianity."

The subject of prohibition is expected to come up today. Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, secretary of the World League Against Alcohol and director of the department of education of the Anti-Saloon league, will speak at a luncheon given by the Layman's Foundation of the Rock River conference.

LONDON, July 12.—Romney's famous painting "Blue Boy" leaves England shortly for New York, bought by the Ehrich galleries of New York. The picture formerly was in the collection of the late Mrs. Burns, sister of the late Pierpont Morgan, from whom it was inherited by Walter S. Burns, her son. The sum paid by the New Yorkers was not divulged but it is stated to be very large.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Miss Myrtle Mallgren, 4008 North Damen avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

The Answers.

Jack D. Buchanan, 4520 Congress street, student—I consider its preferable to the old size. One can hold more in his pockets. And I like the looks of the new bill, though the engraving is about the same as before. I wonder if that was a scheme by Andy Mellon. I notice they are all signed by him.

Mrs. Leslie Davis, 3727 Pine Grove avenue, professional dancer—I like the new bills immensely; one can put them in a compact. I have some of them with me. I wonder if they weren't made especially for women. I recived my first roll of the new bills last Wednesday night in Milwaukee, following my appearance before the Wisconsin club in that city.

John Mitchell, Lorraine hotel, steward—I like the new bills very much. They are neater, and fit more easily in the billfold. This small sized currency undoubtedly will meet with favor from the public. At present the supply is limited and the banks are unable to supply the demand.

Mrs. Josephine Theurkauf, 8009 Calumet avenue, housewife—I like the new paper currency very much. I could use more of it to advantage. The former paper currency was, in comparison, impressive for its size, but the new shape is somewhat more in proportion to what one can buy. The new ones fit better into the billfolds.

Frank Norman, 8857 Emerald avenue, traffic clerk—I like the new size as they are more convenient to handle. Besides there is something of a novelty in getting the new ones after handling the larger size all one's lifetime. The difficulty now, as in the past, is enough of them. we haven't

British Bishops Asked for Birth Control Ruling

Educator Says Economics Presents Problem.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—To the manifold troubles of the Church of England, whose bishops yesterday defied parliament by authorizing the use of the new prayer book, is added a new grief today, which threatens again to split the church asunder.

It is the specter of birth control, and no less a person than the Rev. Edward Lyttleton, former head master at Eton and one of Great Britain's leading educators, in an open letter to all bishops today demands that they come out openly either for or against it.

Dr. Lyttleton's demand is taken up by the daily press today, making it practically certain that the governing body of the Church of England is now forced to make a pronouncement on a delicate question which heretofore it has carefully passed over in silence.

Dr. Lyttleton goes boldly to the point and asks bluntly whether the church sanctions or disapproves the principle of restricting the size of a family "put upon us by social and economic conditions," as he puts it.

More sharply yet Dr. Lyttleton puts it up to the bishops: "If the contraception is not wrong in many cases it must be right. Will any pastor say this from his pulpit? Will any bishop put his name to a document commending the practice even to the dwellers of the city slums? Why not? Or will any ordained person avow in public he is himself a contraceptionist? If not, why not?"

There are only two courses open to church leaders, in Dr. Lyttleton's opinion—either to denounce the practice of contraception and see that the clergy enforce the policy, or issue an utterance leaving the question up to individual conscience.

Commenting upon his appeal to the bishops, Dr. Lyttleton said today:

"The humble parish priests and their flocks are now waiting a clear and definite lead from the bishops on the subject of birth control. Something must be done quickly, for the community is suffering from the lack of adequate knowledge of the principles of contraception.

"The Roman Catholic church is very explicit in its attitude, and we ought to make our position equally clear."

JOSE MOJICA INJURED AS FOREIGN EDITORS LISTEN AT RAVINIA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The twenty European editors who had been busied with visits to various Chicago enterprises and institutions yesterday concluded their tour with a trip to Ravinia in the evening to listen to the season's performance of "La Juive."

It was a fairly cosmopolitan, not to say international, event all around. The editors claim homes from such diverse cities as Paris, Rome, Milan, Athens, Riga, Bucharest, Madrid, and Warsaw.

On the stage were Elisabeth Rethberg of Germany, Giovanni Martinelli of Italy, Leon Rothier of France, Florence Macbeth of the United States, George Cehanovsky of Russia, and Jose Mojica of Mexico. In Mr. Eckstein's box as guests were Lucrezia Bori of Spain, Yvonne Gall of France, Edward Johnson of Canada, and William B. Warner of New York.

All of which may sound as though the principal interest of the evening was statistical, but it was not. There was even a bit of added and unexpected excitement about it when Mr. Mojica, after finishing his scene in the second act, and while making his exit through the window, caught his heel, fell, and wrenched an arm so painfully that he was unable to finish the performance. But one seems to have heard somewhere that the show must go on, so Desire De Frere donned the costume and wig of Leopold and went on in the next act in Mr. Mojica's place, incidentally adding Belgium to the international character of the evening.

Outside of this untoward incident there was much gorgeous singing in what remains, after all, an uncommonly wise and well made, if at times amusing, bit of theater. Mme. Rethberg's superb tones in the part of Rachel, Miss Macbeth's lighter and more flexible, but also beautiful, voice as the princess, Mr. Martinelli as Eleazar in his most effective makeup of the season, both kindly and malign at the same time, brooding over the proceedings and ever and anon trumpeting out his glorious tenor; Mr. Rothier's velvety and sonorous bass, were all parts of a fine performance.

Mr. Rothier, by the way, has a curious and ingratiating way in an opera like this. When he opens his mouth to sing it is as though the French language were being printed in a plainer type; not necessarily a larger one, but something clearer.

The ballet, headed by Ruth Page and Edwin Strawbridge, did a dance that was by all odds the best composed from a choreographical standpoint, also one of the best performed of the season. Louis Hasselmans conducted with the effective sense of the theater that is in the music.

Women Vote for National Business Home

Pick Washington, D. C., as Building's Site.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mackinac Island, July 12.—[Special.]—Enthusiasm this afternoon carried the tenth national convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Women into a project that led to pledges of $25,000 toward a national home at Washington.

The topic, which had not even been on the program of the meeting in the Grand hotel here, was precipitated by the gift of $500 from Dr. Anna Ranes of Chicago, a pioneer member of the organization that started ten years ago. Her donation was announced just after a committee of five had been authorized to investigate the possibilities of such action, and to report back to the 1931 biennial.

Less than two hours was required for the amassing of the cash and pledges. Largest amounts on the list above $100 were $1,000 subscribed by a group in honor of Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, national president; $1,000 by Miss Georgia Emery of Detroit; $500 each from Dr. Ranes, Miss Alice Engelhardt of Cincinnati, Miss Margaret Stewart of Ogden, Utah; Mrs. Ora H. Snyder of Chicago, the Michigan federation and the Virginia federation; $350 from the Texas federation, and $200 each from Mrs. W. W. McClench of Detroit and the Detroit club.

Mrs. McClench is the mother of Miss Marion McClench, whose election as national president was announced immediately following.

Miss McClench, a successful insurance woman of Detroit, had been opposed in her candidacy by Miss Mary L. Johnston of Trenton, N. J., principal of an elementary school.

Mrs. J. K. Bowman, Richmond, W. Va., was reelected first vice president; Miss Daisy Leake of Temple, Tex., second vice president; Miss Margaret Stewart, Utah, treasurer; Miss Earline White of Jackson, Miss., recording secretary, and Mrs. Helen Schlurafi of Erie, Pa., corresponding secretary.

Resolutions adopted at the same session touched widely diverging subjects and reflected the policies of the organization, comprising 55,500 business and professional women in the United States and Canada.

"Since, in point of practice," the first read, "there is widespread discrimination against women on the basis of sex in civil service positions and other governmental appointments, municipal, state and federal, we recommend and affirm unequivocally our stand for equal opportunity for women in the matter of appointment, promotion and pay in all governmental appointments, and we ask our executive board to devise a working plan to promote this end."

"As the subject of calendar simplification has been presented to this body," ran another, "we recommend that a special committee of five be appointed consisting of a representative from each regional conference district, to analyze this subject, reporting to the 1930 meeting of the executive board for action." This also was approved.

The Texas delegation introduced a recommendation to the effect "that the 55,500 members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs urge insurance companies to write noncancellable health and accident policies for women, and we request the national board to devise some means of bringing this matter to the attention of the insurance companies."

Endorsement of the efforts of Elihu Root toward the entry of this country into the world court was the subject of the final recommendation, which recited that "the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in convention assembled, send their hearty congratulations to the Hon. Elihu Root for his restatement of the reservations which make possible the entry of the United States into the world court: And we urge the senate of the United States to accept the plan which Mr. Root has formulated. We ask also that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mr. Root and one to the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee."

Delegates gathered at noon today in the main dining room of the Grand hotel for a bon voyage luncheon given in honor of the second international "goodwill tour" of the federation, which will sail from New York next Saturday. Led by Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, national president, the tour will visit seven European countries, including England, Germany, and the Scandinavian countries.

Your Tired Eyes Will Respond Gratefully to Rest Treatment

For tired eyes—and you do see some very tired looking ones—the same old rest cure that you give your body might be tried. Don't make them work. Let them loaf. Give them a vacation. If not a day off—then an evening or a Sunday. Catch up on the Sunday papers on Monday. But they are awfully overworked features—eyes are.

Another great beauty aid for them is to put them to bed at a decent hour, and a number of nights in succession. They get most awfully balky if they're kept up late night after night. Nature has provided them with a mean power of revenge. If they don't get the care and rest they are entitled to—they can go ahead and spoil the face by that dull, listlessness for which abused eyes are noted.

But what I set out to say particularly in connection with eyes has to do with strenuous vacation outdoor life and its effect on them. They had better not be subjected to too strong sun's rays all of a sudden. They'll ache like everything. They'll smart and they'll not look their best.

There is the simplest kind of an eye treatment which I recommend for tired eyes or ones temporarily strained by a too long exposure to strong light. A physiological salt solution, it is medically described as, and consists of one teaspoonful of refined salt added to one pint of boiling water. It makes an excellent wash. You apply it warm on pledgets of cotton to cleanse the eyes, after which cold water should be dashed on repeatedly for tonic value.

A month's consistent eye bathing after the procedure just described will make an amazing difference in the beauty and expressiveness of the eye. The eye's clearness will be a matter of great delight, too.

I recall a friend commenting on the women present at a gathering of professional successes from various fields. She spoke of the smartness of their clothes, the well groomed heads and hands; the obvious attention to the obvious features that score. But the tired, neglected looking eyes grieved the observer. There's where the marks of time spoke out over and above the cared for complexions and bodies.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Leander McCormick-Goodhart, commercial secretary of the British embassy left this morning by motor for Butler, Pa., to join Mrs. McCormick-Goodhart in the country home of her parents, former Representative and Mrs. Thomas W. Problems of Marrieds Call for Compromise, This Reader Claims

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I read with considerable interest the column which appeared recently regarding the wife who had a greater earning capacity than her husband's and was unhappy because of it.

"It seems to me that there is considerable opportunity for difficulties to arise over that question. Some men detest the idea of their wives continuing their jobs after marriage, and some do not. I have heard of the woman who becomes bored with home life and whose career means the breath of life to her; also, of the woman who follows her chosen vocation only to eventually weep bitterly over one of those 'other woman' situations.

"I have read of the husband who is in hot water because his wife persists in placing her career ahead of him, and then perversely becomes bored when she gives it up to devote her entire time and attention to him. It's a problem, whatever way you look at it, and one which depends largely on the persons involved and the circumstances governing them.

"This question, as do all questions which come up in marriage, involves compromise and adjustment. What may seem best now may be a poor solution in a year from now. Shifting circumstances, shifting emotions, shifting outlooks mean a constant shifting of solutions and viewpoints.

"Marriage is even more to be studied and a more serious venture than it used to be and should be met with more determined efforts to solve and make it successful. The more difficult of attainment, the more to be prized the reward.

"We may ask advice and profit by it—but our problems are our own to solve, our own to adjust. Each problem has different faces and the same face does not always remain toward us all the time. I, myself, have a problem which clings around my throat like a proverbial 'old man of the sea.' I have not solved it. I may never solve it. I have compromised with it and have been compelled to alter the compromise. I have been struggling with it and I know I have still to struggle with it for perhaps a long time. But—there is never complete peace and contentment in a pleasant but uncertain companion."

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Milk Puddings.

The ideal nursery dish seems to be the milk pudding. Many and many a reference did we find to milk puddings, before we were quite certain that our old-fashioned rice pudding, or poor man's rice pudding, was an ideal milk pudding.

An Englishman who wrote a book last year, on foods, begins by saying that as a nation the English are rightly proud of their puddings, and inclines to sneer at the French on that account. He did not mention, however, that the Germans can lead them all in pudding making, and he did misinterpret the French gâteau. As a matter of fact, the French gâteau-de-riz is exactly a milk pudding, or a rice pudding baked in a pan marvelously well, so that it can be cut up into squares and eaten as a cake.

The Englishman apostrophized his milk pudding as follows: "A thing noble in its simplicity is old fashionable English Milk-Pudding, always providing the cook's conscience be not burdened with the guilt of having committed the Impossible capital sin: the addition of even one single egg, or a pinch of any sort of spice. Nothing but milk, cream, sugar and chosen green, ripe—Patna is the best—sago, barley, groats, perhaps occasionally tapioca, for the forcibly superannuated gourmet or arrowroot for the strayed reveler—should enter into its compestion."

The milk pudding is really condensed milk pudding because it is the condensing of the milk in the baking that makes it delicious. The formula for this simple rice pudding is: A quart of milk for four tablespoons of rice. With perfect baking no sugar is needed, especially if raisins are added, as they used to be, generally. Wash the rice well, pour boiling water on it, let stand five minutes, pour off the water and drain, put this into a buttered baking dish, add milk and bake for three hours in a 300 degree oven, stirring the top in now and then.

With the right baking the top will not begin to puff and brown much inside of an hour, when it is time to stir it in, but after it is once hot it will brown more readily and the top must be stirred in before it darkens too much. In stirring in the top one should also scrape off the brown ring on the dish and stir that in. That should never be allowed to get too brown and stiff because it is a valuable flavor element for the pudding.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edwin Lewis of 1734 East 56th street, to Arvid Crandall, is to take place at noon today at the Thorndike Hilton Memorial chapter. Mrs. Samuel Lewis Southard will be the bride's only attendant, and Howard Fenton Lewis, brother of the bride, will be Mr. Crandall's best man. Only members of the two immediate families are to be present.

FARM and GARDEN BY FRANK RIDGWAY

Fancy leaved caladiums ought to be better known to gardeners in this country. They still are unknown in most American communities and only slightly known in others, according to horticulturists. This summer at the Garfield park conservatory summer show flower gardeners will have an excellent opportunity to see some of the finest caladiums grown.

One of the most interesting plants in the exhibit is a hybrid fancy leaved caladium named for August Koch, chief florist of the west park system of Chicago. Dr. Henry Nehrling of Gotha, Fla., an American hybridizer, named the flower for Mr. Koch as an expression of his appreciation for the work Mr. Koch has done in making the caladium better known to the public. Caladium "August Koch" is one of the finest of the hundreds originated by Dr. Nehrling.

This great flower is nothing new to Mr. Koch, for he grew them in large quantities thirty years ago while serving as a gardener on a famous estate in France. Caladiums still are popular for conservatory decoration in Europe.

During his eighteen years at Garfield park Mr. Koch has built up a choice collection of about 160 varieties of caladiums. At the present time there probably is no finer collection in existence outside Dr. Nehrling's Florida garden.

At the park conservatory the plants are grown in tubs, and lack of space in the past has handicapped the florists in making a proper display of them for the public. The completion of the horticultural hall at the Garfield park conservatory makes it possible effectively to exhibit Mr. Koch's great collection.

During the summer there will be a jungle of caladiums in the new hall—a jungle of rose, pink, green, and white colorings. The present summer show, which is free, will be opened daily from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., and will last until Labor day.

BY THALIA

With banners flying and bugles sounding, the Fort Sheridan horse show started yesterday morning and continued throughout the day. Despite the scorching rays of the sun, the show was run with military precision. The spectators gave enthusiastic attention to every event on the crowded program.

The little weather beaten grand stand, just across from the somber towers of the fort, was filled with uniformed officers and brightly dressed women and children. A row of khaki clad privates perched on high benches at the far end of the show ring. On all sides autos were parked where their occupants might watch the contests with ease. Luncheon was served in the tea tent under the direction of Mrs. C. H. Conrad Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Conrad, the commander of the fort.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker of the Sixth Corps area and Mrs. Parker occupied one of the center boxes near the judges' stand and had as their guests Col. and Mrs. William Stokes, their daughter, Miss Virginia Stokes, Miss Alyce Siqueland, Miss Katherine and Miss Ann Parker, and Miss Hilda Randall. Mrs. Parker wore navy blue georgette with a wide brimmed black horsehair hat, Mrs. Stokes was in blue and white printed silk and Miss Siqueland wore a green crepe frock with a tan straw hat.

Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne were hosts to Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter S. Crosley and Mrs. Delburn M. Campbell. Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee, who arrived yesterday for a visit with the Edward Ryersons, was with Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney and Mrs. George Clark. Mrs. Sherfesee wore blue and white flowered chiffon and a black horsehair hat. She still carries a cane, for the ankle which she sprained several months ago is still troublesome.

For probably the first time since she became old enough to ride Miss Elizabeth Chase watched a horse show from a box instead of participating in it. She has not yet completely recovered from her recent fall at Onwentsia and still needs crutches to get about. With her were Mrs. M. P. Wamboldt, Mrs. Carter H. Fitz-Hugh, and Miss Mildred FitzHugh. Mrs. Roy Carney was hostess in a nearby box to Mrs. Sidney Vigo, Mrs.

William S. Joyce, and Miss Dorothy Gilmore.

Mrs. Press Hodgkins, wearing an orange and brown printed ensemble and a brown straw hat, watched the events from an open roadster with her sister, Miss Florence Carr, in a lavender sleeveless dress and white hat. Miss Carr's house guest, Miss Gretchen Bremer, wore a white sleeveless dress and white felt hat. Also watching from a car were Mrs. J. Andrews King and Mrs. Donald Douglas, both wearing sleeveless white crepe dresses and large black straw hats.

With Mrs. Kent Chandler were Emerson Chandler, and Godfrey Haggard, the British consul general, and Mrs. Haggard. Mrs. Chandler wore a light blue pique dress and a small blue hat.

With Mrs. Ralph Richardson were her daughters, Miss Frances Richardson, in a white pique frock and eggshell blue felt hat, and Mrs. Frederick Spencer in a blue and white printed frock, and Miss Christy Mann in white with a navy blue hat.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair's guests included Mrs. Howard Linn in a brown twill skirted riding habit and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler in a beige crepe dress and hat. Mrs. William H. Mitchell had with her Miss Edith Cummings, Mrs. Russell Kelley and Mrs. John Kellogg. Mrs. Mitchell wore yellow crepe with a pleated crepe collar, Miss Cummings was in chartreuse with a green angora sweater, Mrs. Kelley wore a blue and white print and Mrs. Kellogg's frock was of red and white figured silk.

Also seen in the boxes or at the rail were Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin in chartreuse chiffon with matching hat, Mrs. Thorne Donnelley in a blue and white ensemble, Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord in a peach colored dress and hat, Mrs. Paul Llewellyn, Mrs. Alfred MacArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peck.

The American Classic at Arlington Park today constitutes another big racing day in this summer of so many of such affairs. There are many out of town race enthusiasts here for the event, and Vice President Curtis is to attend again as the guest of the Albert D. Laskers. Most of the Post and Paddock members will be there with large parties of guests.

Among the Chicagoans who are subscribers for the summer season of the Playhouse at Stockbridge, Mass., are the Frederick T. Wests, the George Higginsons, Miss Kate Buckingham, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Metz, Mr. and Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, Mr. and Mrs. James Ransom Walker, and Mrs. Walter F. Cobb.

Mrs. David B. Dyche has joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Evans Hoyt at Williamstown, Mass. The wedding of Miss Hoyt and Mr. Dyche took place early this summer. Mrs. Peck Matthiessen of 223 Delaware place was a recent visitor at the Red Lion Inn at Stockbridge.

Doubtless Thomas Jefferson Would Have Invited Edison

New York, July 12.—Thomas A. Edison was unanimously elected as a Thomas Jefferson guest" at Monticello, by the board of governors of the Thomas Jefferson memorial foundation at a special meeting yesterday in the Westinghouse Lighting institute. The honorary title will be conferred on Mr. Edison at Monticello, Va., on Aug. 10. He will be the first man to receive the title, which is to be bestowed from time to time on men and women, to be chosen for outstanding service in science, art, literature, education, or government.

Tomorrow Sally Tells Ravinia List for the Party on Thursday

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Good morning, girls and boys! There will be fine news for you in tomorrow's TRIBUNE—for I'll print the list of winners for next Thursday's party at Ravinia. Won't you be happy if you name is included in that list?

Imagine the fun we'll have! The ventriloquist, Charles Ullerich, bringing bird songs and weird voices from the roof of the Ravinia auditorium, the bushes and woods of the "beautiful park," "Micky and Harold," who are expert dancers—why they can all but tap out music with their feet, and there's the world famous Chicago Symphony orchestra with Eric Delamarter conducting.

So it's a wonderful time Mr. Louis Eckstein, president of Ravinia, is providing, and you know too, that this isn't all the fun by any means! There's the beautiful ride out to Ravinia and back on the North Shore Electric, one of the finest rides anywhere around Chicago, in private cars all our own, that Britton I. Budd, president of the North Shore and Elevated Roads, was kind enough to give us. So won't it be a wonderful day for everyone whose letter has won them an invitation?

U. C. Experts Gather Copies of All Known Chaucerian Script

University of Chicago has copies of 79 of the 81 known manuscripts of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," thanks to the research of John Matthews Manly, head of the English department, and Prof. Edith Rickert. This collection was begun by them four years ago, and today there are 40,000 folio photostat pages of the manuscripts to their credit. The work of perfecting these copies and of collecting them will take another three years, Dr. Manly said yesterday.

This is the only complete compilation of the original Chaucer tales. This poet, who died in 1400, also was a business man and public official. But his writing had to be copied by hired scribes who, of course, made many errors. The problem of the two researchers has been to locate the originals or earliest copies.

DAYS LIKE YESTERDAY MAKE YOU THINK OF ICE FOR THE POOR

Whew! Hot weather's here. With a few more summer scorchers like yesterday's, THE TRIBUNE free ice fund will behave in a few days like a chunk of ice left in the middle of Michigan avenue.

Early this season the Algonquin camp made no secret of its needs and friends rushed to the rescue. They gave that fund a good start for the summer.

Now the ice fund has only $800. Hundreds of ice tickets have been given out to families down in the tenements, and the ice dealers will have to be paid. More than that, hundreds more families where there are tiny sickly babies are hoping ice wagons will come to their back doors, too.

Rides in boats on the lake, skimming across the cool water with a cooling breeze in one's face, automobile trips into the country away from the congestion of city heat and traffic, cool drinks with tinkling ice, or refuge in a cool theater can be had by thousands of Chicagoans these stuffy days and nights. But such relief is not for those with flat purses.

With the simple request to "please do not publish my name," a modest friend of the Algonquin fund sent a $200 check to THE TRIBUNE yesterday. With that amount twenty mothers will share the joys and benefits of the Fox river valley retreat for two weeks. Ten dollars sends a mother or child to camp for that period. Every cent given by TRIBUNE readers helps to provide the vacations for 1,400 mothers and children until the middle of September.

The German club of the Harvard school, 4731 Ellis avenue, put on a play and raised $29, and the Mu Delta sorority sent a check for $25. The list of gifts arriving yesterday follows.

H. F. Parsons' Paris Home to Cost $1,200,000, He Says

PARIS, July 12.—Hubert F. Parsons, president of the Woolworth Stores, announced today he has completed arrangements for building a palatial mansion to cost $1,200,000 on the fashionable Avenue Foch, until recently known as the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. Mr. Parsons arrived in Paris only last week, but immediately consulted with contractors and real estate agents. He indicated he would make his home in Paris most of the year in the future. Asked why he had not chosen one from the many mansions already built along the avenue and known to be for sale, Mr. Parsons declared he has pet ideas of architecture of his own which he wants to see realized in his Paris home.

Music Experiments with Little Children Offer Suggestions

A book on the care of babies by Miss Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, a noted authority on the subject, can be had at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents, or by mail for 60 cents. Two booklets by Mrs. Bevans, one on "Prayers and Graces for Children" and another on "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them," will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Those of us who have observed very little children a great deal and those who have, for a number of years, made intensive studies of a particular group at a particular age become concerned with the question of what sort of experience is a strain on a child. We notice sometimes with pride that he may do a thing, a difficult thing for his age—but we often notice that after it he shows it has been too much for him.

Suppose, for instance, a very little boy well under 3 has been expected at home to button his clothes, lace his shoes, etc. He may be urged to stick to each thing and finish it, with the idea that it will make him self-reliant. But after doing so he may cry easily at nothing, become tense or excited without any obvious reason for it. He can do the things required, but at too great a cost.

Overstimulation is another thing we watch for—from the kind of play he has, from too much constant association with people, from music, perhaps, or some other cause.

Here is a music experience of Carmen S. Reuben with children under 3: "Every afternoon we invite the children into the room where the piano is, which is the general playroom. I sing and play to them for from ten to fifteen minutes, using simple selections with marked rhythms and avoiding in general the more complex type of music.

"I have experimented on two occasions with a florid song and discovered that there was marked overstimulation of the children as a result. This overstimulation of the children was manifested by shrieks and by much increased motor activity which soon became uncontrolled."

This is part of a brief account of some music experiments that were conducted by Carmen S. Reuben with children of 3 and under in the "Nursery School of Miss Harriet Johnson." Miss Johnson's shorter book was mentioned earlier this week. There was no space on that day in which to refer to the work in music that was done with these little children, but which is written of in the latter part of the booklet.

Many mothers want to foster a love of music in their young children. Although they know that some music is too complicated or sophisticated for these almost-babies, they do not know just how to use music with them. To dance, to sing, to move, to listen to music are all things little children love to do if we give them the right kind of opportunity.

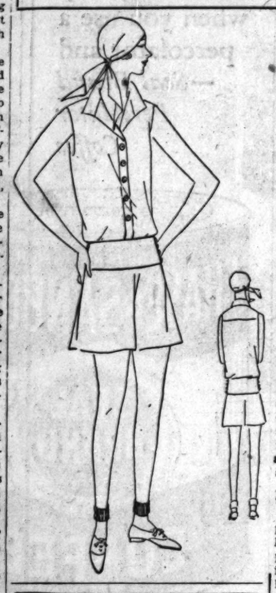
Here's a Uniform for the Camper



BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK, — [Special Correspondence.]—There are a great many short sighted vacationists this year. That is to say, they can see nothing but the "shorts" which have sprung up in every shop and which tempt us all away from the suggestion of any garb more burdensome.

You make take the above costume to any haunt where you expect to do active work. But it is especially emphasized for the camper. Here is the uniform in detail: Bright yellow linen short with yoke top fitting over a sleeveless tuck-in of white linen. A handkerchief of yellow silk, bound gypsy fashion about the head, and socks with bright yellow tops. That is all.

Departing from the realm of sports wear to that of formal modes, one is impressed by the degree to which the lingerie finish obtains in the newest frocks. Chiffon and georgette, lace and pique—these, together with organdy, soften the neck lines and diversify sleeves and sashes of early autumn modes. The V neck line is in the ascendant among these early fall styles and this is frequently finished by bow, jabot or frill of the contrasting material.

Another manifestation of lingerie importance occurs in onesided collars of lace or georgette used to finish the popular V lines. Still another occurs in gilets and vestees of handkerchif linen or pique introduced in the cloth frock, as also in the sweater with an inevitable effect of softening.

Sleeves, too, benefit from the lightening touch and, whether the lingerie complement be carried out in cuffs or in undersleeves, is to be reckoned as one of the important minor notes of the coming season.

Never Finished a Story.

"Some time ago I read part of a continued story in a magazine and was never able to get the rest of it. I wonder if one of your readers has a copy of the book. It is 'Hearthstones,' by Elizabeth Stancy Payne. I would appreciate so much getting it.

Does your library have a copy of this novel in it? Or have you the numbers of the magazines in which it appeared as a serial? This correspondent would be happy to have either.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Seaming in the front and back of the bodice of this dress helps create an appearance of slenderness. Two folded bands trim the lower part of the waist to assure a snug fit through the hips, and the attached skirt shows youthful box-plaits across the front, with a perfectly straight back. Dull black crêpe with the vest of an egg-shell shade, navy blue silk crêpe showing white dots, with the vest of white, and beige georgette crêpe are interesting suggestions.

The pattern, 2705, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material with ½ yard of 40 inch contrasting.

The Bubble Burst.

The local high school presented a play. I was to play the part of Falstaff and appeared on the stage enveloped in a great rubber suit expanded by air to give me the necessary Falstaff proportions. Just in the middle of a speech the vast proportions began to diminish, attended by a loud hissing.

The uproarious audience overwhelmed me before I could disappear with my deceptive covering hanging about my gaunt limbs in voluminous folds. B. V. H.

David was being spoiled. His aunt and uncle, with whom he was staying, were showering the lad with attention. Affection and gifts were too plentiful.

The uncle concluded it was high time to call a halt. So one evening he came home and paid little attention to David—there was, just a calm "Hello David" and not a toy or candy with the greeting. David was surprised at the cool manner. He cuddled up to his uncle, put his little arms about his neck and said, "Now, Uncle John, don't tell me you have stopped loving me!" C. S. C.

No FUN on her Vacation

Will you meet interesting people on your vacation? Will they like you? Will attractive men make a fuss over you? Will you be popular?

This Kansas City girl has good looks and personality—but men and women alike have avoided her for years. She has a lonely time of it wherever she goes. Somebody ought to tell her why.

Don't fool yourself

Halitosis (unpleasant breath) is a barrier to friendship, affection and business progress.

So many every day conditions cause it that no one is entirely free of it. And since you cannot tell when you have it, the one way of putting yourself on the safe side is to use Listerine as a mouth wash 3 times a day. Take a bottle with you on your vacation—or don't go.

Kills germs—destroys odors

Full strength Listerine ends halitosis because it strikes at the germs which cause odors. And instantly destroys odors themselves. Our free Book of Etiquette is yours for the asking. Address Dept. H. 8, Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Chicago's racing season, the richest in stakes and purses offered in the country this year, reaches its peak at Arlington today when the American National Jockey club stages the $60,000 added American Classic.

The race, which will decide the 3 year old championship, will likely be witnessed by a crowd of more than 50,000, which will be the largest race gathering ever to assemble at a Chicago track. It becomes a championship event because the field includes every big 3 year old stake winner of the year both east and west.

Among the starters will be Clyde Van Dusen, the Kentucky Derby victor; Dr. Freeland, winner of the Preakness; Blue Larkspur, which captured the Withers and Belmont stakes in New York; Windy City, the master of his field in the American Derby; Rose of Sharon, triumphant in the Ashland Oaks, Kentucky Oaks, Illinois Oaks and Latonia Oaks, and Grey Coat, which took down the prize in the Dwyer stakes.

Rose of Sharon Unbeaten.

Never before has such a notable array of 3 year old stake winners been brought together, and, coming into the Classic, all the widely known 3 year olds are knocking at the championship door, but with the exception of Rose of Sharon each has met up with an unexpected defeat that has dimmed his championship hopes. The others in the field of 17 have performed notably in stakes of lesser value and from the way the upsets have come along one after another in the 3 year old struggles this year it isn't at all certain one of the slightly regarded colts or fillies may not turn up as the winner at long odds.

In the overnight betting Blue Larkspur had been made the favorite at 4 to 5. Rose of Sharon was the second choice at 3 to 1. Clyde Van Dusen was at 4 to 1 and the fourth choice was Grey Coat at 8 to 1. The others were all at long odds and if the 17 overnight entries go to the post eight horses will be grouped in the field. It was indicated last night by officials of the Arlington mutuel department that the field horses will be Glen Wild, Panchio, Live Oak, Dr. Parrish, Grand Prince, Jean Valjean, Royal Ford and Paul Bunyan.

Track May Be Fast.

The track at Arlington was still muddy yesterday, but a hot sun was beating down and a brisk wind was blowing over it. The track was drying rapidly toward the end of the day. Track Superintendant Billy Meyer planned to work it throughout the night with 40 teams and a half dozen tractors. If there is no more rain and the sun shines this morning he believes the track will surely be good for the running of the Classic. He declared there was a chance that it might be fast.

But wherever the turf fans were congregating in the loop last night, and there were hundreds of them there from every section of the country, track conditions came in for much of the advance speculation. Old timers

Sox Lose, 12-2, as Lyons Fails to Awe Yanks

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Ted Lyons' well advertised reclamation suffered a slight setback yesterday in the second game of the Yankee series. Ted didn't have anything but his membership card in the Baylor Alumni association and that wasn't enough to intimidate the second place New Yorkers. The sad outcome was Yanks, 12; Sox, 2.

The playing field was a veritable inferno, to use the words of one of the educated ballplayers, and the heat made the affair rather sticky for the 37,000 ladies' day customers who turned out to view the proceedings. There was some nice slugging by the enemy but little of it by the showboys, Ruth and Gehrig. Babe made a double and Lou continued hitless in the series. Combs, Robertson, Ruth and Lazzeri were permitted to go to the bathhouse before the game ended, it was that hot.

Herb Is Still There.

While Lyons' behavior in the 3 2-3 innings he worked may have lodged some question marks in the minds of those who are pulling for his comeback, there was nothing about which to speculate in the matter of Mr. Pennock, erstwhile dead arm left hander. Herbert is just as good as ever. In fact, it seems his attack of neuritis did him good. He easily could have scored a shutout had he chosen to bear down through the last two innings.

The only notes of cheer careful observers of the Sox enjoyed was the third base play of Kamm and the continued promise that Watwood may develop into a powerful slugger. Kamm flirted with a record when he made five putouts and six assists. On one occasion early in the game he went to the right field side of second base to catch a fly. Capt. Bill also contributed a double and a single to the Sox offensive, such as it was. As to Watwood—he nicked Pennock for a triple and a single.

There doesn't appear to be any crying demand for us to wade through the history of all the Yankee runs, but if you'll wait till we turn the fan a little more this way we'll relate the fate of Mr. Lyons.

Ted opened the second inning by walking Gehrig. Kamm threw out Lazzeri and Meusel grounded to Ted, but Dickey doubled to center, scoring Gehrig. Durocher then popped to Kamm.

Yanks Get Two More.

In the third inning Pennock started things with a single to left and stopped

Williams Runs 100 in 9 3-5 to Beat Wyckoff in Canada

HASTINGS PARK, Vancouver, B. C., July 12.—(AP)—Percy Williams tied the world's record of 9 3-5 seconds for the 100 yard dash in defeating Frank Wyckoff of Los Angeles by almost a yard on the opening day of the two day British Columbia athletic carnival. Fitzpatrick, Hamilton, was but a yard behind.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

AMERICAN CLASSIC.

EVERY outstanding 3 year old in training is entered in the American Classic to be run at Arlington Park this afternoon. If a champion is to be determined among the present crop of acrobatic equines whose performances have been the despair of handicappers, the American Classic winner will have a good start toward that honor.

Whatever one may think of the caliber of 1929 3 year olds as compared to other years, their inconsistency certainly makes the event more interesting and no doubt has attracted a larger field than ordinarily would go to the post, even for a stake of this size in mid-July. When there are two or three outstanding colts and fillies, owners of others are prone to refuse the issue as hopeless. Nothing, apparently, has been hopeless in this division this spring.

So we have in the field this afternoon the winners of the Kentucky Derby, American Derby, Preakness, Belmont stakes, Ohio State Derby, Dwyer stakes, besides Rose of Sharon, winner of the Kentucky, Illinois, and Latonia Oaks. That is a notable collection of stake winners.

While it would be unfair, perhaps, to single out individual entrants from the scrambled form to date, The Wake's interest will center on Blue Larkspur and Rose of Sharon. After his Louisville defeat Blue Larkspur was establishing title claims when Grey Coat, with a seven pound pull in weights, took him in the Dwyer stakes at 1¼ miles. We never have relinquished our early opinion that the Bradley youngster is a good colt.

Rose of Sharon has been beating all of her sex and apparently improving in each race. It is unusual for a filly to be 3 year old champion. The feat is less difficult this year. Several keen critics think Rose of Sharon can do the trick.

Hack Wilson.

Dear Wake: Some persons professing to be Cub fans think Hack Wilson rude for striking Kolp. I give Hack credit. He is only human and we all can stand just about so much wisecracking and no more. Had not Hack accepted Kolp's invitation into the Reds' dugout these same fans would call him yellow and a coward. All REAL Cub fans give Hack credit.
Miss Cub.

Dear Harve: Since the days of "Tinker to Evers to Chance" I've been a Cub fan, but I'm weakening a little. I congratulate you on your Wake comment, the first sane attitude I have seen. I don't know the merits of the case, but Wilson and Kolp should remember they are public entertainers, and as such they should be prepared to accept the comment made in heat of contest. Your counsel of moderation is so appropriate at this time that I couldn't help expressing my appreciation.
Wallie.

ILLINI TO FIND ELIGIBILITY RULES SEVERE

Champaign, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—University of Illinois athletes and other students engaging in extracurricular activity, will find scholastic requirements for eligibility more severe when they return this fall.

The administration council today ruled that any student whose reports at the end of six or twelve weeks show more than one failure, other than in military science, physical education or hygiene, may be declared ineligible until the next report is received. This would make it possible for the council to declare athletes ineligible on the eve of important contests. Ineligibility is not automatic, however.

HEYDLER ACQUITS WILSON; DONOHUE NOT ASSAULTED

Importance of Scuffle Exaggerated, He Finds.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Hack Wilson, the battling Cub outfielder, will not be boiled in oil, exiled or even jailed for the right hook he landed on the chin of Pitcher Pete Donohue of the Reds, the night of July 4, in the Union station at Chicago.

"A severe reprimand and nothing more is warranted," said President Heydler of the National league tonight, after he had weighed the evidence submitted earlier in the day by five Cubs against previous testimony given by seven members of the Cincinnati club.

In addition to giving out his own prepared statement so that he would not be misquoted, the National league head remarked that he considered the matter a fight and not an assault and that he preferred to have it understood that he conducted the investigation only because the Cincinnati club had made a formal request which was permissible under the league constitution.

Importance Is Exaggerated—Heydler.

Before giving out his formal statement Heydler also made mention of numerous discrepancies in the evidence submitted and rather slyly remarked that the affair wasn't half as important as it had been made to appear. He also commented on the absence of animosity in the testimony which ran into thousands of words.

The four Cubs who were witnesses, and also Wilson, gave their version to the league chief this morning and the point Heydler stressed before each of them was whether Donohue was in a position to fight when Wilson hit him and knocked him down. They were assured that Donohue wasn't stooping down to pick up a grip when the blow was struck. This claim had been raised by some of the Cincinnati men.

"After considering the testimony of Chicago and Cincinnati players, the evidence did not sustain the Cincinnati club's charge that Hack Wilson had made 'an unjustifiable and brutal assault on Pitcher Peter Donohue,'" said Heydler in his formal statement.

"The testimony of the Cincinnati players was to the effect that Wilson came to the station seeking to make Pitcher Kolp either apologize or fight for taunting him on the field earlier in the day and calling him yellow. Several Cincinnati players good naturedly had advised Wilson to forget his grievance and not to go into the Cincinnati club car after Kolp.

Donohue Facing Wilson.

"Then Wilson and Donohue had words between them which led to insults passed on both sides. Wilson rushed at Donohue and struck him in the face, but players promptly separated the combatants. The testimony of the Cincinnati players further was to the effect that Donohue was not expecting the assault.

"The testimony of the Chicago players agreed with that of the Cincinnati witnesses in all details of the words passed and the joking attitude of all concerned until the fisreup and Wilson's rush, but their main point of difference was that the Chicago players were agreed that Donohue was standing erect and facing Wilson when he made his attack.

"The entire case hinged on whether or not Donohue was attacked premeditatedly while in no position to defend himself and while unaware of the impending assault. I cannot conceive a man in Donohue's position, following the passage of insults with an angry man, stooping down and looking away from such a situation.

"From this conflicting testimony I can only deduct with certainty that the men had passed insults to each other and that Donohue, in all reasonableness, should have been prepared to defend himself."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Travis Jackson drove a homer into the left field seats on the first ball pitched by Pat Malone in the tenth inning today. That was the finishing touch to another of those stirring fights for which the Cubs and Giants are famous. The homer, a fairly respectable smack even with allowances for the confined spaces of the Polo grounds, gave the Giants a 4 to 3 decision that only a few minutes before seemed out of their reach. It also dropped the Chicagoans three games behind the leading Pirates.

It was only by showing some of that never quit spirit that the Cubs got into the argument. Larry Benton, ace of the Giant staff, annoyed them in distressing fashion for six innings, and meanwhile the domestics were coasting along under a two run advantage picked up off Charley Root in the third round. The Chicagoans started with a homer by Stephenson in the seventh, tied it with a couple of more blows in the eighth, and jumped out in front with another in the ninth. But the slim advantage couldn't be held.

Bush Relieves Root.

Root was removed from the fight in the seventh when a blow by a pinch hitter could have created havoc. This alteration in the battle front brought Guy Bush, Giant killer, into the picture, and for two innings he was amazingly effective. But another spot arose in the ninth when the winning run was waiting for somebody to push it home, so Bush was sent in the footsteps of Root and the job of finishing was wished on Malone in the ninth. He got two men out before the Giants began to crowd him for what proved the tying run, and what Jackson did on one pitch in the tenth doesn't require repeating.

With his best pitching bets overworked and definitely out of the way for the time being, McCarthy will have to turn either to Carlson or Blake for the final of the series tomorrow. McGraw probably will send back Hubbell, who was blasted off the premises by the Cubs' sluggers in the opener last Wednesday.

Root's first two innings of labor were not especially impressive so there was no great surprise expressed when the Giants finally crashed him for two runs in the third. In New York's initial round 'Roush led off with a safe blow and Root plunked Fullis with a pitched ball. Lindstrom filed to Heathcote and Roush went to third after the catch but Fullis, who tried to get to second on the same play, was doubled. Ott ended the round with a fly to Wilson. In the second Root got himself into a jam on hits by Terry and Cohen with none out, but the next three hostiles didn't get the ball out of the infield.

Fullis Wallops Homer.

Before trouble popped up in the shape of two runs in the Giants' third, Root eliminated Roush on a pop to Grimm. Young Fullis walloped a high fly to left and Stephenson was all set to accomplish a catch but the ball never reached him. Instead it sailed into the upstairs seats for a homer. Lindstrom then bounced to English and Grimm pulled a rarity by dropping the throw. Ott singled through short and Terry filed out. Cohen looped a lucky hit into short left center and Lindstrom scored. A pass to Jackson filled the sacks but Root nailed Hogan on a pop foul.

There was little with which the Cubs could console themselves prior to the seventh. Nobody produced a hit in the first two innings. Taylor got one in the third with one out but went nowhere. The fifth brought the first real opening. Grimm singled after Lindstrom had made a leaping stab of a liner by Stephenson. McMillan drew free passage.

The Cub seventh was a stem winder not only because of what they got but because of what they threatened to get. It started uproariously with Wilson driving one to the wall in right and losing a hit when Ott jumped up and nabbed it. On the next pitch Stephenson hit the second story facade in left for his homer but the inning's fun was not yet over. Grimm died on a fly and McMillan walked. McCarthy decided to let Cuyler, the invalid, swing for Taylor and Kiki made good with a single to center, McMillan going to third. But the rally died when Hartnett, swinging for Root, bounced out to short.

Now for the eighth in which the Cubs came driving through with the run that brought about a 2 to 2 tie. English started the sniping by aiming a single to right. Heathcote lined in the same direction but Ott caught it. Then Hornsby let loose a wicked drive good for one base and Ott obligingly let it seep through his paws. He turned to pursue it, English meanwhile racing to the plate and the Rajah pulling up at third. This gave Wilson a delightful opportunity but his best was only a hopper to Benton. Then Stephenson was more or less intentionally passed and Grimm flied to center.

The ninth in which the Cubs scored the run that put them in the lead for the first time opened with McMillan walking. Gonzales wanted to bunt but messed up a couple attempts, so then singled to center, McMillan racing to third. McCarthy had the choice of taking a chance on Bush's hitting ability or yanking him and depending on Malone to save the game. He adopted the latter scheme. Moore batted for Bush but fanned. English sent a sacrifice fly to Ott and McMillan scooted home after the catch. Heathcote closed the round with a grounder to Terry.

Ott's Triple Scores Lindstrom.

It was only a few moments later before it became evident that McCarthy's strategy wasn't going to work out. Malone started his assignment in the home ninth by nailing the first two batters. Then Lindstrom singled to right and Ott scored him with a triple to left center, making the count read 3 and 3.

The Cubs tried to break it again in the tenth when Wilson singled with one out, only to die in a double play. The next happening was Jackson's knockout homer.

50,000 TO SEE 17 VIE FOR $60,000 IN CLASSIC TODAY

pointed out that the track did not dry out rapidly enough yesterday to assure fast going this afternoon. If more rains should visit Arlington this morning and the track should become sloppy it's possible that Clyde Van Dusen, despite his defeat at the hands of Frances Milward here early in the week, may be the post time choice.

Star Riders in Race.

The greatest array of jockeys to come to Chicago in many years began gathering yesterday to ride in the Classic. Mack Garner came in from New York 24 hours ahead of schedule to ride Blue Larkspur. He was enthusiastic about the Bradley color bearer's chances. Pony McAtee came last night to pilot Clyde Van Dusen. There was a last minute shift of pilots on Windy City when L. McDermott was relieved of the mount and Earl Pool put up to replace him.

Charley Allen rode a winner for a change yesterday to demonstrate that he's in good condition to guide Rose of Sharon through the battle.

Steve O'Donnell definitely accepted the mount on Grey Coat. He piloted this colt to victory in the Dwyer stakes over Blue Larkspur. When O'Donnell decided to ride Grey Coat, Tony Pascuma was engaged for H. Teller Archibald's Folking. J. Fred Adams of Maryland hired E. Legere, the contract rider for Willis Sharpe Kilmer, to ride Glen Wild, while E. Shropshire was engaged at the last minute to ride the lightly weighted Frances Milward and R. Jones came to terms with L. M. Severson and agreed to pilot the notorious bad actor Paul Bunyan.

It will be recalled that Paul Bunyan all but mutilated the entire field in the American Derby with his flying heels. He had an inside post position in that race, but will start from the extreme outside in the Classic. Windy City drew number 1 position and with such a boy as Pool in the saddle no doubt will leave the barrier flying.

Blue Larkspur No. 6.

Clyde Van Dusen has No. 4 post position, Blue Larkspur No. 6, and Rose of Sharon will start from the No. 13 position. The horses which have been wearing No. 13 have been fortunate at Arlington. It was Dowagiac's number in the Stars and Stripes handicap and Thistle Ann's number was 13 when she won the Post and Paddock stakes.

That may be a good omen for those folks who think Rose of Sharon will show her heels to the fleet band in the Classic.

On the eve of the championship race trainers and owners, aware of the uncertain track conditions, were not ready to make any predictions.

Curtis, Emmerson to Be Present.

The classic day celebration will open at 1 o'clock, when the directors of the American National Jockey club entertain a party of 50 or more nationally prominent men, including Vice President Charles Curtis, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling and others. Mr. Carruthers received a telegram from Governor Emmerson stating that he will be here and will present the gold cup to the owner of the winner of the Classic.

Both Are Below Form in Final Match.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Mrs. Melvin Jones took the tall silver cup emblematic of the Chicago championship of the Women's Western Golf association back to Olympia Fields for the fifth time yesterday, but only after a struggle at Butterfield that was all even after 18 holes. She defeated young Helen MacMorran, who weighs barely more than 100 pounds, 1 up, on the 19th hole. A coincidence of the match was the fact Mrs. Jones was the medalist in the qualifying round while Miss MacMorran got into the championship bracket only by sinking a 20 foot putt for a birdie in the playoff for last place.

Like many finals, the golf was below the grade each contestant had shown in earlier rounds. It wasn't brilliant golf; not a birdie was scored in the 38 holes, yet it wasn't bad. At times it seemed the rabbit's foot which Johnny Bender, Mrs. Jones' caddy rubbed on her clubs, and the four leaf clovers for which Miss MacMorran's caddy searched diligently, were to have some effect in the standing.

Match Close All the Way.

Never in the match did either have a lead of more than one hole. Three times Miss MacMorran was 1 up and three times, including the final hole, Mrs. Jones won a lead of 1 up. Yet each time, except on the extra hole, the other pulled up to all level again. Mrs. Jones was dormie one, but lost the last hole and they reached the eighteenth green all even.

Starting all over again, after three hours under a sweltering sun, toiling up and down the hills that make Butterfield an unusually interesting golf course, Miss MacMorran sliced her drive into the rough. Mrs. Jones was straight and hit a fine wood second. Helen slammed her ball out of the rough with an iron, but then pulled another iron and landed in a deep trap at the left of the green. Mrs. Jones pitched up short, a bad shot, but from a steep hanging lie in the heavy sand, Miss MacMorran could do no more than blast to the grass at the top of the trap. Her pitch was 12 feet short of the cup, and Mrs. Jones followed her chip within two inches of the cup. Helen studied her 12 footer and then rapped it into the hole for a six. She stopped a moment to count her shots and Mrs. Jones' and then reached down and picked up both balls.

Both Turn in 88's.

In medal score they were alike, Miss MacMorran scoring 45-43-88 and Mrs. Jones 46-42-88, each six over women's par. On the extra hole Mrs. Jones had a 5 and Miss MacMorran a 6.

Mrs. Jones' usually deadly short game was far from par, but to counteract it, Miss MacMorran's game through the fairway was poor.

The results in the final rounds:

FIRST FLIGHT CONSOLATION—Mrs. F. X. McNellis, Edgewood Valley, defeated Mrs. J. A. Romer, Westward Ho, 5 and 4.

SECOND FLIGHT—Mrs. H. P. Saunders, North Shore, defeated Miss Dorothy Fuller, Riverside, 3 and 1.

SECOND FLIGHT CONSOLATION—Mrs. J. T. Donahue, Maywood, defeated Mrs. O. W. Dynes, Hinsdale, 8 and 7.

2 Man o' War Horses Fail in Two Races

The failures of a son and daughter of Man o' War in the Shore Acres purse and the Sorority handicap, both of which had been stoutly backed, marked the racing over the muddy track at Arlington yesterday.

In the Shore Acres, Ben Marshall, the even money favorite, triumphed after War Time, the son of Man o' War had been in front most of the way. In the Sorority, Johnson N. Camden's Symphorosa was the winner over Mixup after the latter had led into the stretch. Can Man o' War's offspring be weak of heart?

Despite War Time's failure, the Man o' War admirers went right back on Mixup in the Sorority handicap. Mixup flattered when she went to the front at beginning and continued to make the pace until the field was well down the stretch. Then Vesta came up to go into first place, but Mixup came again and had headed her challenger with 20 strides still to go.

Symphorosa, which had been close up, then began the drive which wore down Mixup and brought her a victory by half a length. In the betting Symphorosa paid $10.34 to win, and the muddy track was just to her liking.

Moe, Carter Play Today for Western Title

Kansas City, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Don Moe, Portland, Ore., and Gilbert Carter, Nevada, Mo., this afternoon became finalists in the thirtieth annual western amateur golf tournament with 3 and 2 victories over their semi-finals opponents.

Moe Conquered John Lerman, Gary, Ind., after the 1923 Big Ten champion from Purdue had made a courageous rally from the seemingly hopeless position of seven down at the end of 27 holes.

HACK BEST CHIN CHOPPER IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Two Victories in One Day Clinch Title.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, July 12.—Two technical knockouts in the course of one day's quarreling with the Cincinnati Reds probably have given Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs an impressive reputation as a pleasure fighter. At the present time he is recognized as the heavyweight champion pleasure fighter of the major leagues, although it must be admitted that with the departure of Ty Cobb, the title was left open, subject to the claim of the first man who gave an opponent a nose-bleed. Mr. Wilson gave two opponents two nose-bleeds and the championship, such as it is, is his.

Not as a challenge but merely as a critical observation, I doubt that Mr. Wilson is a very good fist fighter, judged by the standards of the prize fighting profession. If he were, being a heavyweight, he would not be toasting himself in the sun fields of the ball yards 154 afternoons every summer and thirty or forty afternoons in the spring, for an outfielder's wages of not $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

This is not appreciable money for a champion, according to pugilistic standards and a professional boxer probably would say that the services which Wilson expended free of charge to Ray Kolp and Pete Donohue were worth no more than he got.

Wilson Like Hackenschmidt.

Mr. Wilson's nickname, Hack, is an allusion to his personal architecture which somewhat resembles that of the late George Hackenschmidt, the wrestler, who was so strong that he was afraid to be left alone with himself. In the end, however, Mr. Hackenschmidt's strength was his own undoing. On account of his vast might he could not obtain sparring partners to work out with him in his training camp on the lake shore at Rogers Park, Chicago, when he was preparing for his return match with Frank Gotch. Consequently, he was compelled to serve as his own sparring partner and one afternoon, while engaged in a furious tussle with himself, he grasped himself by his right leg and hit himself over the head with it, knocking himself insensible.

When he came to, however, it was discovered that he had not been rendered insensible by the shock to his brain but by the pain in his leg. His skull had withstood the blow but his leg was fractured and consequently, when he went to the ring for his bout with Gotch at the White Sox ball yard, his carriage was a wheel chair. Mr. Jack Curley, the promoter of the contest, not wishing to disappoint the customers with a poor bout, appealed to Gotch's sportsmanship.

"Hack has got a bum leg," he said, "so please lay off the leg holds for the first half hour and give the public a show."

Mr. Gotch Goes to Work.

"Which leg is it?" was all Mr. Gotch said, and soon after the first bell he set about a process of elimination to ascertain for himself that which Mr. Curley, in the interests of sportsmanship, refused to disclose. It was a simple matter because Hack had only the conventional number of legs and when he did not squeal at the tweaking of the first one, Gotch let go and started tweaking the other. The contest was practically no contest and Gotch retained the championship although, in strict accuracy, Hackenschmidt's defeat was due to his own strength.

Hack disappeared some years ago and I have heard vague tales that he came to his end one night in a village on the Vodka river in Russia. His opponent failed to appear and Hack, not to disappoint the villagers, agreed to wrestle a finish bout with himself. Like the snake that swallowed its own tail and kept on swallowing he obtained a strangle hold and did not let go soon enough.

It is a curious thing about American citizens that the majority of the males go through life enjoying delusions of fistic prowess which are quite unjustified. Mr. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, the retired commercial fighter, has observed that the average American who thinks he can fight with his fists actually has nothing but a desire, which may be somewhat specious incidentally, and an instinct to let fly with his right hand. He states that any preliminary prize fighter of 135 pounds or over could lick any pleasure fighter in the major leagues at any time, regardless of weight, hit with fungo sticks, pop bottles and neck holds barred.

Advice from Old Timer.

"It may cost some pride," Mr. O'Brien says, "but if a man who is not a trained boxer with ring experience would always remember that he knows practically nothing about fist fighting and only looks funny when he tries it, there would be a great saving in wear and tear on clothes, to say nothing of the decrease in the blood pressure of the country.

"My advice to young men, if I may give advice to young men, is that when friends or strangers say, 'do you want to fight?' they reply 'I would like to fight but unfortunately I do not know anything about fighting.' It is no more disgraceful than to say 'thank you, I do not play bridge.'"

A's Take Two from Browns; Gain on Yanks

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics made a clean sweep of today's double-header with the St. Louis Browns, winning the first game, 10 to 0, and the second, 8 to 2. Robert Moses Grove registered his fifteenth pitching triumph in the opening game. The double victory, too, served to give the A's a gain of a half game on the Yankees today, even though the Hugmen won. Score:

at second when Combs singled to left. Herb apparently wanted to keep the game interesting, for he stopped at third on Robertson's long single to right, the bases then being filled. Ruth fouled to Berg and Kamm made his aforementioned trip over to second to get Gehrig's fly. Lazzeri got the first of his three hits and Pennock just had to proceed home. The base lines thus being opened up, Coombs also scored. Meusel then filed to Wattwood.

The next inning marked the demise of Ted. With one down Durocher was hit by a pitched ball and moved to second on Pennock's sacrifice bunt. Singles by Combs and Robertson, a double by Ruth, a walk to Gehrig and a double by Lazzeri followed in rapid succession, producing four runs. Dugan then went in and forced Meusel to pop to Kamm.

Mercer Leads Illinois Club's Meet with 72

With a neat 39—33—72, Don Mercer, champion at Exmoor, had a lead of 3 holes over his nearest competitor for low gross in the annual "Stampede," the annual invitational at the Illinois club. Yesterday's 18 holes will be added to today's 36 to determine the winners of the various divisions. Don made his one over par score possible by holing out a 50 yard approach at the 18th.

Next to Mercer came George Dawson, Glen Oak, 38—37—75, and tied for third were W. J. Burghardt of Calumet, Dick Gambril of Illinois, and Eliot Evans of Evanston with 77.

Shooting with a 27 handicap Bill Ryan of Bob o' Link turned in 93, which gave him 66 for temporary lead for low net.

About 150 started in the play. Among them was Commander Good from Manila, Philippines, who got a score of 90.

Westgate Valley, Latest Fee Course, Opens Tomorrow

Westgate Valley, the new daily fee course at 131st street and Ridgeland, two miles east of Oakdale, will be opened officially for play tomorrow, but there will be no women present. Members of the club which operates the course have voted to restrict play to the fairer sex on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. This establishes a new precedent in administering daily fee courses, according to Tom Walsh, superintendent of golf.

Leonard Hicks Wins Chicago Hotel Men's Golf Title

Leonard Hicks' ranking position in the group of Chicago's golfing hotel men remains in status quo, for Hicks, with a round of 81, took the honors in the annual tournament of the Chicago Hotel Men's association at Midlothian yesterday. Thirty-five competed. Low net honors went to Walter Gregory with 89—18—71 and John P. Harding, 87—13—74.

C. F. Pearce won the Purveyors' trophy with a card of 85—15—70. Jack Palmer was runner-up with 84—12—72.

Alexander to Rejoin Cards in Series Against Giants

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran Cardinal hurling ace, who has been under treatment in a hospital here for lumbago, will leave tomorrow night for New York to join the club in its series with the Giants. Alexander has not worked in a game since June 20 at Chicago.

BERG WINS TEN ROUND DECISION OVER PERLICK

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Jack Berg, the English lightweight, was given the decision over Herman Perlick of Kalamazoo, Mich., in the main event of Promoter Jack Art's boxing show at the Mills stadium last night. The decision was unanimous and met with the approval of the 5,000 fans who paid about $10,000 to file through the gates.

The Englishman won seven of the ten rounds while the other three were about even. Jack forced the milling in every round and scored repeatedly with body punches delivered at close range.

Berg won the first four rounds through his aggressiveness. The fifth was about even due to a stinging left hook and a solid right cross executed in one two fashion by Perlick. The right sent Berg against the ropes but he recovered quickly.

Perlick lost his chances of winning the fight by continual holding. Instead of trading punches, the Michigan fighter held every time they went into close quarters. Berg was willing to trade blow for blow but Perlick locked his arms to stop the rallies. Jack outboxed and showed more ring craft than the Kalamazoo fighter. Both weighed 133¼ pounds at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

In the semi-windup, which followed the main event, Hershie Wilson of Danville, Ill., was given the eight round decision over Wildcat Moore of Oklahoma. The verdict did not meet with the approval of the fans, who booed the decision. They met at 126 pounds.

Al Keegan, the west side 170 pounder, was given the five round decision over Joe Greb of the south side in the opening bout. Larry Johnson, the local colored heavyweight, stopped Oscar Battiste in the third round. A right cross sent Oscar to the mat after the round was 2 minutes and 58 seconds old.

Ray McPeck, the Denver middleweight, and Nick Taft of Chicago went five rounds to a draw in the third fight. Paul Pantaleo, local heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Jake Purtell of Ironwood, Mich., in the other fight on the card.

Before Berg and Perlick entered the ring, Tom Sharkey, one of the leading heavyweights of the old days, was introduced. Tom was given a pleasing ovation. Dave Barry and Tom Gilmore were the referees and H. L. Cooke was the judge.

CHICAGO STOCK SALES APPROACH MART'S RECORD

All Sections of List Take Part in Advance.

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

Chicago stock traders celebrated the decline in brokers' loans by putting on a session reminiscent of the "Hoover bull market" of last fall.

All sections of the list participated in the movement as net gains of from one to twenty-eight points were rung up. Total sales were 507,000 shares, the second largest turnover in the history of the exchange, the figures comparing with the record of 540,000 established in the latter part of 1928.

The investment trust and utility issues were the features of the day. Middle West Utilities shot up 22 points to a new high of 273. The company's six and seven per cent preferred stocks advanced three points each. Commonwealth-Edison pushed ahead 13 points to a new top of 335.

Climbs 5½ Points.

Utility and Industrial common reflected the new high prices established on the New York exchange by Standard Gas and Electric and Northern States Power in which issues it is a heavy stockholder. The report was also current that the company has more than earned its dividend on the preferred stock for the whole year in the first six months. The stock closed 5½ higher at 81¼ after having jumped nine points to a new top of 35. Total sales on this issue were 73,950 shares.

Chicago corporation was the most active on the board on a turnover of 82,400 shares, the stock touching 40 and closing at 39¾, up four points on the day. Great Lakes Dredge and Dock soared 28 points on light sales. Gains of two to five points were made by Q. R. S., E. L. Bruce, Poor & Co., Kyerson Steel, Chain Belt and Beatrice Creamery.

Noblitt-Sparks was a feature of the automotive group, closing 2¾ higher. There was talk in investment circles that the directors of the company will soon increase the dividend rate, which is now $2 a year. Frank Sparks, president, announced that net earnings for the first half of this year totaled $226,600, equal to $2.94 a share on the 75,000 shares of stock now outstanding. This compares with a net loss of $39,000 suffered in the first half of 1928. In the final half of last year the company earned $294,604, or $4.91 a share, on the 60,000 shares then outstanding.

Signs Contracts.

Binks Manufacturing was fractionally higher. It was announced that the company has signed a contract with the General Motors overseas organization to handle the Binks products abroad. Contracts for goods have also just been made with Buick, Ford, Studebaker organizations, and a radio manufacturer. Bendix Aviation advanced 1¾ in early dealings on the news that Vincent Bendix, president of the corporation, Paul G. Hoffman, vice president of the Studebaker corporation, and Harvey Firestone Jr., president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, held a conference in South Bend during the day. The details of the meeting were not revealed.

Auburn Automobile finished three points higher and Borg-Warner advanced 2¼. Ainsworth Manufacturing was fractionally lower, despite a report that the company's six months' earnings statement, to be issued soon, will show het equivalent to more than $4.25 a share.

There were no sales in J. W. Brown Manufacturing, maker of automobile head lamps, although it became known that the company will announce its acquisition by the Electric Autolite company in a few days. It is understood that Brown stockholders will be given a special cash dividend and an opportunity to exchange their holdings for Autolite stock.

Among Weak Spots.

Great Lakes Aircraft was down a point, although it was announced that the navy has given its support to the development of a new aviation engine to be constructed by the American Cirrus Engines, Inc., a subsidiary, in the former plant of the Willys-St. Clair company, which has been acquired by the Great Lakes Aircraft. Other weak spots were Houdaille-Hershey "A" and Pines Winterfront.

Grigsby-Grunow was the leader of the radio division, selling up 7⅛ to 193⅝. Earlier the stock touched a new high of 198½. Reports were current that the company will announce a merger early next week negotiated by eastern bankers. Sonatron Tube advanced 2¼, and Atlas Stores gained 1¼.

Art Metal Works sold up 1⅝ on reports that directors are planning to raise the dividend rate from $2.40 to $3 annually. Acme Steel gained 1¾ on the issuance of the six months' earnings statement showing net of $1,731,671, or $6.31 a share against $1,014,590.

Kalamazoo Stove was up a fraction on reports of increased earnings. Irving Air Chute was not traded in. Col. L. J. Campbell, chairman, announced the receipt of an order of 1,140 air chutes from the United States army. Garner-Denver, manufacturer of air compressor, slush and mud pumps and rock drills, was dull and fractionally lower, although the company announced that it will increase its plant capacity at both Quincy and La Grange, Mo., as a result of the receipt of an increase in orders of 100 per cent during June as compared with May.

HEAT FAILS TO WILT STARCH OUT OF TRADE

BY O. A. MATHER.

Even hot weather can't take the people out of business. Yesterday brought a series of mid-year and week-end reviews describing trade in glowing terms and offering optimistic predictions for the future. The fact that several industrial companies announced stock melons contributed to the general cheerfulness.

"A record half year has just closed with no signs of a falling off in business activity," the monthly survey of THE TRIBUNE says. "Substantial gains in employment and wages were made throughout the country and particularly in the Chicago territory.

"In this remarkable half year, the aggregate production of American factories went beyond any record that has ever been reached before. But this has been attained without such unhealthy developments as have undermined other periods of high productivity. There has been an utter absence of inflation in commodity prices and stocks of goods have not been built up in the hope of speculative profits from inventories. All of this indicates that consumption is keeping pace with production.

Has Full Share.

"The middle west has had its full share of the national prosperity and something besides. It has been by all odds the best spring and early summer since 1926. In some respects even the exceptional levels of that year have been far outdone.

"A gradual decline is expected during the autumn, but in spite of it the largest volume of business ever done during the fall season is also anticipated. There is no positive certainty that there will be a recession, although history leads to the belief that there will be some easing off from current levels. Even so, the scale of operations would still be greater than last year or the year before. It is the difference between a recession and a depression."

"Trade is of more than full seasonal volume, with industry maintaining its preeminence as the most active of the three trade divisions," Bradstreet's review says. "This latter fact prevails, despite a tendency to restrict building with consequent effect on sales of materials at some of the larger cities. Crop reports, on the whole, are more cheerful. Although a tapering off of activity is either visible or predicted, the feeling grows that the summer letdown in activity, particularly in industry, will not be as great as usual."

Above Average.

"With business maintaining a vigor and a volume above the seasonal average, after-holiday results have added to the favorable aspects previously prevailing," Dun's review says. "Much of the statistical and other data have centered in a summary of the half year's gratifying commercial progress, yet the chief interest now is in prospects for the third quarter and the period beyond. Exceptional momentum already having been gained, less than the usual summer contraction of activities is indicated for some of the major industries and in some respects the present status of the great steel trade is without parallel."

As the result of prosperity in the steel industry, directors of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company yesterday voted a 20 per cent stock dividend, payable Oct. 1. A stockholders' meeting was called for August 15 to increase the common stock issue from 1,000,0000 to 2,000,000 no-par shares.

Directors of the Universal Leaf Tobacco company voted a 35 per cent stock dividend in addition to the regular quarterly cash payment of 75 cents on the common stock. The Skinner Organ company increased its capital stock from 55,000 to 60,500 shares and ordered a stock dividend of 10 per cent to stockholders of record July 15. The Bates Manufacturing company declared a special devidend of $30 out of accumulated earnings and the regular semi-annual payment of $4 a share. Trustee Standard Oil Shares declared a semi-annual dividend of $1.34 a share.

Concentration in Banking Continues, Record Shows

BY SCRUTATOR.

Banking in the United States continues to be marked by mergers of leading institutions. The movement has been in progress since 1919, but reached a peak in 1928, when 700 consolidations occurred, involving around 4 per cent of all the banks in the country.

Thus banks become constantly larger and larger. A few weeks ago it was asserted by R. S. Hecht, chairman of the economic policy committee of the American Bankers' association, that 256 large banks in twenty-six cities had deposits of more than twenty billion dollars. These institutions, less than 1 per cent of all those in the country, had more than one-third of all the deposits.

Shifts have been so rapid in this field, with 250 more mergers announced before the middle of June this year, that the number having 33 per cent of the deposits probably is somewhat smaller now. In fact, a few of the great banks of the country are getting even in deposits and total resources with the big five which control virtually all the banking business of England through their branches, of which they have 7,500.

National City Bank.

One American institution, the National City Bank of New York, at its last report had total resources of more than two billions and deposits a little less than a billion and a half. The Guaranty Trust company, just merged with the National Bank of Commerce of New York, had on Monday deposits exceeding a billion. These banks alone would accordingly have 4 per cent of the total deposits. Fifty banks of the average size of these would hold all the funds of all our people.

There are still left about 26,000 banks. The number was 7,000 more in 1921, although the resources of the whole banking structure grew in the intervening period from forty-five to seventy-one billion dollars. A few years ago such a concentration as has been going on would doubtless have brought complaints that every one was becoming subject to financial vassalage. Now, however, the only real opposition comes from small bankers who confidently believe that the welfare of business can best be served by institutions like theirs.

Era Only Started.

Many men conversant with the banking situation hold that the era of mergers, instead of being near an end, is really only well started. Edward E. Embree, vice president of the United Shares corporation, declared a few days ago that the country's banks will soon be recast into powerful groupings capable of handling the funds required in huge quantities for business expansion.

"Although the present banking laws preclude by geographical restrictions the establishment of bank branches throughout the United States," he said, "the American system of correspondent banks is placing the New York institutions in much the same positions as those the great London banks occupy."

Branch Banking Spreads.

As for branch banking, it has spread out tremendously in the states where the laws approve. Of the total of 3,230 branch offices in the forty-eight states, California had 865 last year, New York had 607 and Michigan had 422. Only ten states permit unrestricted branch banking and twelve more allow establishments of subsidiary branches within the county or city of the parent institution. Twenty have definite laws against such practices and six make no mention of them in their banking laws.

HISTORIC LEVELS ARE ATTAINED BY STOCK OF AMERICAN T. & T. CO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—American Telephone and Telegraph company capital stock today reached a historic high record of 247½, and thereby established a number of other records.

Among them is the fact that the aggregate value of shares outstanding or subscribed to as of Dec. 31, 1928, crossed three and one-third billion dollars in value for the first time.

At the high the capital stock was worth $3,335,214,621, comparing with a peak of $3,274,574,356 on Thursday. The net gain of 5⅝ from Thursday's to Friday's close added $75,800,335 to the value of the stock, and the gain of 53⅝ from the price of 193 at the close of 1928 represents a profit of $722,629,855 to holders of the shares.

The new convertible 4½ per cent bonds recently issued also rose today, advancing 8 points to 169½, closing at this high mark. The bonds cost the holders $219,112,700 on July 1, and at today's peak were worth $371,396,026, a gain of $152,283,326, or 69½ per cent.

For $175,290,160 additional cash, on or after Jan. 1, the holders are entitled to 2,191,127 shares of stock, worth at today's close $540,356,697.

The record established by American Telephone and Telegraph stock only once has been exceeded by any corporation in this country. General Motors stock, at its year's high of 91¾, was valued at slightly over $4,000,000,000 on the market.

Chicagoan Boosts Private Ownership at World Meet

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—(AP)—After a recess of one day, the international chamber of commerce resumed its sessions today with a discussion on the relative merits of private and public ownership, the principal address being by Julius H. Barnes of Chicago who emphasized private ownership as superior.

A half dozen technical papers on the same subject were read by various European economic experts, all of them stressing the superiority of private ownership.

The conference later adopted a resolution holding that private initiative and private operation of enterprises constituted the most effective instrument to insure the progress of industry and to increase general prosperity.

Anlyzes Growth.

In the course of his address Mr. Barnes analyzed the tremendous growth of American industry, citing figures to show this growth, and calling particular attention to the importance of efficient services in the fields of transportation, communication and power.

"Governments may imitate the practices of private enterprise and here and there may occasionally register some advance, but I submit that in these great fields of transportation, communication and electric utilities the significant accomplishments are in overwhelming measure the product of private enterprise," he said.

Mr. Barnes also quoted President Hoover as expressing the underlying philosophy that business progressiveness is dependent on competition and that governmental conduct of business would stifle initiative and invention.

Economic Pressure.

A resolution indorsing economic pressure as a means of forcing nations to desist from war was agreed upon in a committee meeting today and will formally be presented to the plenary session by Herbert S. Houston of New York.

This resolution reads: "The international chamber of commerce is convinced that the world of business must devote itself zealously to rooting the conception of peace summed up in the words 'security, arbitration and disarmament,' and must exert its influence to prevent the causes of economic friction which may result in war. Nations failing to adopt these methods should have no support or encouragement from the commercial world. Business men specifically condemn any desire for profits arising from war trade. For these reasons the international chamber of commerce welcomes with enthusiasm the new guarantees of peace recently given to the world by the Kellogg pact."

Discussing the subject of international settlements, the Young plan and the world financial situation, Lord Melchett, head of a huge British chemical combine, said that the Young plan had converted the reparations debts from a political to a commercial obligation. The conversion, he said, was still only a conversion on paper and it remained to be seen whether it became a conversion to a commercial obligation in reality.

PLANS BELT LINE TO LINK PROPOSED TRUNK RAILWAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Leonor F. Loree, who sponsored two trunk lines between here and the west, is devising a belt system to reach the chief cities and ports on the eastern seaboard, it was learned today. This system would link with the line across Pennsylvania to Chicago proposed by the late E. H. Harriman and now under survey by Mr. Loree.

"We have a plan for a new eastern system under consideration," said Mr. Loree, "but it has not reached the point where it can be submitted to the Delaware and Hudson board. It may be placed before them in the fall. Exactly what lines would be placed in the proposed system has not been decided."

Furniture Mart Limits Shows to Two Each Year

The board of governors of the American Furniture Mart have voted to limit the number of seasonal shows to two each year instead of four as in the past. Exhibits of three weeks' duration will be held each year in January and July. The announcement of the change in policy was made by V. L. Alward, president of the mart, and George M. Petrie, chairman of the board of governors.

New York, July 12.—Wall street traders who had been expecting a break in prices were badly punished today when a wave of public buying sent stock exchange values soaring from 2 to as many as 24 points. It was the fastest stepping market since last spring and the exchange ticker fell eighteen minutes behind the market. Total sales were 4,750,700 and represented buying in huge blocks.

One of the features of the session was the manner in which traders from other parts of the country, who have been holding off since early spring, came back into the fray. They kept the wires humming with buying orders.

The immediate cause for the bullish demonstration was quickly traced to the decline in brokers' loans. Another contributing factor was the fact that the irregularity of recent days had sufficiently improved the position of stocks to make them go up easily.

Steel at New Peak.

Buying was heavy, especially in public utilities and steels. The initial order in United States Steel common was 10,000 shares at 200¼, up 2¼ points. In later trading Steel touched 203¼ for a new high record and closed at 203 for a net gain of 5 points.

Gains of 2 to 10 points were common throughout the list. Utility shares were mostly 4 to 5 points higher and

New York, July 12.—A boiling utility market existed on the curb exchange today, with power stocks surging ahead to ever higher levels, demonstrating that, far from having exhausted their possibilities, as some observers believed during the recent breathing spell for the group, they had more vitality than ever.

The $14,000,000 decrease in brokers' loans, the first drop in a month, was all the push the market needed to precipitate another wild outburst of buying of the power stocks. From the opening bell the ticker was kept busy recording large blocks on the tape and gains which in several instances were more than twenty points. The ticker, unable to keep pace with the heavy trading, fell more than forty minutes behind the market.

The rank and file of the industrials and some of the oils, radio and aviation shares participated in the market's impressive show of strength. The early pace of the market, however, was too fast to maintain, and many shares, including the utilities, lost part of their forenoon gains.

The widest gains in the utilities were scored by the holding and investment companies with heavy interests in other utilities. These included Central States Electric, Electric Investors and Middle West Utilities, which at their top forenoon prices showed gains as high as 20 points.

MILWAUKEE RY. SEES LARGE GAIN IN JUNE INCOME

Two of the largest middle west railroads reported large gains in June earnings yesterday. A preliminary estimate by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific placed net railway operating income at $2,113,000, compared with $1,510,839 in June last year. Gross operating revenues last month were $14,613,000. The Chicago & North Western estimated June net income at $2,150,000, an increase of $78,730 over a year ago.

A probable increase of 11 per cent in the level of agricultural and industrial activity in midwest territory in the third quarter of 1929, compared with the corresponding months a year ago, was predicted at the nineteenth regular meeting of the midwest shippers' advisory board in Fort Wayne, Ind. This forecast covered Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, western Indiana and northern Michigan.

New York, July 12.—Reports have been current in the financial district that a deal looking toward the merger of Union Carbide and Carbon company and the American Cyanamid company appeared likely.

CHICAGO SENDS TRADE ENVOYS TO COTTON BELT

As a step toward the establishment of more cordial trade relations between the middle west and the south and southeastern states the Chicago Association of Commerce announces addition of a new corps of traveling representatives to aid the trade development between the two sections.

The representatives will work out of the association's headquarters in Chicago and are expected to fill the capacity of good will envoys. The association office which has been maintained in Atlanta for the last year will be discontinued, but the work which that branch has been doing will be continued and expanded by the new staff.

Frank F. Winans, president of the association, says that the Atlanta office has proved valuable in the establishment of the new service and the results of that initial experiment has led to the present expansion.

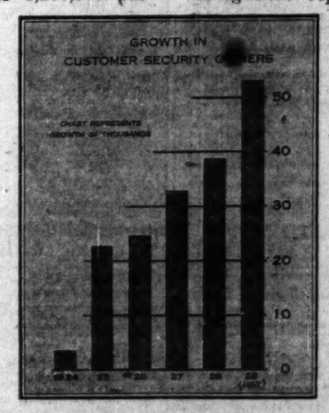
Associated Gas and Electric System

Founded In 1852.

52,300 Customers Have Invested $42,000,000

NOT only does the Associated System serve the public but it is also in a large measure owned by the public. One in every twenty-four of the 1,200,000 customers served is an investor in Associated securities. Since they are also daily users of gas and electricity, they understand the necessity of these services and have expressed their confidence in the Company by investing in its securities. As partners in the business, they participate in profits they help to create.



To these customer-investors, the Company is under a two-fold obligation: First, it must render dependable service which merits their approval. Second, it must provide sound financial management represented in sound securities which yield a fair return on the capital invested.

The success of the Associated Gas and Electric System in meeting this double responsibility is evidenced by the increasing number of new customer-investors added each year and by the number of old customers who, from time to time, add to their holdings of Associated securities.

Associated "Rights" Expire July 23

"Rights" to subscribe at $42 per share to additional Class A Stock of Associated Gas and Electric Company have been issued and are now being exercised. This is considerably less than the current market price.

Subscribers may pay out of income as follows: Upon subscription, $10 per share; Oct. 15, 1929, $16; Jan. 15, 1930, $16. Interest at the rate of 6% per annum will be allowed on all payments from date of receipt to the date when dividends begin to accrue on the Class A Stock.

Certain underlying securities of the System may be surrendered in payment of one-half the subscription price under "Rights." This privilege expires July 13th.

BULLISH NEWS SENDS WHEAT FUTURES HIGHER

Reports from Northwest Cause Advance.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Sensationally bullish reports from the American and Canadian northwest on the spring wheat situation resulted in a bulge of around 2½c in futures here yesterday, with all deliveries selling within a fraction of the highest prices on the present movement. While the bulge was checked by profit taking and selling against offers the close was at net gains of 1⅞@1¾c, with July, $1.23⅝@1.23¾; September, $1.28⅝@1.28½, and December, $1.34⅛@1.34⅝. Winnipeg led the advance and gained 2⅝@3½c to rthe day, with July leading, the latter acting tight. Minneapolis finished 2⅛@2¾c higher.

Corn shows an easy undertone and closed about the bottom with losses of ⅛@⅜c, July being 94½c; September, 97¼@97⅜c, and December, 93⅛@93¼c. Oats were ⅛@⅜c higher, with July, 45⅜c; September, 46⅝c, and December, 49⅛@49⅜c. Rye finished ⅜@1¼c higher, with July, 95½c; September, $1.00, and December, $1.04⅝.

The trade paid little attention to routine news as far as wheat was concerned, and sentiment generally was decidedly bullish, due to the rapid deterioration in the northwest.

Lower Wheat Estimates.

The spring wheat crop both sides of the international line has apparently gone to pieces. Based on the official method of estimating the yield, and eliminating the freak crop of 1928, the Canadian government report given out Wednesday shows an indicated crop of all provinces of only 335,000,000 bu or nearly 200,000,000 bu less than harvested last year. Telegraphic returns to Allan M. Clement of Clement Curtis and company said condition of spring wheat in North Dakota is now down to 52, against 74 on July 1; South Dakota, 60, against 75 two weeks ago, and Montana has dropped 45 points during the same period to 55.

J. F. Griffin of J. S. Bache and company, who recently startled the trade by estimating the world's wheat crop at 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 bu less than last year, now feels that in view of the continued reduction in North American yields and drought in Argentine and Australia the final reports may show even a smaller return than expected two weks ago.

Confirmation of the heavy damage in the Canadian northwest was received around noon in the Canadian pool report, which made condition in Saskatchewan 69.1, against 82.5 the last of June; Alberta, 53.8, against 76.2 previously, and Manitoba, 67.2, against 94.3 about two weeks ago. Threshing returns from Kansas were reported as very disappointing. Liverpool closed 1⅝@2¼d higher.

Little Interest in Corn.

The extreme activity shown in wheat has a tendency to curtail local and outside interest in other grains. Corn prices held within a range of around 1c, and averaged slightly lower despite the upturn in wheat, weather conditions over the belt being favorable for the growth of the new crop. Shipping demand was again active, with sales of over 300,000 bu, making around 700,000 bu taken in the last two days. South Africa was reported as offering corn abroad in competition with Argentina.

July oats acted tight and led the advance in that grain, offerings being light on the way up. The damage reports on wheat from the northwest attracted considerable attention, as there is a large oats acreage in that section, and dry weather, it is felt, has lowered the prospective yield since July 1.

A decided reduction in the American rye crop in the final returns, compared with the 42,000,000 bu suggested July 1, was indicated in northwestern messages. Futures averaged higher, with the action of wheat having considerable influence.

WARM WEATHER HELPS ILLINOIS' BIG CORN CROP

Recent warm weather has caused corn blades to stretch many inches and helped to offset the poor start caused by unfavorable weather earlier in the season. The crop is still as spotted as a leopard, varying from six inches to waist high, according to reports of members of the Illinois Agricultural association's board of directors, who met in Chicago yesterday.

There is a fine hay crop generally throughout the state. Farmers in several sections say that they have never had such pasture or clover hay, particularly alsike and red clover.

Many farmers failed to sow oats and others failed to seed all of the land they had allotted to this crop, but the crop is standing up well and fair yields are expected. Blight has hit the wheat in some counties and the yield is expected to be only fair and below the average in several sections.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Trading in May wheat was on yesterday in Chicago at 7¼c over December. Most of the business, however, is confined to September and December. There was big selling of December and buying of September wheat at 5⅞c spread; also selling of September and buying December late in the day at the same difference.

Australian cables reported that heavy damage will result to the wheat crop unless rain is received immediately. Germination is said to be poor. There is insufficient moisture, especially in subsoil.

STEM RUST IN NORTHWEST WHEAT

Stem rust has made its appearance in Minnesota and as far west as Bismarck, North Dakota, says the bulletin of the Rust Prevention association, which also says it has appeared earlier than in 1928. The amount of rust which develops between now and harvest will depend on weather, especially is this true in the eastern half of Minnesota, where moisture has been plentiful and the stand of grain is generally thick. No heavy attacks of rust have been observed to date, the bulletin says.

LARD AND HOGS ADVANCE

Higher prices for hogs, the best of the year, combined with higher prices for wheat, with good buying by commission houses and packing interests, carried lard prices up and made a close 15c to 20c higher on the near futures and 7½ to 12½c up on distant deliveries. At the same time hogs were up 15c to 25c, with a top of $12.40. Liverpool lard advanced 3d. Exports were 559,550 lbs. and bacon 274,500 lbs.

Short ribs were unchanged to 20c lower; bellies were 5c to 7½c higher, with light trading and deliveries of 300,000 lbs. Prices follow:

"Take a Ramble through the Want Ads"

"Look here," Dad said, from the depths of the section he always takes first from the Sunday Tribune. "Did you ever notice the way these Want Ads hook up with each other? Here's a young college man looking for a job in the Situations Wanted:

SITUATION WTD.—UNIVERSITY GRADUATE, age 26, teaching, executive experience; good knowledge of business, to work into responsible position in executive or production field. References. Address T 474, Tribune.

"Now, over on another page are half a dozen chances for him to get work. Here's one that even mentions the same age:

TWO COLLEGE MEN.

Two ambitious young men, 23 to 26 years of age, preferably with college education, who would like to learn the bakery business. A large retail grocery chain organization will be interested only in young men who are prepared to start at the bottom and are qualified to work up to executive positions. One of the essentials is that these men must weigh at least 160 pounds.

There is a splendid opportunity here afforded for the right men both from a financial standpoint and because they will be allowed to make a definite place for themselves in one of the most promising industries.

Write, giving details of age, education, experience, etc. Address M 1 65, Tribune.

"Sure," Jim remarked from behind the rotogravure section, "but what if our friend doesn't like to get flour in his breathing apparatus? Or what if he doesn't weigh a hundred and sixty? They must be going to start those fellows out at holding down the roof!"

Dad bristled. "All right, then, if you're so critical. Maybe you'll like this better:

COLLEGE GRADUATE, ABOUT 30, WITH car, for managerial position; construction and mortgage experience preferred, but not essential. Write history and state salary to start. Exceptionally good opportunity. Address D A 136, Tribune.

Marie, who goes for Frederick Donaghey and Burns Mantle, and high-hats anybody who doesn't, chimed in: "He didn't say anything about having a car in the Situation Wanted, Dad."

"That's right, but why should he? All he has to do is turn to the Used Car columns and find anything from a 1492 Ford to a Hispano-Suiza, all equipped with a built-in piano and tile bath. Look at this collection of used cars. It's just like going to the Automobile Show all over again. Read the names—

Mercedes, Rolls-Royce." "Yes," mother interrupted, "a young man needing a job would buy a Rolls-Royce, wouldn't he? I think he did just right. He wants a job to fit him, so he asks for it!" Dad snorted. "We didn't act that fussy in my young days. But speaking of cars, here's a real buy for somebody:

Below Are a Few of the Fine Cars Listed.

MERCEDES Special 4 pass. Sport Phaeton. Practically new—driven only 1,916 miles. A German importation, extremely smart and attractive. Powerful 6 cyl. 100 H. P. motor capable of 100 miles per hour. "Sure," Jim agreed. "And I think that's just the buy for us. The old bus is getting so bad that I'm afraid to take it out. Let's go look at that Buick!"

"Nope!" Dad was decisive. "I'm not ashamed of the old bus and nobody else has to use it unless he or she wants to. Besides, I don't feel like going out."

"Too bad. You're going just the same," said Mother, looking over his shoulder. "Here's a chance to get that living room rug I've

Hog prices continued to climb to new high levels yesterday. Gains of 10@25c were made during the day, bringing the extreme top and general average up 15c at $12.40 and $11.60, respectively.

Despite the fact that hog receipts this week promise to total close to 150,000, the largest since early in March, prices are 25@40c above last Saturday and 75c@$1.00 above last week's opening levels. Demand was strong again yesterday, eight local packers handling a total of more than 15,000. Shippers bought 4,000 and city butchers 2,500, leaving only 3,000 at the close.

Yesterday's cattle supply was small, but met narrow demand and all but top notchers were quoted sharply lower. Prime weighty beeves, eligible to $16.25@16.50 were absent, the best available yesterday stopping at $14.50. The kind on sale showed losses of 25 @75c since earlier in the week, with butcher stock off mostly 25@50c and some medium kinds showing as much as 75c@$1.00 decline. Calves are about steady and 25@50c under the high point of the week. Despite declines after mid-week, the market as a whole this week shows a gain over last week.

The big marketward movement of stock that broke prices in midweek was checked and lambs reacted on smaller supplies yesterday. Most good kinds recovered fully 15@25c of the recent loss, but still show 10@25c decline since last week's close. Top natives reached $15.10 and most western sold at $15.00. Aged sheep sold steady and were strong to 25c higher than a week ago. Yearlings advanced 25c more, selling 25@75c above a week ago, with the top at $12.75, highest since last April. Feeder lambs are in fair demand at $13.00@13.75.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 5,000 hogs and 5,000 sheep, against 69 cattle, 4,481 hogs, and 3,658 sheep., the previous Saturday and 181 cattle, 3,193 hogs, and 3,408 sheep a year ago.

COTTON RALLIES AT CLOSE

Selling early was on the weakness in Liverpool. The buying break was based on lighter offerings and scattered showers over the south, with forecast for more rains. Estimates on spinners' takings for the week are about 235,000 bales. Prices follow:

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS

When we changed our name from the Chicago Morris Plan Bank to Personal Loan & Savings Bank we did not change the method under which we make loans and receive savings. Nor did we change the method under which second mortgage loans have been made.

Because there was nothing we could change to make our plan better.

The method under which we make loans has been well thought out and has been tested over a period of years. It gives to the home owner from one to three years during which he makes monthly installment payments of at least 2% of the principal sum. Interest accrues on the outstanding balance at the rate of 6% per annum and is paid monthly. When the loan is made a straight commission is deducted. This commission is $35 a thousand for one year, $50 a thousand for two years, and $90 a thousand for three years.

If the home owner borrows $2,000 for two years we deduct $130 from the face of the note, giving to the borrower $1,870 in cash. The borrower then pays back $40 a month on principal and interest, which the first month is $10, and reduces 20c each month.

And these second mortgages are made without delay. They are handled by a staff of men with many years of experience in the business.

When second mortgage loans can be made on fairer and better terms to the home owner we will most certainly offer such a plan to the public.

YOU CAN GET NEW CAR SATISFACTION

Priced at Only a Fraction of Its New Car Cost.

BUICK COUPE—1927 48 Mast. 6, four pass. coupe with dandy tires and every essential extra. Finish is a handsome navy blue and the expensive mohair upholstery has not a worn spot on it. 4 whl. brakes and many extras. Reduced substantially in price, so now it's an exceptional value at $775.

REO COACH—Late model Flying Cloud that's in top notch condition today. The finish glistens like a new dollar and the upholstery appears unused. 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, and many extras. Special for $585.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN—1928 Six, finished an attractive olive green. The motor is exceptionally smooth. Has very low mileage. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Will not remain long at $885.

NASH SEDAN—1927 Adv. 6 that cannot be duplicated any place else at anywhere near our price. It's excellent mechanically and the appearance will please the most exacting buyer. Today, $650.

HUDSON SEDAN—A late model 7 pass. that's probably the best Hudson value in Chicago. The motor was just carefully overhauled and now it's o. k. in every detail. The finish, upholstery, and tires appear in the original new condition. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, driving light, spare tire, shutter front, and many other extras. A real buy at $775. Also a 1927 Hudson coach, like new, for $475.

PACKARD SEDAN—This Six was in storage for 14 months and now it will give new car satisfaction. The motor is A1 and the appearance is exceptionally clean throughout. Has 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, etc. A pickup for $850.

STUTZ SEDAN—It's a beauty. This car was taken in on consignment and when it is sold the owner will take out a new Studebaker President. We're anxious to sell it immediately. Reduced from $825 to $545.

OAKLAND SEDAN—1928, only driven a few thousand miles. This car is absolutely brand new in every respect. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes and every essential extra. Worth considerable more than our price of $750.

STUDEBAKER COMMANDER — A late model 5 pass. sedan. A trained chauffeur inspected it and checked it over carefully every day and now it absolutely looks and runs like a brand new car. The finish glistens like a new dollar. The tires are practically brand new and the motor is in such splendid condition that it carries a new car guarantee. Reduced to $745.

PAIGE COACH—If you are in the market for a late model you cannot get a better bargain than this 1927 Paige. Attractive finish, expensive upholstery that looks new. Tires have little mileage. Reduced from $875 to $495.

WEST SIDE CHILDREN FIND RELIEF FROM THE HEAT NEAR HOME. Scene in the girls' public swimming pool in Douglas park yesterday when the city suffered from a combination of heat and humidity, although the maximum temperature was only 88.

OMAHA SCIENTIST DEVELOPS CHICKENS WITHOUT WINGS OR CLAWS AFTER FIVE YEARS BREEDING. At left: Dr. R. T. Renwald, laboratory technician. At right: Wingless, clawless chickens. Dr. Renwald says that while chickens are moulting wing feathers they lay only one sixth as many eggs as at other times, so if they have no wings they will lay more eggs. The absence of claws makes them better neighbors.
